

OUTLAW SLAIN; HOSTAGE RESCUED

Idaho Posse Dislodges Fugitive, Barricaded in Farm-house.

KILLING MOST DRAMATIC

Boy, Held Captive 24 Hours, Jumps to Freedom While Captor Sleeps; Latter Tries to Escape and Body Is Bullet-Riddled.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 19.—The unknown tramp who for 24 hours held captive 7-year-old Harry Garrett in an upstairs room of the Grand ranchhouse, threatening death to the boy should an attempt to arrest him be made, was shot and killed at daylight today after the boy had made his escape.

Finn Shoots at Lad.

Half a dozen shots started the watchers and a moment later the boy rushed from the direction of the house. The man had attempted to kill the lad when the latter started to escape.

The Finnish interpreter called on the desperado to surrender but he refused and a volley of shots was fired through the floor from the room below. Soon the outlaw fell to the floor but, recovering his feet, he jumped from the window.

A fusillade of shots was discharged at the fleeing outlaw by the posse on the outside of the house and a moment later the fugitive fell mortally wounded. He died while being taken to Nampa.

Body Riddled With Bullets.

The body was riddled with bullets. The Garrett boy states that his captor confessed to him that he was the man who shot and seriously wounded Officer George Fleming at Nampa last Tuesday morning.

The killing of the Finn was dramatic. After the boy had leaped out of a second-story window, following a half dozen attempts to escape that had been frustrated by the fugitive, the noise of the breaking screen roused the sleeping man. He made no attempt to approach the window, however, knowing that armed men were waiting for him.

A Deputy Sheriff, taking Interpreter Stumpe, then went to the room below the one in which the Finn was barricaded. The officer says you will be given every protection, said the latter, "if you surrender you will be all right. You will be given five minutes, and after that you will be taken dead or alive."

Police Defied.

Only a moment elapsed, and then the voice of the hunted man was heard. "Tell the police to go to hell. I'm not afraid to die."

Five minutes passed and fire was then opened on the house. Bullets were shot whizzed through the walls and the Finn finally yelled, and with gun in hand, sprang through the window.

A dozen guns roared as he leaped, and as he turned half over he struck the ground, his revolver dropped from his hand and he lay still. He was still breathing, but was almost dead. A dozen wounds in his body and head showed the deadly effect of the hail of lead.

The room in which the man had barricaded himself was bloody, showing that he had been hit before he leaped from the window.

Harry Garrett, who was held captive by the Finn for 24 hours, was apparently little affected by his experience. At first he was extremely nervous, for the Finn kept him covered with the gun. In fact, as long as daylight lasted the fugitive kept the menacing muzzle of the pistol pointed in the boy's direction.

After dark, the Finn declined to allow a lamp to be lighted. The man lay on the floor beside the boy. He held his pistol in his hand. Several times during the night he heard the boy, alert and watchful, stirred quietly in an attempt to slip away, immediately the Finn aroused, and, speaking sharply, commanded him to be quiet.

At daylight, however, worn by his vigil of three nights, the Finn dropped asleep. Garrett slowly and carefully crept away from the sleeping man, and, crawling to the window, pushed it up. A wire screen confronted him, but gathering himself he sprang for it and struck the ground, where he was quickly hustled to safety by his waiting relatives and friends. Then followed the shooting of the Finn.

Night Watchman Fleming, shot by the Finn, is alive in a Boise hospital.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 19.—(Special.)—Because Mrs. Isabella Wright's son did not join in the deed when she sold her first husband's property, a legal tangle has arisen which may dispossess Mrs. Mary E. Mrs. Hurst was made defendant in an action filed in the circuit court here today by Oscar Black for recovery of the property and also for damages. RYAN TAKES STAND

Witness, Charged With Murder, Loses His Temper.

ENRAGED, FLAYS ATTORNEY

Dramatic Scene Enacted in Court at Pendleton in Case Which May Go to Jury Today—Tells Tale of Quarrel.

RYAN DENIES GOING FOR GUN.

Ryan also insisted that he did not go to his house after his gun to intercept Shubert, when he saw the latter coming up the road, but otherwise his testimony did not differ greatly from that of the state's chief witness.

He said he had been engaged in poisoning and trapping squirrels during the day, and he had gone to the house about 2:30 o'clock to get his gun to shoot coyotes which had been carrying off the trapped squirrels and likewise the traps.

When he met Shubert in the road, he said he was on his way from his cabin to the grain field, where he was killing squirrels, with a fresh supply of poison. He insisted that the controversy did not start because he had forbidden Shubert the use of the lane, but because the latter's horses had shied at him as he stood inside the fence and Shubert had demanded to know if he was trying to scare his horses.

Controversy Starts With Nothing.

The verbal controversy, which resulted in Shubert leaving his team tied to the fence and going on home afoot after Dixon, then ensued.

It was on cross-examination that Ryan allowed his temper to get the better of him and at times it appeared as though he would rush upon District Attorney Phelps, who is not very great in stature. He was cross-examined for more than three hours, and during the greater part of that time he was beside himself with rage. From present indications the defense will close tomorrow forenoon, and the fate of the accused man may be in the hands of the jury before night.

Success is Certain with a Moderate Oven and Crescent (Egg-Phosphate) Baking Powder. Crescent Egg Phosphate Baking Powder raises slowly and evenly and when raised stays in suspension and never falls. The reason of this is because the Phosphate prolongs the action of leavening until the moisture has been absorbed, and the Egg-Albumen sustains the dough. Risen foods made with Crescent Baking Powder do not have to be rushed into the oven. Neither do they require a terrifically hot oven or an oven "doctored" up to the right temperature. On the contrary if a moderately slow oven is used the result is a most delicious, light, digestible and successful baking. Try a can and see for yourself what a pleasure it is to work with Crescent Baking Powder. Remember that every can is guaranteed to be absolutely pure and wholesome, and to comply with all pure food laws. Order a can from your grocer today at 25c per pound. Made and guaranteed by the Crescent Baking Powder Co., Seattle, makers of Maptains, the New Flavor.
