Minnesota Passes Without Investigating-Life-Saving Tug Leaves for Scene-Oil and Lumber in Wreckage Found.

SEATTLE, Dec. 2.-The steamer Minnesota, which arrived here today, reports passing yesterday a four-masted sel high and dry on the Vancouver Island beach between Cape Beale and Pachena Point. The ship was of about 900 tons painted white and looked like a Rolfe liner. The Minnesota did not stop to investigate the wreck, which lay with her port side to the sea and appeared to have been abandoned.

A special from Neah Bay says that a good-sized ship's cabin, with nothing to identify it, came achore near there. Indians in that vicinity have picked up 50 cases of oil and a quantity of

The United States lifesaving tug Snohomish left Port Townsend at 3 o'clock this afternoon to look for the source of the wreckage that has been picked up.

Shipping men think the stranded schooner is the schooner Soquel, which went on the beach near Cape Beale on January 8 last. Her hulk is a conspicu-ous object. The Soquel answers in every particular the description of the wreck seen by the Minnesots.

The wreckage found near Carmanah
Point, B. C., can be accounted for by the recent storm, which might have made it desirable for some small vessel to jettlson a part of her cargo. Similar wreckage has come ashore near the th of Quillayute River, south of Cape

Attorney-General Takes Up Supreme Court Issue.

INCREASE IS QUESTIONED

Argument Is That Subject Is Judicial, Not Political, and Must Be Determined by Court-Legality Court's Position Not Point.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 2 .- (Special.) - What probably will be the last broadside before the final decision of the court in the case of the State vs. Sam Cochran, was fired today by Attorney-General Crawford and his associates, when a rely brief was filed in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court.

It is argued that "after a court has been established by the constitution of a state, and the number of justices who shall constitute such court fixed by the shall constitute such court fixed by the original act creating the court, whether an act of the legislative assembly or the state, increasing the number of such justices beyond the number fixed by the that instrument, is a judicial and not a political question, and it is the sole province and duty of the courts to de-termine whether such legislative act is repugnant to any part of the constitu-

Cooley Cited for Authority.

In support of this contention, Judge and other authorities are cited. The brief asserts that the respondent does not question the legal existence of the Supreme Court, but challenges the authority of the Legislature to add to the number of justices.

The author of the brief admits that there is need for more than three jus-tices, and adds: "But expediency cannot be urged as an excuse for a viola-tion of the constitution." It is main-tained that chapter 50, laws of 1909, contravenes the provisions of section 10 of article 7 of the Oregon Constitution. Supreme Court of three is created. we can have more than three justices under that declaration, why can we not have more courts under section 1, and invest them with judicial powers?

Court's Power Questioned.

The court is not at liberty to read anything into the law which is not plainly intended to be there. . . Section 10, article 7, is declaratory and positive in its terms, and clearly contains an inhibition. bition against any change in it. The brief is signed by George J. Cam-eron. ### Fritz Kreisler, Violin Wizard, in Concert

BY JOSEPH M. QUENTIN. is idle to speak of phenomenal fingering, double-stopping and whistling, zephyr-wafted harmonics or to apply cold, mathematical reasoning in writing of the art of Fritz Kreisler, violinist. The "world-genius" should be used. instead.

This is the third time that Kreisler has played in concert in this city, and we therefore have had ample time to measure his worth as an artist.

Last night's concert at the Bungalow Theater only emphasized the fact that Kreisler not only retasins his place in the front rank of the great violinists of oday, but that he belongs to that magte band of artists of whom Paganini and Ole Bull form the fountainhead.

Mischa Elman plays with blazing eyes and emotional face turned in a tempest of passion toward his audience, and he appeals with the art spectacle of a great tracedian swarfer. ragedian swaying a multitude. Kreisler, well-built, well-fed, military-looking, with dignified face and meln and hair of ordinary length, forgets his audience as soon as he draws his bow over his violin, and keeps his eyes glued to the strument just as a parent watches the tterance of a favorite child.

Kreisler is also a magical player, so nuch so that it is a lucky thing for him that he isn't living in what are alleged to be the good old days at Salem, Mass, when the knowing ones burned clever folk for witchcraft and the black art gen-

Kreisler won 16 recalls in the course of Reisier won 16 recalls in the course of the evening. This gives an idea of the genuine enthusiasm with which the mucal crowd greeted him. It is notable at he won his greatest triumphs in the numbers where the strings of his violin were muted, and these selections appealed by their gentle spirituality rather than by intellectual power. The showlest number was the Viewsterne number was the Vieuxtemps concerto in F sharp minor, the rendition of which was marked by wonderfully sustained barmonics and dazzling technique, culminating with a whirlwind of passion.
It is not necessary to criticise the programme in detail. Kreisler played every gramme in detail. Kreisler played every number as announced except that he substituted for the Friedeman Bach number a dainty, alry thought by Sulzer. The only encores he played—he could have accepted a dozen if he desired—were a "Venice Caprice," by himself, and "Song Without Words," by Tschalkowsky. The piano accompanist was Haddon Squire, an Englishman, who played here before with the same artistic, self-denying personality. The concert was under the direction of Lois Sheers, Wynn Coman. Kreisler has sold a Stradivarius violin he owned to a Chicago house, and although the one on which he played last night wasn't a Strad, it was a'most as valuable and satisfied with its golden tone.

When The Stomach Stops

Working Properly, Because There Is Wind In It, Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to Set It Going Again.

A Trial Box Free.

THE DOCTORS call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distress-ing state of things it is. It is a serious condition of this great motor organ. Always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to bad and fatal results. The stomach embarrassed and hampered with wind, cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows, and this ha train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable

ALL THIS IS EXPLAINED in doctor books; how undigested food causes gasses by fermentation and fomentation in which process some essential fluids are destroyed - burnt up - wasted by chemical action, followed by defective. tive nutrition and the distribution through the alimentary tract of chemically wrong elements and as a consequence the stomach and entire system is starved. Plenty of food, you see, but spoilt in preparation and worse than worthless. ilt in preparation

A DERANGED STOMACH is the epitome of evil; nothing too bad to ema-nate from it, but the gas it generates is probably its worst primary effect and only way to do away with this i the only way to do away with this is to remove the cause. STUART'S DYSPEP-SIA TABLETS go to the root of this trouble. They attack the gas-making foods and render them harmless. Flatulency or wind on the stomach simply can not exist where these powerful and wonder-working little tablets are in eviden der-working little tablets are in evidence.

THEY WERE MADE for this very purpose to attack gas-making foods and convert them into proper nutriment. This is their province and office. A whole book could be written about them and then not all told that might be told with profit to sufferers from this painful disease, dyspepsia. It would mention the years of patient and expensive experiment in effort to arrive at this result—of failures innumerable and at last success. It would make mention of the different stomach correctives that enter into this tablet and correctives that enter into this tablet and make it faithfully represent all.
