

ZELAYA THEME OF SPECIAL MESSAGE

President and Secretary Knox Have Consultation on Nicaraguan Affairs.

DECISIVE BATTLE COMING

Revolutionist Representative is Informed General Estrada Leaves Bluefields for Engagement. Federals Short of Supplies.

PRESIDENT ZELAYA PREPARES TO DEPART

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—According to private reports received today from Managua, President Zelaya has made all arrangements to leave Nicaragua with his family on the first steamer sailing from Corinto. The report is discredited by persons here who claim to be in close touch with Zelaya.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Taft tonight called Secretary Knox into consultation at the White House and the report immediately spread that the topic under discussion was a special message to Congress on the imbroglio with Nicaragua.

Neither the President nor Mr. Knox would say anything of the conference. It is regarded as likely, however, that the Nicaraguan matter was discussed, and it is also intimated that the discussion took the form of outlining a policy that will cover all Central American countries.

So far as actual news was concerned, the day was uneventful. The State Department received no advices, according to a statement made late tonight while the Navy Department likewise was without fresh information.

Decisive Battle Coming.

Senor Salvador Castriello, representative here of the insurrectionary forces under General Estrada, president of the Provisional Government, received a message tonight that General Estrada has left Bluefields and has taken the field. A decisive battle, the dispatch continued, is imminent in the vicinity of Rama.

It is believed, in view of the reported descriptions from Zelaya's ranks, that this fight may be a decisive one. Reports here are that Zelaya's men are short of ammunition and are in need of food.

The Central American junta, composed of diplomats and patriots from the five turbulent little republics on the neck of land between Yucatan and South America, is one of the latest acquisitions of the Capital of the United States; while it has been meeting regularly ever since Secretary Knox sent his famous letter to President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, telling him to be good, it has managed to shroud itself in mystery.

Junta Gets Information.

The junta is the clearing-house for all information that leaks unofficially from Nicaragua, and the diplomats have framed up a half-dozen new allegations of the five republics, each with a view to the equitable distribution of the "spoils" of the revolution.

Among the members of the junta who daily gather at the appointed place are: Frederico Mejia, Minister from Salvador; J. B. Calvo, Minister from Costa Rica; Luis Toledo Herrarte, Minister from Guatemala; Luis Lazear Arriago, Minister from Honduras; and Luis F. Corea, ex-Minister from Nicaragua.

In addition to this distinguished group, there are Luis Aderson, ex-Minister of Foreign Relations, of Costa Rica; Senor Don Luis Felipe Carlo, Minister of Ecuador; Dr. Salvatore Castriello, special agent here for the Nicaraguan insurgents; Anil Cruz, Minister from Chile, and a score of attaches from the various Central American legations. Debates are carried on in Spanish.

Secretary Knox's letter to Zelaya has been read and re-read by the diplomats until practically every member of the junta has committed it to memory.

Around the few guarded expressions of the letter the debate in the junta has raged, each member entertaining a different view of the State Department's intentions.

MORE SHIPS TO SAIL SOUTH

Philadelphia Navy-Yard Becomes Active on Orders.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Orders from Washington that several warships now here be prepared for immediate service caused great activity today at the Philadelphia navy yard. The new battleship Michigan has been ordered into commission and will sail for Hampton Roads on Thursday.

The battleship Idaho also is being prepared to sail, but its destination is kept secret. The cruiser Columbia has been ordered to the Brooklyn navy yard, and converted into a transport and will be held in readiness to convey marines to Central America.

GUNBOAT OFF FOR NICARAGUA

Princeton Under Rush Orders to Corinto to Join Vicksburg.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—The gunboat Princeton sailed for Corinto, Nicaragua, this afternoon after loading coal and stores off California. City. Princeton is under orders to proceed to Corinto with all possible speed, and join the Vicksburg navy there.

Sailing was delayed because of the late arrival of the gunboat from Bremerton Navy-Yard, Washington, due to heavy weather. The Princeton was ordered to the coaling station at California City instead of going up the bay to Mare Island, and stores and ammunition were put aboard from lighters to expedite its sailing.

