

STALE PITCHER IS ITS MISFORTUNE

Gough, Twining for Portland, Bestows Eight Runs in the Fourth.

VANCOUVER WINS 10 TO 5

Casey Mounts Hilltop in Fifth and Restrains Visitors, Only Two Hits Passing—Same Teams Play Today.

Irving Gough was detailed on the slab again yesterday afternoon, and for three innings he got away with what he had in the pitching line, but in the fourth the Canucks called into him in such a savage manner that eight runs were chalked up on a similar number of hits, while Erickson succeeded in holding the Portlanders to five runs all told.

It was simply a case of where a pitcher went on the hill when he was stale, for Gough was hit hard in the first three innings, though he was lucky insofar as some of the hits went safe. In the fourth the Vancouver team batted around, and for a time it looked as though they might go the rounds at bat twice, for everybody seemed able to swing and Cartwright got two hits in the inning, after slugging the ball all over the lot, and, aided by Ed Kennedy's bad leg to Jarbruster, the Canucks talked eight times. Several of the eight hits collected were of the Texas League variety, but they counted just as much as the good ones and the home team faced a neat handicap.

After Gough had experienced this beating, Casey decided he would pitch himself. The little manager mounted the hilltop in the fifth and allowed but two hits, and two scores in the balance of the game. One of these hits was a triple by Cartwright, which really should have been good for only one base, but the ball sounded away from Crocker and over for the trio, Erickson scoring on the wallop. Cartwright tallied on Quigley's long fly to Bawey.

This gave Erickson ten runs, while the best the locals could do with Erickson was to chase over five. Three of these came in the sixth when, with bases full, Eddie Kennedy laced on one of Erickson's choicest for a three-bagger cleaning up matters. Only one was out at this stage, and in sliding into third Kennedy hurt his hand and had to retire. Finance running for him, the Indian was caught at the plate on an infield tap which ended the rally on the part of the home team.

Scharnweber's error and singles by Crocker, Gough and Mullin, gave Portland two more in the eighth, but that ended further bidding for the contest, as though the game were full when the side was retired. The same teams will play again today and in the effort to get a better one game, Manager Gough will call on Eddie Kinisla against the invaders. Manager Dickson and Captain Sugden were not certain as to whom they would select to pitch, though Young Flanagan will probably be the twirler. The official score of yesterday's game is as follows:

CAREY'S COLTS seem to be up against a Tartar in this Vancouver outfit, for they have dropped three games straight to the Canucks.

Irving Gough had a bad day, by at least one bad inning, which was enough to lose several games. The Canucks simply swamped the Portland pitcher in that hopeless inning.

Manager Casey announced that he would change the remainder of the game after that fourth inning, and "Moore" got away with it in pretty fair shape.

"Cupid" Bawey would hit the ball every time he calls the target he would be a wonder. He announced that he would loosen a plank in the fence in the fourth, and he did. However, he hit no more after that.

Cartwright has been hitting some since his arrival in Portland. One can get an idea of this by glancing at the scores of the last three games.

"Cupid" Swain has a lame leg, and this retards him on the bases, as well as in running out hits. He did not get many yesterday, but he is likely to be noticed before the week is over.

Ed Kennedy put a finger out of commission in winding up his jaunt for three bases on his walling in the sixth. Doc Caron took Kennedy in hand and may have him in shape to play today.

Manager Dickson, of the Vancouver Club, is in favor of the Pacific Coast League circuit, of an eight-club league, which is the same thing, in Dickson's opinion. The Vancouver magnate thinks it is the only logical circuit, and in him Judge McCredie is a loyal supporter.

Vancouver secured but two hits off "Pitcher" Casey yesterday, and some of the "twirler's" friends are coaching him to stay with it. The season will soon be over and he can pitch his.

Al Caron had bad luck in the first inning again yesterday, when a couple of hits shuffled off his head and the Senators, Fitzgerald had the McCredie squad on his staff.

The Angels again lost, but this time to San Francisco. However, in their crippled condition that club is not likely to make much of a showing since being beaten by Oakland.

