DIVORCES OCCUPY

In Three Courtrooms Tales of Domestic Infelicity Are Heard Simultaneously.

TRIO FREED BY BRONAUGH

Mrs. Thomas A. Hennelly Says She Had to Leave Husband or Take Own Life-Revolver Introduced as Evidence.

Judges Bronaugh, Gantenbein and Gatens, of the Circuit Court, were busy all yesterday morning trying divorce cases. Judge Brohaugh granted three decrees, and denied one because of insufficient corroborating evidence. Junge Gantenbein denied a divorce to J. T. Rainsberry, who said he was forced to marry Christene Gustafson, while Judge Gatens took up the divorce suit of B. C. Lasche against Emily M. Lasche at the afternoon session. After hearing the evidence Judge Gatens took the case under advisement, Lasche also told of returning home unexpectedly and of finding H. Eckenberger holding his wife on his lap. May 30 Lasche said he went home and found the doors botted. He climbed in the window, and soon afterward the telephone rang. His wife answered and talked in a low tone. He testified he told her to speak blainer, after which she said. "Is that you, Sam? All right, I will come." She left soon afterward, said Lasche, and remained away the rest of the night. The next day she specked up his wearing appared in a trunk, and sent it to the fish market.

When Lasche returned for his suitcase his wife beat him over the head with an umbrella, tearing his Panamia hat. He testified she walked up Fifth street one day last August so drunk she staggered. Another feature of yesterday morning's testimony was the statement by Lasche that his wife once throw a platter of beeffreak at him while he was in bed, and that she tried to stab him with a britcher knife.

CHANNEL TO BE 20 FEET

Fills Made by Recent Freshet Will Now Be Removed, Giving Deep Water to Vancouver-Oregon to Go to Grays Harbor.

By the end of the coming week a 20foot channel will have been dug between the mouth of the Willametre River and Vancouver. The first cut was completed yesterday and today the dredge will be towed to Vancouver to finish the job.
The freshet of the last few days has drifted sand into a number of spots and these will be raked over. Captain Peters, in command of the dredge Oregon, expects to have the work completed within seven days.
