

LATHAM'S DARING TERRIFIES CROWD

French Aviator Sends Monoplane in the Teeth of Strong Wind.

FLIES 100 MILES AN HOUR

Breathless Throng Implores Daring Man to Descend—His Machine Is Nearly Swept to Sea—Ship in Control All Way.

BLACKFOOT, Oct. 22.—The capabilities of the aeroplane in the hands of a daring pilot were demonstrated today when Hubert Latham, the French aviator, gave an exhibition that first entertained and then terrified the spectators.

In the monoplane Latham battled against a gale blowing 30 miles an hour and he twice circled the course. As the machine struggled in the teeth of the gale it appeared at times to stand still in the air. When, however, Latham came about in the wind the monoplane was driven at a rate estimated to be between 80 and 100 miles an hour.

At one time he barely escaped being carried out to sea, and the spectators ceased to cheer and besought the aviator to come down. When Latham did alight he was not permitted to attempt a further flight while the high wind continued.

WRIGHT MAY FLY 500 MILES

Aviator Says Airships Safer Than Autos—Motors Improving.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Orville Wright has outlined his views on the subject of mechanical flight.

"There is not as much danger in flying as there is in automobile racing," he said. "We now turn out motors that will run regularly for a short time 40 times out of 50, and in 30 years, or five years or even two years, I think there will be an aeroplane motor absolutely reliable."

"We will soon build a machine for speed, to be used with our present motor, to show what can be done. It will go faster than any machine you have seen over here."

"How far can you fly in one of your present machines?" he was asked.

"In Berlin," he answered, "I took up as a passenger a man who weighed 225 pounds. I had 75 pounds of gasoline on board. I could replace the weight of the man with gasoline and that would give me 300 miles of fuel. With that I could fly 300 miles."

"Yes, anyone who can run an automobile can fly. It is not nearly as difficult or dangerous as automobile racing."

CODY RENOUNCES AMERICA
Aviator Swears Allegiance to King Edward—Teaching Flight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Captain S. F. Cody, the American aviator, who has been teaching British army officers how to fly, has renounced his American citizenship and taken out naturalization papers as a British subject, according to a message received here from Doncaster, England, where he is attending an airship meeting.

A large crowd cheered Cody when he was given his naturalization papers, but he refused to lower the American flag which was flying from his headquarters. It was said some time ago that Cody was informed that he would have to become a British subject if he desired to hold his position there.

OCEANIC NOT CONTROLLED
Steamship Company Denies John D. Spreckels Dictates Policy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—The Oceanic Steamship Company filed an answer today to the suit of Rudolph and Claus A. Spreckels asking for the removal of the Union Trust Company as trustee for the bond issue of the steamship company.

The answer denies all the allegations in the complaint, and says that neither John D. Spreckels nor the John D. Spreckels Company ever controlled either the Oceanic Steamship Company or the Union Trust Company. It is further asserted that the appointment of the trust company as trustee was sanctioned by the late Claus Spreckels and by C. A. Spreckels, now deceased.

This contest is one of the many arising over the will of the late Claus Spreckels.

LIVE HEALER SAYS HE IS SCHLATTER

NEW ONE OFFERS PROOF

Documentary Evidence on Hand to Back Up His Claims—Gotham's "Divine Healer" Living With His Wife Using "Powers."

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A "divine healer" who has been in this city for the last five weeks announced tonight that he is the original Francis Schlatter, who was reported to have died in Hastings, Neb., October 21. He declared that he has abundant documentary evidence to substantiate his claims.

"It was undoubtedly Charles M. McLean, whom I know well, who died in Hastings," said Schlatter tonight. The healer told of landing in the United States in 1902, of the Denver crusade in 1905 and of the experience in the New Mexico desert when Schlatter and his horse were supposed to have perished. He declared the horse died and that he continued his journey on foot.

The man came to this city through what he terms "divine guidance," and since his arrival has been living in practical seclusion, although it is known that he has brought his "healing powers" into service on different occasions. He is living with his wife, formerly Mrs. L. V. Comer, of Alabama.

Schlatter Dead Long Years
News Writer Offers Inside Light on "Healer" Controversy.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Arthur R. Hinton, a newspaper man who formerly lived in New Mexico, tells in an article in the Times of the death of Francis Schlatter, the "healer," and casts doubt upon the claim of the man who recently died in Nebraska, who was known as "Francis Schlatter."

Real Healer Long Dead.
"The real Schlatter died on the range of Northern Chihuahua, Mexico. He appeared in New Mexico years ago, and made a great sensation at Albuquerque by many alleged miraculous cures that were testified to by many persons who were unable to explain them."

"After a time he left Albuquerque, going south on the railroad. His mount was a gray animal of somewhat striking appearance. At various points he was seen and spoken to by persons until he left for Los Angeles, Southwest New Mexico. After that he was never seen alive."

HEALER'S REAL NAME KNOWN
Chicago Man Says Francis Schlatter Was Charles McLean.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—The real name of Francis Schlatter, who died at Hastings, Neb., was stated by David MacNaughton today to be Charles McLean. MacNaughton has known the alleged healer for 35 years.

Mr. MacNaughton said: "I have known Schlatter, or more properly, McLean, for 35 years. He was from the Highland section of Scotland, and his family and mine were friends in the old country. Every time he came to Chicago during the last 10 years, it was with him much of the time. He used to pat me on the shoulder and declare I was the one best friend, and that when he died, he would leave me a million. I don't know just how much money he had. He always seemed to be well supplied with funds and had a number of jewels."

MacNaughton said he would probably go to Hastings to take charge of the body.

IDENTITY IS UP TO DENVER
Men Who Knew Schlatter Will Be Called Upon.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 22.—Denver will be called upon to identify Francis Schlatter, who died here Thursday, as the divine healer, who 15 years ago, some would say, transpired the "miraculous" cures of the blind, and a flash of the body of the supposed divine healer was taken in the local morgue and sent to Denver.

A careful examination of the dead man's effects seems to bear out the statements Schlatter made before his death. To Dr. E. A. Weir, City Physician, Schlatter protested that he was the original divine healer. Apparently he expected to die, as he told the physician that in case he should not recover, to notify David MacNaughton, of Chicago, a dear friend. A telegram has been sent to Dr. MacNaughton.
