OXEN HER TEAM IN 1853

Mrs. Mary Jane Wolverton Crossed Plains With Two Children.

Mrs. Mary Jane Wolverton, pioneer of 1863, who died at Monmouth, Polk County, last Monday, was born in New York, May 1, 1828, of Irish and German parents, and in early life removed to Iowa, where she became the wife of John Wolverton, November 25, 1847.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolverton started on the long journey to Oregon with ox teams on March 21, 1853, with two children, William Marshall, then 4 years old, now living in British Columbia, and Charles Edwin, then not quite 3 years old, now Judge Wolverton of the United States District Court of Oregon. They arrived at Monmouth December 15, 1853.

While on the plains, July 29, a second son was born, Bruce, who became a minister of the Christian church. He was the second pastor of the First Christian Church of Portland, organized in 1879. Another son, Otis Alfred, who died a year ago last November, was born in Polk County, May 10, 1861. Besides the children already mentioned, the following also survive Mrs. Wolverton: Grant Wolverton, Alberta, Canada; and Mrs. Josie Eby, of Spokane, Wash.

John Wolverton, husband of the departed pioneer woman, was born in Ohio, of English and Dutch ancestry. He lived a number of years in Illinois before removing to Iowa. His first American ancestor was Charles Wolverton, who came from England to America with William Penn in 1682. His occupation was that of farming. He died at Monmouth, December 30, 1902. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wol-verton were members of the Christian Church for many years.

Crooked Glasses
Only those familiar with the actions of lenses can fully realize the injurious effects of distorted spectacles. A very little change in position will often throw them entirely out of focus. A serious strain upon the eye is the result. Lenses should always be so adjusted that the eyes look exactly through their centers. Many a good pair of glasses give bad results because they are slightly bent out of shape. Just a touch would right them. We will straighten glasses free of charge for any person at any time. If the joints need straightening we will also attend to that. Bring them in as often as you like. If you are already a customer we will do it because you are. If you are not, we will do it because we want to get acquainted with you. We believe we will be some day.
