PORTLAND MANAGER TALKS

Has Ample Backing for Enterprise of Large Dimensions-Agreement for Enlargement of Seward Hotel Tentative.

H. C. Bowers, manager of the Portland Hotel, announced definitely last night that he was endeavoring to secure in Portland, and said further that a tentative agreement had been reached be tween himself and Gus Rosenblatt, owner of the Seward Hotel, for a hotel on that of the Seward Flote, for a hotel of that and adjoining property. "Yes. I want a hotel of my own." said Mr. Bowers. "I have wanted one for ten years and only now since the option was taken by the Normans on the Portland Hotel, have I undertaken any kind of an effort to get one for myself. It is of an effort to get one for myself. It is true that I was approached by Mr. Rosenblatt and he asked me if I would consider a proposition for the building of a hotel on the adjoining property to the Seward Hotel with the Seward in-cluded in the property. I told him I would. Let him go ahead and arrange the details and I will take care of my end within six hours. within six hours.

"Can I get the backing? Instantly, I do not know how far Mr. Rosenblatt has gone ahead with any hotel propo-sition, but as I understand it no op-tions have been taken on the Cooke property to the west of the Seward Hotel, nor on the Armstrong property. But if Mr. Rosenblatt or any one else comes to me with a hotel proposition which looks feasible. I will sign up with him on the spot. I do not mean to say that the idea advanced by Mr. Rosenblatt is just what I want but he asked me whether I would consider a proposition and I told him I would.

"I am in no position to go shead and make plans for myself, being under con-tract with the Portland Hotel Company for four years as yet. That contract, however, was made with the old company, the Corbetts and their associates I mean, and it may be that now I would be released. I do not know the exact plans of the new owners of the Portland Hotel, but I understand I am to be retained. Now, under such conditions, if a plan for a hotel were presented to me which appealed I would consider it and which appealed I would consider it and then go to the Normans and tell them of what I had in view. It may be that my contract would not be binding in the light of the recent transfer but I doubt whether it is even necessary to go into that.

"As to securing a hotel for myself. I want to say that it is something that I have always wanted. I like the Portland Hotel. I have been here for many years and have made a home of it and have become attached to it, but now I want something better: I want to be in business for myself. At that, I am the business for myself. At that, I am the highest paid hotel manager in the United States. I have no complaint to make on that score, but I really believe that I can do better for myself by working for my own interests.

"I am friendly with the Normans and at all times have been. That will have nothing to do with any change. But I want it understood that any plans for a hotel must come, not from me but from persons not connected with the hotel in persons not connected with the notes in any way. Then, when the plans are all worked out, I would be able to produce my backing and take over the propo-sition. As to Mr. Rosenbiatt's plan, I do not know how far the details have been carried, but I would judge not far been carried, but I would judge not lan enough for them to be given publicity. But I do not want it understood that any definite agreement has been arrived at between Mr. Rosenblatt and myself. Any which he offered were plans which he offered were merely tentative and were the result of his coming to me and asking if I would consider a deal for the erection of a 14-story hotel at Eleventh and Alder streets and I told him that I would consider it if it could be arranged on a business basis. I would tell anyone else the same thing."

She has a voice and stage presence; she is natural and sings as easily, apparently, as she breathes. Her voice is soft as velvet in every tone and of liquid beauty and clarity."
