Stetson as head of that church. It was a group of Mrs. Stetson's own students, he says, who circulated reports against her, and later charged to the board of directors and to the mother church in Boston.

SPOKANE, Nov. 8.—The only sensation of the I. W. W. disorders today was the delivery of a stretcher to a woman agitator, who had been released on her own recognizance. As she was leaving the courtroom, the woman appeared to be faint, so her companions brought a stretcher and, carrying her, they marched through the principal streets, followed by a large throng.

Many Prisoners Non-Citizens.

All rioters arrested are now being asked by the desk officers how long they have been in the city, how long in the United States and whether they are native or naturalized citizens. The percentage of non-citizens was larger today than on any previous day. In a list of 83 names taken from the police blotter from November 5 to today, there are 41 Americans and 42 foreigners charged with disorderly conduct or attempting to speak on the streets in connection with the I. W. W. demonstrations.

The police view this phase of the trouble very calmly. They will continue to offer food to the men at regular intervals, but show no inclination to try to force the prisoners to eat. Twenty-one more street speakers were arrested this morning. A number of these stated they had arrived from Butte or Portland within the last two days.

This decision was based on an opinion filed with the court by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Brownell. This opinion was in part as follows:

I am unable to communicate with Mr. Roosevelt immediately, as he is away from civilization, but have sent runners, both of whom are absolutely reliable."

holding up the Union Pacific eastbound Overland Limited at Mauder in the suburbs of this city last May and robbing the mailcar of several registered pouches. Attorneys for the defense in their opening statements announced they would try to establish an alibi for the prisoners. It was announced that the defendants would go on the stand. Depositions of citizens of Spokane, Wash., to prove the previous good character of Frank Grigware, were read, and Edward M. Grigware, father of Frank, was put on the stand for the same purpose. When the trial was resumed today, Judge Mungler announced that the indictment of writing attributed to William Mathews, one of the defendants, by Sheriff Dyer, of Twin Falls, Idaho, would be admitted. The writing was an unsigned letter mailed at Minneapolis and secured by the Federal authorities at the Denver post-office, addressed to "J. C. Kelley," informing him his valise had been shipped to him. "Kelley" is alleged to have been Golden, who was arrested in Denver. Sheriff Dyer identified the letter as being in the handwriting of Mathews.

Cashier Explains Knotty Points of Shortage—Accused Employees May Clear Skirts.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 8.—(Special)—Lewiston is agog over recent indictments returned in the land-fraud cases against George C. Williams Dwyer, H. C. Steffy and W. F. Kettnerbach, and increased interest is manifest in the bank defalcation case. At Moscow, E. C. Smith, cashier of the Lewiston National Bank, was on the witness stand almost all day, going over records and explaining knotty points of shortage. That the books of the Lewiston-National Bank have been so kept that it has been difficult to follow false entries through voluminous records is known here, but with Lewis M. Gray on the stand tomorrow more light will be thrown on the bad tangle which is slowly being unraveled. Mr. Gray is one of the best expert accountants in the United States. He has been called in to expert bank books in several of the largest bank defalcation cases in the world. The fact that he has been detailed to straighten out the books and show every phase of the false entries which covered the stolen funds indicates just how thoroughly the Government is probing the shortages. J. E. Chapman and Clarence W. Robinson, ex-employees, who are accused of robbing the institution of $17,000, are in Moscow, ready to be called as witnesses. They are seen frequently in conversation with Government investigators. Their friends say the accused men will be able to clear their skirts, and this statement has caused speculation as to where responsibility for the shortage lies.