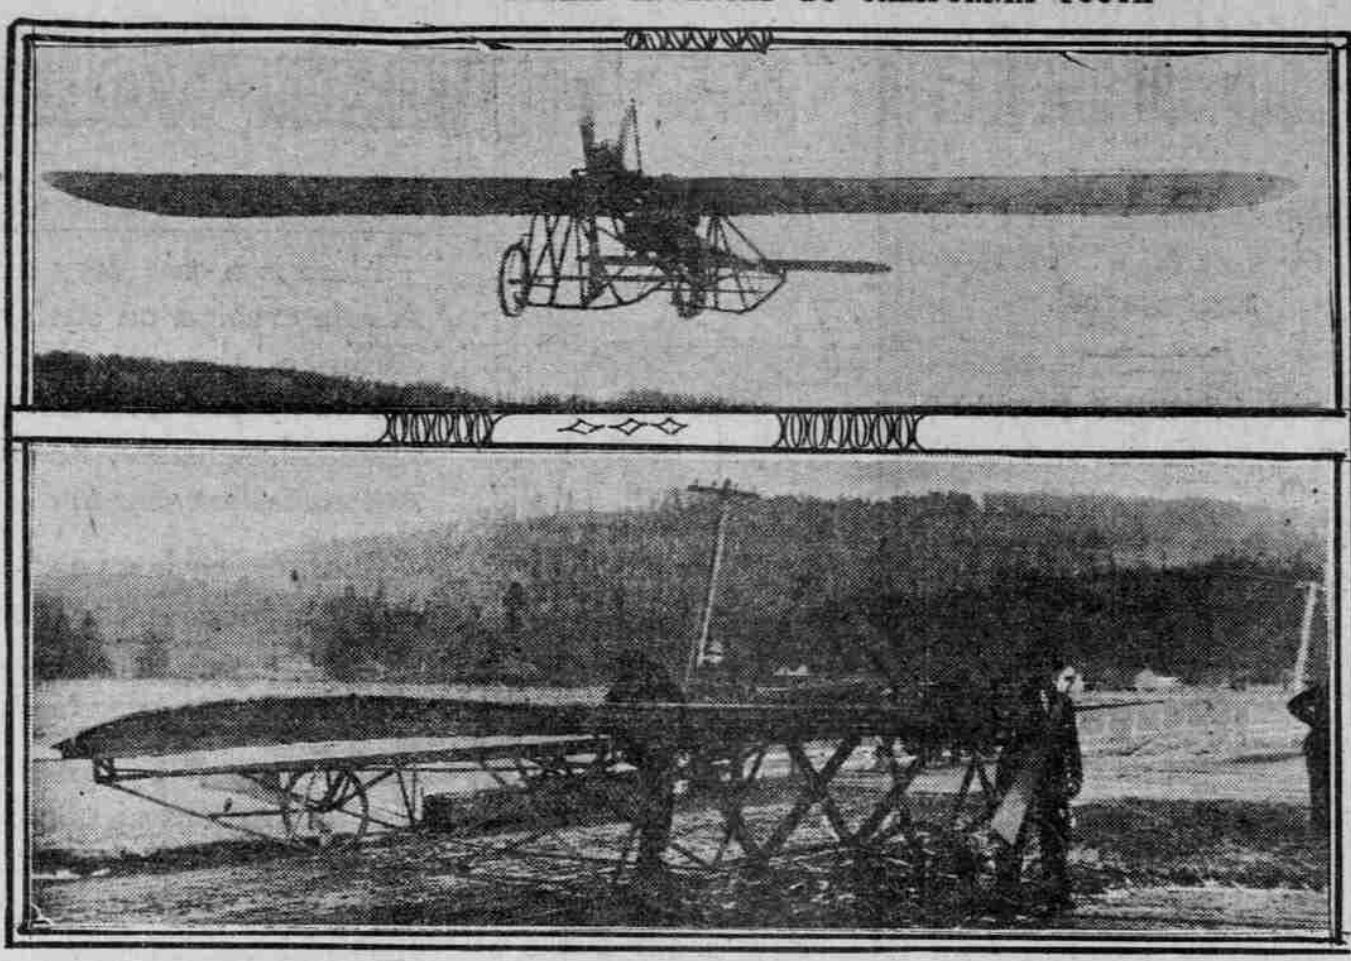

CHINA PROTESTS AT RUSSIA

Declares Manchurian Policy Violates Agreements Made.

PEKIN, Dec. 5.—The Chinese government has sent a circular note to the powers protesting Russia's claims to the right of administration over the Manchurian Railway zone.

The protest deals lengthily with the Russian compromise which was sent to the powers on October 8, and which was formally handed to the Chinese Foreign Office a month later by M. Kokovoff, Russian Minister of Finance.

