Evan Williams Gets Important Engagement Through the Victor

An interesting incident that shows the immense influence of the Victor is told by Evan Williams in his characteristic manner, as follows: "While passing through a corridor in the Waldorf-

Astoria a man stopped me and asked if I were Evan Williams. He was the president of the Cincinnati Musical Festival, and he told me he was in search of a tenor. He brought Mr. Reisbiel, the musical critic of the Tribune, with him and I sang "Sound An Alarm" for them. On Sunday I went to Cincinnati, sang, and landed the Festival."

Now follows the interesting part, which explains why they started after Evan Williams. The Cincinnati man had been abroad to get a tenor, but returned without finding one. On his return, his son-in-law said: "Father, I have a tenor for the Festival-best in the world. His 'name is Evan Williams; come over and hear him." The son-in-law had bought a Victor and found for the Cin-
