

GAYNOR RESPECTS TIGER'S FEELINGS

Accepts Nomination Without Denouncing Tammany, as Many Expected.

WAY IS OPEN FOR HEARST

Editor Said He Would Accept If Gaynor Spared Tammany, but He Takes Day to Deliberate on the Nomination.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Justice William J. Gaynor today accepted the Democratic nomination for Mayor of New York. His brief speech in reply to the committee served also as an acceptance of the endorsements of a number of independent and semi-independent organizations whose representatives were present. Justice Gaynor's speech contained no attack on Tammany, which had been expected in some quarters.

Leaves Way Open to Hearst.

The omission was brought particularly to the public notice through a statement issued earlier in the day by William Hearst, who had declared that he would yield to the urging of his friends and run for Mayor on an independent ticket unless Justice Gaynor came out with a declaration of war against Tammany. Many anti-Tammany Democrats who have planned their faith to Justice Gaynor regarded this challenge as one which he would not refuse. But there was no denunciation of anybody in Mr. Gaynor's speech, except mildly of Mr. Barnard, the Republican candidate for Mayor, as a collector of campaign contributions.

Favors Liberal Policy.

"I resign my present office," said Mr. Gaynor, "only to dedicate and devote the next four years of my life to the service of the people of New York. This great city is made up of people of every race, belief and way of thinking. Let us live and act together without hostility, prejudice or uncharitableness."

Mr. Hearst, notified officially of the intention of his friends to run him as an independent majority candidate, said that he would give their recommendation his careful consideration and would reply definitely within 24 hours, either announcing his candidacy or definitely declining to accept.

TEST GAYNOR AS VOTE GETTER

Bitter Dose of Tammany, Which Hopes for Better Times.

BY LLOYD F. LONGERAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Justice William J. Gaynor, Tammany candidate for Mayor of New York, will have his first real chance to demonstrate next month whether or not he is the great vote-getter that his friends have always asserted.

Gaynor has twice been spoken of as a "grand candidate" for Mayor. Three times has he been the leading man for Governor, and would have been nominated in 1906 had it not been for the determined opposition of William Randolph Hearst. At the Denver convention last year, Gaynor had the center of the stage for the Vice-Presidential nomination, and came very near landing it, despite the lack of enthusiasm of the party. The same Tammany delegates who have now put him at the head of their local ticket, which they naturally regard as a far more important office than that of President of the party, elected him President, once when the voters were against "the ring," the second time as a candidate of all parties.

Gaynor has been a political figure for many years, but has never won a fight on his own merits. But he is a dandy organizer, and understands political conditions far better than some men who are regarded as experts.

Grew From Reporter to Lawyer.

Away back in the '70s Gaynor was a newspaper reporter, and found time to study law between assignments. Then he became Police Commissioner of the old town of New Lots, now a part of Brooklyn. He first won fame by fighting for William Ziegler against the stockholders who were trying to freeze him out of the baking powder company that he owned. Ziegler never forgot the work of the young lawyer, and when he died a few years ago, made Gaynor executor of his estate. From the fees of that office, Gaynor has become honestly and legitimately rich.

Gaynor, in his younger days, was an organization Democrat, and meekly did as he was told. At that time the Brooklyn leader was Hugh McLaughlin, who was even more of an autocrat than Charles F. Murphy is today. In 1902 Gaynor was a delegate to the judicial convention, and was brought enough to see that the star of the old boss was waning.

The original slate prepared carried on it the name of Thomas E. Pearsall. But after the meeting had opened, District Attorney Ridgway announced that there had been a change of programme, and that the delegates were expected to bow to "the wisdom of the leaders of the party." Then the name of Pearsall was dropped, and the name of Gaynor appeared on the list. Gaynor was elected to the position, which gave him the opportunity that he had been looking for. He arose in his place and remarked:

Gaynor Bolts and Wins.

"This is the last time that I will sit in a Democratic convention. Our will is about to be defeated because of a visit to Wiloughby street of certain individuals. Pearsall is the man that the voters want. He would honor the bench. My constituents demand his selection. I know that he will be defeated, but for the purpose of putting the delegates on record and seeing who are the men who own themselves, I place Mr. Pearsall as the nominee for the high office to which he is entitled."

Pearsall was defeated, and Gaynor walked out of the convention. To prove his political sagacity, it need only be said that the following year there was a fusion ticket, and the name of Gaynor appeared on it as the nominee for Justice of the Supreme Court. He was elected after a campaign that landed John V. McKane, the boss of Coney Island, in jail, entirely through the work of the candidate.

