"STORE CLOTHES" DELAY

Delinquent Tailor Causes Wait While Finishing Explorer's Evening Suit—Rear-Admiral Schley Introduces Speaker.

phor Ravn, the Norwegian Consul, John S. Bradley was present, but did not speak.

In introducing Dr. Cook, Rear Admiral Schley said:

Cook's Behavior Praised. "Take all who have achieved similar success in other fields."

Cook is challenged by envy, which often proceeds from disappointment. But to all fair and just-minded people, there is only regret that any issue should have been raised over an achievement full enough of glory for both.

"Our guest's splendid behavior under these trying circumstances has attracted the commendation of his countrymen and has added innumerable hosts to his friendship. I believe, as president of the Arctic Club of America, upon their statements, that both Mr. Peary and Dr. Cook reached the Pole. I had their persistent courage. I believe, further, that these two gentlemen reached the Pole because they were willing to make these sacrifices in a region of such terrific dangers and such constant peril as made of material that does not bleach out in the wash. All honor to them."

Explorer Loudly Cheered. When Dr. Cook arose to speak, the entire assemblage stood, and the cheering continued for a full minute. Dr. Cook read his address, which was as follows:

This is one of the highest honors I ever hope to receive. You represent most of the Arctic explorers of America. Your welcome is the explorer's guarantee to the world—coming as it does from fellow Arctic men.

The key to rigid endeavor is substance. There is nothing in the world of the Arctic that is impossible to man if the animal force is supplied with adequate fuel. There is no obstacle too severe and no obstacle too great to surmount. No important expedition has ever returned because of unobtainable supplies or impossible weather. The exhausted food supply resulting from a limited means of transport, has been the most important factor in the success of the polar quest.

No Land at Pole. Now, gentlemen, about the Pole. We arrived April 21, 1909. We discovered new land along the 102nd meridian between the 84th and 85th parallel. Beyond this there was absolutely no life and no land. The ice was in large, heavy fields with few pressure lines. The drift was south of east, the wind was south of west. Clear weather was observed on nearly every day. These observations, combined with those at the Pole on the 21st and 22nd of April, are sufficient to guarantee our claim. When taken in connection with the general record, you do not require this. I can assure you that all the other records will come to you in the due course of events.
