Ellis Asks Department to Investigate Befere Approving Site Picked.

PLANS SENT TEN DAYS AGO

Congressman and Bourne Urged by Clarno and Other Opponents of Relocation of Span to Act-O'Brien Surprised.

PENDLETON, Or., Oct. 31 .- (Special.). -Congressman Ellis says he knows nothing of any new objections to the proposed site of the O. R. & N. bridge and does not know what action the Government will take in the matter. says the only action taken by himself concerning the subject was last July, before he left Washington, when, in response to a big petition forwarded to him by Francis Clarno, he requested the department to make a thorough investigation before approv-

Ing the site.

It was stated in the Portland petition that the construction of the bridge at the point selected would greatly damage the harbor, and the petitioners protested against the railroad company being permitted to build the bridge at that point.

Until two days ago Congressman Ellis said he had not had any information whatever on the subject. Two days ago he received a message from the department telling him that if he would call upon Engineer Cavanaugh that official would furnish him with the report which he had prepared regard-ing the bridge and would inform him as to the present status of the sisua-tion. Mr. Ellis has not had an opportunity to see Engineer Cavanaugh as

Final approval by the War Depart-ment at Washington of the plans for ment at Washington of the plans for the O. R. & N. Company's new steel bridge across the Willamette River in this city at a point two blocks south of the present structure is being held up through the efforts of a small number of protesting propertyowners. While Francis J. Clarno, one of the principal complainants, would not admit it yesterday, those opposing the relecation of the bridge have enlisted the services of Senator Bourne and Representative Senator Bourne and the Senator Bourne and the Ellis to insist upon recognition of their objections by the officials at Washington. A dispatch from Washington published yesterday announced that Bourne and Ellis had asked the department to and Ellis had asked the department to defer final action on the application of the railroad company until they could be given a bearing.

The plans for the proposed new bridge, accompanied by numerous affidavits recommending approval, were forwarded to the War Department by the United States Engineers in this city about 18 days ago. These documents had been preceded by another grist of affidavits opposing the relocation of the bridge, prepared by protesting propertyowners. It was expected that the War Department would pecied that the War Department would render its decision early, and for that reason the announcement that the ap-plication of the railroad company was to be held up further came as a sur-prise, particularly to O. R. & N. offi-cials, who are desirous of having the plans either approved or rejected as soon as possible, that they may begin construction of the $1,000,000 structure make other arrangements for bridg-up in the consideration by the depart-ment of our application to build a new steel bridge across the Willamette is a surprise to us," said General Manager O'Brien of the Harriman lines, yester-day. "When the plans for the bridge and affidavits supporting the new loca-tion were forwarded to Washington 10 days ago, we urged an early decision The railroad company must have an-other bridge for the operation of its trains across the river, and we are de-sirous of beginning work on the improvement just as soon as our applica-tion can be acted upon favorably. So far as we have been able to learn, the only objection to the structure at the proposed location about two blocks south of the site of the bridge now used, comes from a few owners of property at the east end of the present property at the east end of the present structure.

"I will not say that we have interested Senator Bourns and Representative Ellis in our fight against the relocation of the O. R. & N. bridge," said Mr. Clarno, yesterday, "but if they are going to assist us they are surely engaged in a noble work. After the representatives of the railroad company and the objecting preparativements had and the objecting propertyowners had been heard by the United States Engi-neers in Portland, the O. R. & N. peo-ple obtained additional affidavits which were forwarded to Washington in sup-port of their application. One of these affidavits consisted of a comprehensive argument by G. W. Boschke, chief en-gineer for the O. R. & N., favoring the gineer for the O. R. & N., favoring the proposed new location for the bridge. Another was furnished by Captain A. L. Pease, who undertook to refute the affidavits of 27 pilots and steamship men operating on the Williamette which we had secured, and in which the affiants all testified that the building of the railroad bridge at the point named in the application would interfere seriously with navigation on the viver.

"From our investigation we have satisfied ourselves that the demand for ished ourselves that the demand for relocating the bridge does not come from the O. R. & N. people, who, we have been given to understand, would be willing to replace the bridge now used instead of building at another point mearly two blocks south. As a matter of fact, the owners of about 46 blocks of unimproved property on the East Side, where the proposed new bridge would connect with the land, are the influences which are demandare the influences which are demand-ing the relocation of the bridge. If they can get the bridge erected at that location it means that their property will increase in valuation by not less than $1,000,000. We maintain that in our fight against the relocation of the bridge we have at heart the material interests of the city, and more particularly the conserving of the harbor rather than the selfish interests of a small group of propertyowners."

Christian Brothers' Bazaar Comes to Successful Close.

The six days' bazaar for the benefit of the Christian Brothers' Business College, Grand avenue and Clackamas street, class.

came to a close Saturday night, having been in every way a success. The barsar room was crowded with people at the closing hours Saturday night, while the Alumni Hali, on the top floor, was occupled by more than 30 couples, where the Halloween ball was held. With the exception of a plane and gold watch, all articles in the booths were disposed of to advantage. No report on the receipts has been made.

The contest for the President Taft flag was won by the Alumni Association of the Christian Brothers' Business College. The contestants finished in the following order: Alumni Association, Elika Lodge, Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, St. Joseph's Society. Catholic Young Men's Club.

Mrs. James Walls won the gold watch presented by Mrs. Patrick Dugiass for the most popular lady Forester. Mrs. Walls is chief ranger for Portland Foresters and president of the Christian Brothers' College Barsar Association.