And the man Gaynor defeated for a seat on the bench was the same Pearsall who, only one short year before, Gaynor had lauded as the choice of his constituents for that high office. Enemies of Gaynor point to this as evidence that he is lacking in loyalty to his friends. For, they say, if he was willing to accept political ruin one year to stand by a friend, who can he expect to do the next year he ran against that friend and broke his heart by defeating him?

Why Many Dislike Gaynor.

Gaynor enjoys the distinction of being a popular man who is heartily disliked. He has few friends and fewer intimates. The Judges of the Supreme Court in the Brooklyn department, who are a pretty chummy lot, do not like Gaynor. He has not one single "judicial chum." The few Judges who have advocated his selection by Tammany are all in New York, and even they justify their recommendation on the ground of political expediency. Lawyers who practice in Brooklyn are almost unanimous in their dislike of Gaynor. They say that he is overbearing, selfish and always playing to the galleries. None of them charges that he is dishonest, but they assert that he is always ready to take the popular side of any question, regardless of law or justice. Jerome told the truth when he called Gaynor a "political judge."

Not Real Choice of Democrats.

In the convention that nominated him, there were not a dozen men who really wanted Gaynor named. Tammany's district leaders were practically in a state of revolt. Twenty of the 25 braved the wrath of Murphy and begged him, almost with tears in their eyes, not to force the nomination of a man who, they were convinced, would ruin them at any time that he deemed good for a play to the galleries. McCarren, of Brooklyn, frankly told his followers that he was powerless, and made the same statement on the floor of the convention. But Murphy and McCarren led the applause when the unanimous vote of the delegates was cast for the man who was not their real choice for McClellan's seat.

A West Side leader reflected the view of the "practical men" in the organization, when asked how he expected Gaynor would act toward himself and his followers.

"He will make a Governor out of us very much, because we have not got much now. But he can make us feel like hell, and I believe that he will certainly do it."

Gaynor for Governor Next.

There would be an open revolt in Tammany were it not for the fact that Murphy has secured the Governor's nomination. The judge's election means a year of starvation, to be followed by three years of plenty. He promises them that he will make a Governor out of them, and that they must not worry, no matter what may happen in the meantime.

"If Gaynor runs up hill and down the hill, he will be surprised," Murphy confided to some of the leaders who are close to him. "It will help him and cannot hurt us, for a good man will take his place in the City Hall."

Source of His Popularity.

But although those who know him best call him a "selfish fish," there is no denying Gaynor's popularity. You can find evidence of it everywhere. The only appointing element is the Knights of Columbus, and Murphy has reason to believe that they have been whipped into line, or that at least they will stand aloof from an active campaign against his candidate.

Gaynor is strong among that elusive element described as "labor." While he has not the hearty approval of many decisions which have met with favor among the working classes, and has been described as the "workingman's judge," he is also popular with what is known as the "liberal element," and believes that the saloons should be permitted to remain open on Sundays, at least on the quiet. And, matter how the church element may rage and orate, that is a mighty popular issue in this city. It was because Hughes was not "liberal" that he came so near being defeated last year, when only Taft saved him. The same issue beat the honest but chilly Seth Low.

All the cranks organizations in the city are lined up solidly behind Gaynor, and although they do not amount to much individually, they can pool a respectable vote in the aggregate. Then the independent voters of the town believe that Gaynor is a man who will institute wholesale reforms, and they are ready to give him a chance.

Supported for Opposite Motives.

The situation summed up in a few words is this:

The independents think that Gaynor is a man who will "do things," and work night and day to wipe out Tammany Hall. They believe that his one ambition is to make New York the kind of a city that you read about in books of the style of "Looking Backward."

Murphy sees in Gaynor a vote-getter who will land all the plums for the organization and sacrifice the interests of the people for the sake of being re-elected. He is the logical candidate for President.

And it must not be forgotten that, while the reformers are amateur politicians, Murphy is a professional, and never sits in a game unless he has first chance to mark the cards.

He hopes to see Gaynor in the City Hall on the first of next January. But he would be shocked and disappointed were he there on the following New Year's day.

For nobody realizes better than Murphy that on the year of a spectacular, resourceful enemy in the Mayor's chair is about all that his organization can stand and survive.

But he is convinced that "Gaynor's fight" will be a purely Chinese battle, and that the bombs he may throw will simply create a great deal of smoke and not cause any real harm. Whether or not he has received promises to that effect is not known.

