a prominent fruitgrower near Oak Grove, on the Oregon City carline, has decided he will go into the cultivation of nuts on a large scale. He has been experimenting in raising nuts on his farm and had samples on exhibit at the recent fair held at Oak Grove. A year ago he raised 20 bushels of butter nuts on his Oak Grove farm, but this year the yield was not so large. It has been demon strated that nut trees can be grown by strated that nut trees can be grown in this country. Raiston Moore, an Oak Grove boy, is engaged in raising pea-nuts, and is succeeding well. Markham, a well-dressed young man who could give the police no satisfactory account of his antecedents, was arrested yesterday afternoon for shoplifting and is in the City Jall awaiting a hearing before the Municipal Judge, Markham entered the fur store of Schumacher & at 209 Madison street, yesterday afternoon and sending the proprietor into a rear room on an errand, picked up a fur neck piece valued at $15 and hid it under his coat. The bulky appearance of his clothing attracted the attention of the storekeeper, and Markham was seized and held until the arrival of the police. And held until the arrival of the police.

Franchise is Recommended.—The street committee of the City Council yesterday afternoon gave final consideration to the proposed franchise for a track down East Third street, from East Burnside street to Hawthorne avenue, and it is recommended to the Council for passage, with minor amendments. It will be acted upon next Wednesday by the Council. It is sought by the O. R. & N. Council of the contains a common-user clause, which will entitle all commercial roads to its use.

Board of Education of School District No. 1 finds itself confronted with a possible deficit in its current expense account for the year of $50,000, which will have to be provided for in next year's levy. The deficit would be greater but for the fact that during the year the district has received from the sale of real estate about $12,000 more than it was estimated the same property would bring.

Anonymous Burglary Reported. A housebreaking on the Linnton road was reported to Sheriff Stevens late yesterday afternoon, but the people making the complaint failed to give their names, or the location of the place broken into. #### RATS GNAW BOY HOBOS

Two Youthful Adventurers Taken in Charge by Court.

Found living in a little shanty of their own construction under the approach to of publishing these poems. Following his the old Madison-street bridge, Archie camp and Richard James, two youthful that the club had endeavored to get posadventurers, were found and arrested yesterday morning by Patrolmen Lillis and Abbott, and turned over to the juvenile authorities. Archie sald he was 12 years old and Richard said he was 10. Accom-panied by a little mongret dog, they had occupied their rough shelter for several nights and had lived in the daytime by catching fish from the river and seiling it to Chinese. Coffee and doughnuts comprised their bill of fare principally, they Archie said his home was in Salem, Archle said his home was in Salem, but that his mother had come to Portland and was working in a bakery. She had rooms at 171 Madison street. Richard was a resi hobo, having come to Portland all alone by foot from La Grande, walking along the railroad track, he said. They had met and agreed to start out in life for themselves. Somewhere they secured a blanket and with this single covering they slept in their rude little house for two or three nights. The noise made by hammering their shack together house for two or three nights. The noise made by hammering their shack together attracted the attention of passerby and it was reported to the police. When the officers arrived, a large number of rats which had been inside the shack scampered away, and both boys showed signs on their ears and hands of having been nibbled at by the rodents during their sleep. meep.

BOARD OF EDUCATION ACTS

Evening Schools Will Be Started as Experiment and Continued if Successful-School Building Is Sold to Trust Company.

Members of the Board of Education at a meeting yesterday voted to establish a night industrial school which will hold its first session in the Atkinson building next Monday night. Two-hour serators, from 7:30 until 3:30 o'clock, will be held every night during the week. The same courses will be taught as in the day industrial school. The same instructors have been employed and their compansation will be the same rate for the two hours as they are paid for day work.

The Board decided to install the night heal as a conclusion. If the attendschool as an experiment. If the attend-ance justifies, the school will be con-tinued throughout the Winter months but it has been started with the understanding between the instructors and the members of the Board that the contract may be discontinued at the pleasure of the directors. OREGON'S COMMERCIAL LITER-ARY WHEELS ARE CLOGGED.

Professor Horner Tells How Big Book Printing Houses Would Foster Fame of Authors.

Oregon's need of a large publishing house, where the literature of the state may be printed and its sale promoted, was set forth in a lecture delivered by John B. Horner, professor of history and political science in the Oregon Agricultural College, before the Women's Club of Portland yesterday afternoon.

Professor Horner's address was on "Oregon Idterature." In which be called. ttention to the general lack of knowl-dge of the number of authors who are from Oregon.

The value of Sam L. Simpson's poems to the state, if they should be collected and published in book form, was pointed out by the speaker, who then suggested that the Women's Club take up the task session of the peems to have them published, but the late author's sister had had them copyrighted and would not give

"Some great book publishing firm," said Professor Horner, "such as may be found in the East, ought to take hold of Simp-son's poems. But while Oregon is big enough to afford many book stores, we enough to afford many book stores, we have no book publishing house, such as they have had in the East for a half century. Hence the commercial wheels of literature are comparatively clogged, and will remain so until some of our local Appletons or Harpers or Houghtons will patriotically care for Oregon, and our better authors will continue eastward for market, or permit our literature, like our market, or permit our literature, like our lands, to pass out of touch, ere its value dawns upon the mapy."

The speaker reviewed the lives and works of the better known Oregon au-thors, such as Joaquin Miller, Edwin Markham, Mrs. Eva Emery Dye and Mrs. Ella Higginson, and illustrated his talk with more than 70 stereopticon views. Professor Horner is a close personal friend of Joaquin Miller, and he gave a glimpse into the life of the poet by quoting him as saying that Miller's wife although he was divorced from her, had been an Inspiration to him.

"Though their separation was long." said Professor Horner, "a sorrow to both, and the flowers have blossomed for years over the grave of the poetess. . . . the soul of the beautiful bride, whom the poet wooded and won in the wilds of the Coquille so long ago, shines in all his lines and brightens all his pages."