Portland has grown so fast and there are so many valuable agencies at work for the guilifing of the community, and such a wealth of little known industrial and commercial development going on, that very few of oug citizens know anything about what is taking place within the territory known as the city of Portland."

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher urged his people to attend the meetings of the institute. "A city has two dangers," he said. ## MILK FAMINE, FEAR

Dealers Say Rigid Rules Might Divert Supply.

OTHER COUNTIES SOURCE

Three Out of Four Creamerymen Assert Portland Must Depend on Dairies Located Outside of Multnomah.

Dealers in cream and milk almost unanimously agree with State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bailey that fourfifths of Portland's milk supply comes side of Multnomah. They also are a uni in saying that the extent to which the city's supply of milk will be curtailed depends entirely on the extent to which the provisions of the state laws and the city ordinance, requiring inspection of all dairies, are enforced. A rigid enforce ment of these statutes, aver the dealers will so diminish the supply of the city that a milk famine will not only result, but a great many dealers who are engaged largely in retailing milk will be put out of business.

Out of four prominent local milk dealers interviewed yesterday, only one dissented from the foregoing conclusions. Walter C. Dey, of the Washington Creamery Company, was the exception. It is the opinion of Mr. Dey that fully two-thirds of the milk supply of this city is furnished by approximately 125 dalrymen residing within a radius of a few miles of Portland and all of them in Multnomah County.

No Famine, Says Dev.

"We procure our supply of milk almost entirely from the Scappoose district, considerable of it coming from dairymen across the Columbia County line," said Mr. Dey yesterday. "The Portland Dairy Association obtains its milk almost wholly from the Pairview district and get their supply from dairymen in other satisfied that there is no danger of a milk famine, no matter flow rigorously milk famine, no matter flow rigorously the inspection laws are enforced. I believe a sufficient number of dairies in Multnomah County can meet the required inspection as to sanitary conditions so that the total supply of milk furnished this city will not be curtailed seriously."

"There is no question but that a large proportion of Portland's milk supply comes from counties outside of Multnomah," said Arthur F. Bickford, manager of the Hazelwood Cream Company. "A rigid enforcement of the laws requiring the inspection of dairies is certain to drive this milk supply away from Portland. These non-resident dairymen are not compelled to ship their milk to this city. Much of the milk that is shipped into this county comes from Washington County, where there are two condensed of the milk supply of this city comes from counties outside of Multnomah may be a little high," said F. H. Wiencken, of the Sunset Creamery Company, "but there is no question that the bulk of the city's milk supply does come from dairies outside of this county. We get practically all of our milk supply from dairymen on Sauvies Island and on the Oregon side of the Columbia Slough, so that we are not dependent on any dairies outside of Multnomah County. The effect on the city's milk supply following an enforcement of the inspection law will depend entirely on the extent to which that law is enforced. I believe, however, that most dairymen will comply with the requirements of the law with the result that the city's supply of milk will not be reduced materially."

T. S. Townsend, of the T. S. Townsend Creamery, also agreed with Mr. Balley that the great bulk of the city's milk supply its shipped into Portland from dairies in outside counties. Mr. Townsend explained that his company bandles cream anly and for that reason is not so di-plained that his company hundles cream anly and for that reason is not so di-rectly concerned in the pending contro-versy as are some of the other dealers.

morning. Dr. A. W. Botkin, the family physician, was summoned and found Miss Lewis unconscious and blue from the effects of the poison. After three hours she was revived.

Dr. Botkin is the same physician who was called to attend the girls mother 17 years ago and the daughter was found lying in almost the same position and in about the same spot as her mother. The act of the young woman is believed to have been due to despondency through worry over the tragic death of her beard in the adjoining room and the girl was discovered unconscious.

She is a daughter of Leonard Lewis, a wealthy rancher of Russelville, east of Mount Tabor. She is engaged to be married to Claud Cheshire, employed by the Marshall-Wells Company, and there has been no quarrel between the young couple to assign as a causs for the deed. Mr. Lewis says drinking of the acid by his daughter was the result of a mistake. He says a bottle of brandy and a bottle of acid, both colored aske, stood together on a shelf and that his daughter intended to take some brandy to steady herself after the excitement caused by her brother's mild rebuke.

Upon regulning consciousness yesterday afternoon the young woman said, "Oh, what, have I done?" and then burst into tears. Until a few days ago Miss Lewis had been in the employ of the Oregon Water Power Company.

I Can't Cure I treat for real and lasting cures. Every remedy I employ has its part in bringing positive and permanent results. Under my treatment the patient who notes improvement in his condition can feel assured that real benefit and not a temporary drug effect has been obtained, and can continue with confidence that a thorough cure is being accomplished. My success as a specialist is due to the fact that I accept no incurable disease and always treat with a cure in view, never resorting to the use of a reraindy that brings but temporary encouragement to the patient.

The most important thing for you to do, if you are an alling man, is to seek the services of THE RIGHT DOCTOR. Don't go to the first one you see, simply because he happens to be a physician. Choose the physician who makes a specialty of curing the kind of aliments from which YOU suffer. The ordinary medical man really knows but little about curing the diseases peculiar to men. He merely has a general knowledge of such diseases because his practice is spread out over the whole range of diseases to which flesh is helr. He therefore knows a little about all diseases and not a great deal about any. If you should go to him he may conscientiously try to cure you, but, not knowing how, he would have to experiment upon you. In brief, he is a medical "lack of all trades and master of mone." Knowing those facts, would you want to forder, you wouldn't take it to a machinist to have it repaired. No, you would know better. You would take it to the very best WATCH-MAKER you could find.