One statement that Gaynor has made has created much amusement among those who know him. It was this:

"I do not think that I will appoint any campaign manager," he said, "because I scarcely know what use one would be. The truth is that I am an absolute novice in the routine of a political campaign, never having had anything to do with such things."

But the men who know him realize that Gaynor is the king of all campaign managers, and that he will direct his fight with more success than anybody else could. The truth is that a politician will tell you that the two greatest managers in the world, at least so far as we know in the East, are Theodore Roosevelt and William J. Gaynor. And a battle between those two would be a delight to students of political tactics.

COLD WATER ENDS BOILER

Wrong Valve Turned and Explosion
Quickly Follows.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—A boiler in the Bank building, at the corner of Ninth and Washington streets, was destroyed this morning, when a donkey engine turned cold water in it when it was hot. Walter Moriarty was building a fire under the boiler, and turned the wrong valve, permitting the water to escape.

When the fire had been going about ten minutes he discovered his mistake and attempted to turn the water off by turning another valve. The boiler burst and nearly frightened the engineer and Moriarty to death.

William Goodnight Dead.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—William Goodnight, aged 75, for years a resident of Battleground, Clark County, and three years a citizen of Vancouver, died this afternoon at 5 o'clock after a short illness. He was down town yesterday and registered for the Fall election. He complained that he was not feeling well. He is survived by seven sons, Senator Jacob Goodnight, of Lewis and Clark, Idaho, and Edward, Frank, William, James, Sylvester and Delbert Goodnight. One daughter, Mary, is not living.

AERIAL EXPERTS FLY IN ST. LOUIS

Glenn H. Curtiss Snaps Rudder on Third Trial in His Biplane.

TEAM WORK SPECTACULAR

Knabenshue and Beachey Thrill
Spectators by Two-Mile Flight
Side by Side—Osmont Tries
New Farman Ship and Falls.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Glenn H. Curtiss, who won international honors in aviation at Rheims, France, made three airplane flights here today. One was more than a quarter of a mile and the shortest of the three was about 220 yards. Curtiss' last performance of the day was cut short by his engine falling when he was about 25 feet from the ground. The machine, guided to an irregular landing place by a rudder guy snapped. The aviator said the machine would be ready for service tomorrow. Curtiss used a biplane with a 25-horsepower motor.

George Francis Osmont, who is here with the Farman biplane which won the endurance prize at Rheims, attempted three times at dusk to satisfy the crowd that he could fly. He circled the field several times but the audience refused to work and he could not leave the ground.

Knabenshue and Beachey thrilled the spectators by mounting simultaneously and flying about two miles side by side. Knabenshue left Beachey's airship in the rear, when the latter's motor became overheated. Knabenshue then swept over the park in a great circle.

When Curtiss took his machine from its tent today the mob was still undisciplined. After skimming the ground for 100 yards, he rose to a height of 40 feet, skirting a few trees, and made a perfect descent after going about 100 yards in 45 seconds. He made the run back under similar circumstances, landing near his tent without a jar.

The pageantry feature of today's centennial programme was an industrial parade. It illustrated with floats the progress of manufactures and commerce during the 100 years since its incorporation of St. Louis as a municipality.

REAL SPENDER HIT TOWN

WALLA WALLA WATCHES GOL-DEN SHOWERS FALL.

Henry C. Osterman, of Chicago, Is Man With Millions Who Gets Peevish If Others Spend.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 7.—Walla Walla is entertaining a fit companion for Monty Brewster in Henry C. Osterman, a Chicago multi-millionaire, president and general manager of the Osterman Manufacturing Company, freight-car builders, as well as stockholder in several other large corporations. He is scattering his money in this city much after the manner of a Monte Cristo.

During his short sojourn here he has already succeeded in getting away with nearly $5000, most of which he has squandered with the greatest recklessness. A daily visitor at the county fair, he keeps the band busy playing selections of his choosing, tendering it $30 after each selection, and never without having resolved $10 a piece for papers with instructions to keep the change, while his tips to bellhops and bootboys are equally liberal.

Whenever he goes he allows no other individual to spend any money, even going so far as to tear up a $10 bill one of his friends offered in payment for drinks at the bar, immediately handing the astonished man an equal amount in return.

Osterman came here Sunday in his big Knox touring car, being accompanied by Mrs. Osterman, W. M. Drennon, a business associate, and his chauffeur. The party is en route to Seattle, but their car is being overhauled at present, and in the meantime Osterman is hiding himself in a portion of his superfluous cash.

