Selection of a location for the Reed Institute will be deferred until the return of Dr. T. L. Eliot, a member of the board of trustees. Dr. Eliot is concluding a visit to the principal cities of the East in quest of the most able man available to be the head of the institution. He is expected to return in about ten days. In santime the other trustees are beting besieged bourly by real estate dealers or owners of property, who are urging the purchase of some particular tract as the

The trustees also had the benefit of Dr. Buttrick's counsel in the details incident to estab-lishing this important educational in-

"It has been one great need of Portland—an institution of higher learnling," said Frank Rigler, superintendent of the Portland public schools, yesterday. "Among other things the Reed Institute, as planned, will promote a larger attentiance at the high schools and at other secondary schools as well. Those who may wish to acquire their education in the higher studies at the Reed Institute will have to attend high school to obtain the necessary educational qualifications. It is possible that some who may plan to go to the college will be compelled by unforeseen circumstances to give up their ambitions, but even these, in nearly all instances, will spend a greater length of time in high school than they would without such an incentive."

The Reed Institute, as its work is "The Reed Institute, as its work is now outlined, will be a splendid thing for Portland and the entire Northwest," said I. N. Fleischner, chairman of the Board of Education. "It will keep at home young men and women who would otherwing so East to complete their education, and supply a means of education for the hundreds who cannot afford to leave home. Such an institution in any community has an elevating influence.

Portland educators of prominence and men who are taking an active part in civic affairs are generally well-pleased with the decision of the Reed Institute reports received at the railroad offices in Portland, this exhibition which will open next Monday, will be larger and more representative of the apple-growing districts, particularly of the Pacific Northwest, than ever before. Competition among the exhibitors for ribbons will be exceedingly keen.

"The exhibit at Spokane this year will be a good advertisement for the apple-growing districts of the Pacific Northwest," said H. M. Adams, general freight and passenger agent for the North Bank, yesterday. "It will be larger and better than ever. The apple producers of the Hood River Valley and other sections of Oregon, as well as of Washington and Idaho, have arranged to exhibit the cream of their product. Not only is the Spokane exhibition helpful to orchardists, but it is a valuable advertisement to this section of the country for the reason that many Eastern people come to the Pacific Coast annually to see the exhibit. At the rate interest is increasing in the Spokane show, I would not be surprised to see this enterprise eventually assume the same attractive proportions that Portland's Rose Festival has taken."

CASTLE ROCK, Wash., Nov. 8 .- With the arrival of the steamer Chester, Saturday morning, notice was given that navigation of the Upper Cowlitz had been resumed for the Winter.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberiain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition.