SACRAMENTO, SEPT. 7.—(Special.)

Portland donated a couple of runs to Sacramento in the opening inning today, and although several half-hearted attempts were made to score by both sides, the ball rang only twice. The Beavers did not seem to have overcome the hot spell in Los Angeles, where the sun poured down on them all degrees strong.

With two down in the first inning Gandil sent a grounder to Cooney, which seemed hardly worth out while beating out the ball and by the time he made the throw Gandil was safe. Myers came along with a hit to Johnson, which cut three against the bleachers in an unnecessary attempt to catch the man going to first. Gandil romped around toward home with Myers after him. Ort went to catch the latter at third, but threw the ball outside the grounds, letting the second run score.

A dispute arose over the ground rules because McCarthy let the base runner go more than an extra base on the throw to the bleachers.

Graney got the first for Portland in the fourth, but was caught trying to steal second. Ort and Spears attempted a rally on the bound of Spears fly hit the two Beavers advance a bag, but Caron could not win his own game, and he flew out to Flanagan. Shinn reached third base in the eighth on Eason's error, a stolen base and a hit, but he failed to fly to Speas held the score where it was. The score: 4

PITTSBURG TIES SERIES

CHICAGO PITCHERS HAMMERED OUT OF BOX.

Tinker and Chance Sent From Field for Arguing With Klem.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 7.—Pittsburg and Chicago are now on even terms in the series of games started in Chicago Sunday, the local winning today 4 to 3. The last game of the series will be played tomorrow. Chicago used three pitchers in a vain endeavor to stop the opposing team's batting streak.

Euselbach, who has been successful against Pittsburg, started the game for Chicago. He was relieved after three singles and a home run had been made off him in the second inning. Brown pitched in the second inning, but fared little better. Higginbotham finished the game for the visitors and was hit freely.

Abstein's home run in the second inning was the subject of an argument, in which all of the Chicago players took part. Tinker and Chance finally being ordered from the field by Umpire Klem. A ball hit into the left field bleachers, bounded out on the field, where Sheppard got it, and threw to second, holding the runner there. Klem allowed Abstein to take the other two bases.

Announcement was made today that Evers, who was put out of the afternoon game Monday, will be suspended for three days. Score:

Today--The Opening of Our New Corset Section COMMENCING ALSO A DEMONSTRATION OF The "Modart" Corset —the Sensation of the New York Madison Square Exhibit. We announce for this week the first demonstration outside of New York City of the "Modart" Corset—by Mrs. L. C. Redding—an expert corsetiere who is so favorably known to the women of Portland as well as other western cities. All the rigid requirements of the modern gowns are met in the "Modart" Corset—new this season. It is comfortable. It is symmetrical. It laces in front. It moulds the figure. It suppresses and confines without compression the surplus flesh of the back, hip and limbs. It permits the full chest development and unrestricted breathing. It establishes a correct poise, an artistic, attractive figure. It has front adjustment. It permits positive control and support of the abdomen. It is perfect fitting whether the wearer is standing or sitting. This is an exceedingly important feature. The "Modart Corset" is the only corset that fulfils every requirement. Mrs. Redding will be pleased to advise you as to the model best suited to your figure. THE CORSET SECTION, FIRST FLOOR.

Track Favorites Exhausted Before Race Starts—Gamblers Watched. NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Through the arrest of two men at the Sheepshead Bay racetrack, the owners of racehorses declare they have discovered a revival of the old system of "night riding." Ostend, a 2-year-old belonging to Walter S. House, was taken from his stable Sunday night and hidden on the training track to the point of exhaustion so that when he was led to the paddock to start in the race for which he was a prime favorite, he was utterly unfit to run. This practice was common a few years ago on Western and Canadian tracks. Extra guards have been placed about all stables at the Sheepshead Bay track. Published reports that racetrack gambling had been openly revived caused Governor Hughes to send four special representatives to the Sheepshead Bay track. The bookmakers had been warned that the Governor's special agents would be at the track and if there was any betting it was not apparent to the casual observer.