Osterman Repairs Cars.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Henry C. Osterman is president of the Osterman Manufacturing Company, of West Pullman, Ill., makers and repairers of cars, and lives at 634 Monroe avenue. He left Chicago two months ago for a trip through the West and at the Osterman residence tonight it was said he had been in Walla Walla for only a day or two. It was not known when he would return to Chicago. H. C. Delph, 2201 Kenmore avenue, of the Osterman company, he could not be reached tonight.

BALLOON VOYAGE THRILLS

(Continued From First Page.)

Breslau, throwing overboard the life-saver's mattress and the rest of our provisions. Gradually we continued to descend after reaching that altitude until 6 o'clock in the evening. With good equilibrium we managed to keep aloft until 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, without throwing away ballast.

Land Among Pine Trees.

"The balloon landed and became wedged between pine trees in the forest of Gustave. We waited until 5:30 before deflating and then searched for help. We found peasants, one of whom had been in America and spoke a little English. With their aid we loaded the balloon on carts.

"While this was in progress a forest guard wretchedly killed one of the peasant's dogs, arousing indignation. We accompanied the owner to the proprietor of the estate to lodge a complaint, and found a peasant woman speaking a little French, who registered in the logbook an entry of our landing. While the peasants were conveying the balloon to Ostrolenko the woman gave us a primitive meal of potatoes and water.

"On our arrival at Ostrolenko we were stopped by the police, who took us together with the balloon, to the station, where we remained until instructions were received from St. Petersburg for our release. We were treated excellently."

Boll Weevil to Be Fumigated.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Oct. 7.—(Spe-

Woodard, Clarke & Co.

Friday Bargain Sale

EXTRA SPECIAL FEATURES

500 FOUNTAIN PENS, REG. $1.50, NOW 98c

This is not a special sale pen; it's our reg. $1.50 guarantee Fountain Pen. If it fails, bring it back.

$1 SKINS 89c

SKINS FOR BURNING, just the size for table mats, in assorted colors. Regular price $1.00, Friday... 89c

BURNING OUTFITS, guaranteed complete in every detail (lessons free). Regularly $2.00, Friday... $1.19

25c Panels, new designs, an endless variety... 12 1/2c

15c Panels, new designs, an endless variety... 7 1/2c

70c Tabourettes, 39 inches high, 3 legs, 1" inch circular top, special design... 35c

DRUG BARGAINS

15c pound Borax... 9c
35c pound Sugar Milk, Merck... 23c
10c pound Whiting... 5c
50c pound Pure Cream Tartar... 35c
10c package Rochelle Salts... 6c
25c bottle Spirits Camphor... 14c
10c bottle Bay Rum and Glycerine... 6c
20c pint Denatured Alcohol... 13c
15c pound Paraffin... 9c
$1.00 Earthquake Carpet and Rug Cleaner... 69c

WICKER AND REED SUITCASES and Bags—strong, durable, well made, fitted with good locks, bolts and straps; 1/4 Off values from $1.50 to $15.00 each, now on sale at... 79c
New Fall Handbags, latest designs and shapes, in green, blue, black, tan and brown, with outside pockets and inside purse. Values to $2.50, today...

CHINA W'RE

Imported Cups and Saucers, great variety of designs, some very new and exclusive shapes, also a few after-dinner cups, values to 90c... 25c

Imported Sugars and Creamers, artistic patterns, new shapes, about 28 pair in all; values to 75c, Friday... 25c

About 85 pieces assorted odds and ends, large variety of different cuts in our Cut Glass department, Friday and Saturday, on sale at ONE-HALF PRICE.

BRISTLE GOODS

75c unbleached, stiff bristle Hair Brush... 63c
$1.00 unbleached, small, stiff, gentlemen's Hair Brush... 84c
$1.25 Foxwood Hair Brush, 11-row, solid back... 97c
$2.00 black Ebony Hair Brushes... $1.68
$2.50 Adams (299) Hair Brush, long bristles... $1.98
15c Tooth Brush... 11c
25c Tooth Brush, assorted patterns... 19c
35c Kleanwell Tooth Brush... 25c
40c Dr. Chance Tooth Brush... 29c
35c Flexible Comb, something new... 25c
50c Combs... 25c
75c Princess Combs, with handle... 65c
75c to $1.00 Horn Combs... 50c
25c Hand Brush... 19c
$1.50 Kent Hand Brush, will never come out or break down... $1.25
25c Cloth Brush... 13c
35c Infant Tooth Brush... 17c
$4 boys' Ebony and Foxwood Military Brush... $3.25
$6 Silver Military Hair Brush... $4.00

Antique gold frames, with hand-laid corners, glass size 6x8 inches, with an assortment of heads and figures; many new subjects. Regular 50c each. Special today and Saturday... 27c

TOILET SECTION

50c Charles Flesh Food... 37c
25c Cubator Cream... 17c
50c La Blache Powder... 37c
25c Swandown Face Powder... 17c
25c Graves' Tooth Powder, 2 for... 25c
50c Pebecco Tooth Paste... 37c
25c Parker's Tar Soap... 17c
10c Cake Bon Ami... 7c
20c Baker's Ideal Soap, 3 for... 25c
$1.00 Scheffler's Hair Dye... 65c

ART SECTION

On Friday and Saturday we will sell for 48c each a splendid assortment of Landscapes, Woodlands, Marines and similar subjects; glass size 12x16 inches; each picture in colors; has 2-inch mat with cut opening and 1 1/2-inch gold frame, with handsome metal corner ornaments; splendid value at $1, 2 days only... 48c
200 Pictures, each 12x24 inches glass size. Subjects are facsimiles of pictures by splendid artists, each in their original colors. They include landscapes, marines, woodlands, harvest scenes, moonlight and many others. Each picture fitted with 2 1/2-inch white mat with cut opening, and 1 1/2-inch frame, gold and mission. Splendid value at $2; two days only... 95c

SUNDRIES

Pair Goldfish, value 50c, and 50c Fish Bowl, both for... 59c
$1.25 Alternating Alarm Clock... 77c
$3.00 plate-glass Bathroom Shelf, nickel-plated trimmings... $1.98
$10 Chafing Dish and Stove... $6.90
$1 Alcohol Curling Iron Heaters... 48c
25c Celluloid Pocket Mirrors... 15c
$2.50 Real Safety Razors... $1.88
$2.00 Gaylor Strop for Gillette Blades... 98c
$2.00 Self-Honing Strops... 97c
$100 Pocket Knives... 69c
35c Shaving Brush... 17c
65c long-handled Bath Brush... 44c

STATIONERY

Fancy Box Paper... 21c
Hurb's Pound Paper... 19c
Envelopes to Match... 9c
25c Eaton Hurlbut's Louise Tablets... 14c
Wax Paper for Luncheons, package Regular 35c Postcard Albums... 23c
All our higher-priced albums, 25 per cent off.
With each deck of playing cards we give a dozen score cards free of charge.

500 Pictures, glass size 11x14-inch, in inch gilt frames, ornamental corners; subjects, variety of heads, figures, landscapes, etc.; each mounted on 3-in. mat; reg. value 50c, today and Saturday... 27c

CELEBRITIES SEE HARVARD

Representatives of Foreign Colleges
Meet New President.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Having participated in the induction into office of a new president of Harvard University, representatives of the 100 institutions for higher education in this and other countries met in Sanders Theater today to be presented formally to the newly inaugurated president, Abbot Lawrence Lowell, and the governing bodies and faculty of Harvard. This meeting was open to the undergraduates, the alumni and their friends, and the brief addresses were made by representatives of the delegates.

In the procession from Memorial Hall to Sanders Theater, all of the delegates wore academic costumes. A luncheon given to the alumni by the Harvard Club at the Colonial Club, a reception and luncheon to the delegates and members of the faculty, by President and Mrs. Lowell in the faculty-room, University Hall, followed by an afternoon tea at the medical school in Boston, open to delegates, students, alumni, members of faculties and government, with their friends, were included in the afternoon programme.

The inauguration festivities were concluded and a dinner was given at the Harvard Union by the president and followers of Harvard, in honor of the delegates of other universities, colleges and learned societies.

The delegates of the 100 institutions for higher education in this and other countries met in Sanders Theater today to be presented formally to the newly inaugurated president, Abbot Lawrence Lowell, and the governing bodies and faculty of Harvard. This meeting was open to the undergraduates, the alumni and their friends, and the brief addresses were made by representatives of the delegates.

In the procession from Memorial Hall to Sanders Theater, all of the delegates wore academic costumes. A luncheon given to the alumni by the Harvard Club at the Colonial Club, a reception and luncheon to the delegates and members of the faculty, by President and Mrs. Lowell in the faculty-room, University Hall, followed by an afternoon tea at the medical school in Boston, open to delegates, students, alumni, members of faculties and government, with their friends, were included in the afternoon programme.

The inauguration festivities were concluded and a dinner was given at the Harvard Union by the president and followers of Harvard, in honor of the delegates of other universities, colleges and learned societies.

The delegates of the 100 institutions for higher education in this and other countries met in Sanders Theater today to be presented formally to the newly inaugurated president, Abbot Lawrence Lowell, and the governing bodies and faculty of Harvard. This meeting was open to the undergraduates, the alumni and their friends, and the brief addresses were made by representatives of the delegates.

In the procession from Memorial Hall to Sanders Theater, all of the delegates wore academic costumes. A luncheon given to the alumni by the Harvard Club at the Colonial Club, a reception and luncheon to the delegates and members of the faculty, by President and Mrs. Lowell in the faculty-room, University Hall, followed by an afternoon tea at the medical school in Boston, open to delegates, students, alumni, members of faculties and government, with their friends, were included in the afternoon programme.

The inauguration festivities were concluded and a dinner was given at the Harvard Union by the president and followers of Harvard, in honor of the delegates of other universities, colleges and learned societies.

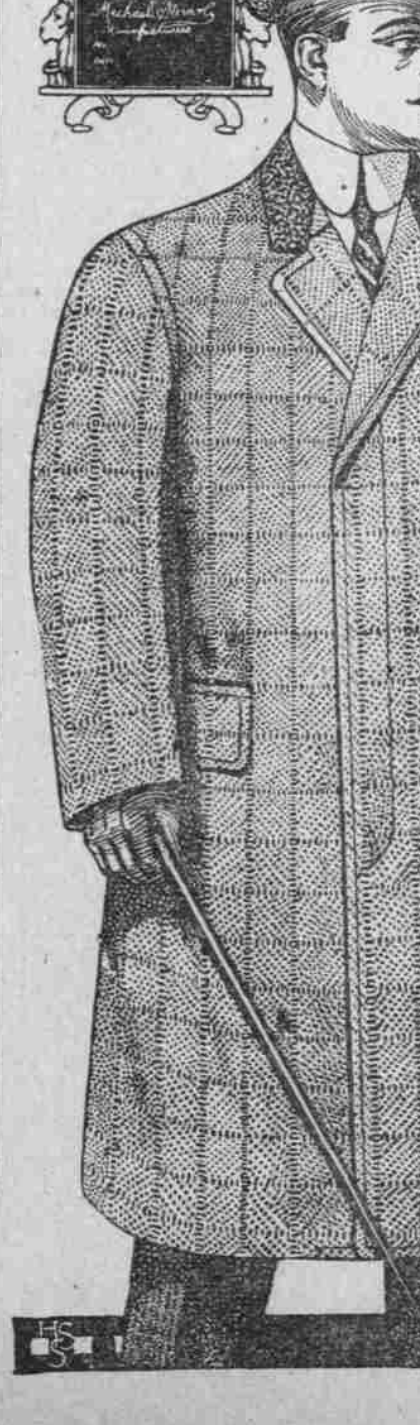

The delegates of the 100 institutions for higher education in this and other countries met in Sanders Theater today to be presented formally to the newly inaugurated president, Abbot Lawrence Lowell, and the governing bodies and faculty of Harvard. This meeting was open to the undergraduates, the alumni and their friends, and the brief addresses were made by representatives of the delegates.

In the procession from Memorial Hall to Sanders Theater, all of the delegates wore academic costumes. A luncheon given to the alumni by the Harvard Club at the Colonial Club, a reception and luncheon to the delegates and members of the faculty, by President and Mrs. Lowell in the faculty-room, University Hall, followed by an afternoon tea at the medical school in Boston, open to delegates, students, alumni, members of faculties and government, with their friends, were included in the afternoon programme.

will retain its original style, fit and attractive appearance for at least two seasons, because the fabrics are tested, the styles are advanced yet conservative and the tailoring is a matter of skilled and intelligent care. That's why Michaels Stern CLOTHES are the choice of discriminating dressers. They have satisfied thousands. They will satisfy you.

OUR Style book is full of good pictures and interesting suggestions for men who value personal appearance as a business and social asset. It will be sent to you on request.

Michaels Stern Suit or Overcoat

will retain its original style, fit and attractive appearance for at least two seasons, because the fabrics are tested, the styles are advanced yet conservative and the tailoring is a matter of skilled and intelligent care. That's why Michaels Stern CLOTHES are the choice of discriminating dressers. They have satisfied thousands. They will satisfy you.

OUR Style book is full of good pictures and interesting suggestions for men who value personal appearance as a business and social asset. It will be sent to you on request.

Michaels Stern
& Co. Rochester