TWO VIEWS OF AIRSHIP INVENTED BY CALIFORNIA YOUTH

BLAINE SELVEGE'S MONOPLANE AS IT APPEARS IN FLIGHT AND PHOTOGRAPH OF THE MONOPLANE RESTING ON THE EARTH.

EUREKA BOY FLIES

Monoplane Made by Himself Shows Well in Test.

FLIGHT MINUTE AND HALF

Inventor Makes Three-Quarters of Mile at Rapid Clip—Machine 40 Feet Long, 450 Pounds. Test at Eureka.

EUREKA, Cal., Dec. 5.—(Special.)—In a monoplane driven by a 25-horse motor and pulled by 6 1/2-foot propeller, with 265 feet of supporting surface, Blaine Selvege, a young man of Eureka, recently made a flight of three-quarters of a mile in a minute and a half.

One fence was cleared twice. The machine traveled twenty feet above the ground and made almost a complete circle. A scarcity of gasoline prevented a longer flight. Selvege never exhibited any particular mechanical genius until this attempt at constructing an aeroplane.

The Selvege monoplane is constructed of stout spruce wood for the frame, steel wires for the bracing, and stout canvas for the wings and the horizontal and vertical rudders. The machine is forty feet from tip to tip of wing, and fore and aft it measures thirty feet. It weighs 450 pounds. The motor is placed forward, the propeller acting as the flywheel. The motor was constructed in a Eureka automobile garage by Selvege himself. It is of four cylinders and makes 1600 revolutions a minute.

Airship on Wheels.

Selvege has his machine on wheels which are utilized in transporting it and in gaining headway when arising from the ground. So thoroughly did the young aviator study the plans of his machine that he wrote out an order for the entire material, piece by piece, giving each and every dimension. When he had assembled the parts, out one piece was left over. For more than a year Selvege worked on his machine. His plans, in appearance, is more like the Curtis aeroplane than any other.

After satisfying himself that the model which he framed in his mind would be a practical aeroplane, Selvege made a model a little smaller than his present machine. He tied this to the rear of an automobile with a long rope, mounted it and had the chauffeur open the throttle. The automobile went full speed and the aeroplane model literally flew. Satisfied that the model was correct and that the monoplane would be a practical flying machine, Selvege set about to build a motor, in the construction of which several months were utilized.

Test Flight Successful.

In the latter part of November Selvege took to the main part of the outskirts of Eureka and awaited an opportunity to make the test flight. The young man selected an open field which was none too smooth. Just before dark, when the air was the heaviest, Selvege took out the machine and in the presence of a few friends and guests of the resort, the aviator made the first real test and the only one that has yet been made. An order for gasoline had not yet been filled and the aviator had but a gallon of gasoline in the tank of the machine. This one gallon was greatly reduced by turning over the engines so that when the flight was attempted little fuel was left.

Selecting the most even stretch of ground Selvege seated himself in the machine and appeared cool as an old hand at aerial navigation. He opened the throttle and the propeller whistled. The machine shot forward at a merry clip. It began to rock and Selvege shouted "Here we go up boys." The monoplane lifted from the ground and soon had gained an elevation of about 20 feet. Selvege then put the vertical rudder hard over, to make the machine turn. At first the vertical rudder was not needed. Then the machine began to turn gradually and made as pretty a flight as anyone could desire to see. The machine went over a fence into another field and back again over the same fence and into the circle from which it had started. The circle had been two-thirds completed and three-quarters of a mile covered when the cylinder began to miss. Knowing that there was little gasoline in the tank and satisfied with the initial test Sel-vege slowed down the engine and made a pretty descent.

Because of inclement weather Selvege has not had the monoplane out but once since the initial flight.

Inventor to Tour Coast.

Selvege intends to leave Humboldt shortly for San Francisco and the bay cities. He is in receipt of a large number of letters and offers to make exhibition flights. Ventura, Cal., made him an offer to come there, and other California cities have communicated with him relative to making flights at carnivals.

Selvege says that he will make another test flight in Humboldt county before leaving. The grounds and stalling facilities here are not convenient for him. A big level field is required for successful flights as the machine is run along the ground before it rises and when it descends it requires level ground to roll on.

The monoplane has three controls managed by a little set of pedals which the aviator sits. By working the wings the monoplane is caused to descend, and the same result can be attained by the horizontal rudder. The vertical rudder is the third control and steers the machine to the right or left.

POLES HONOR MARTYRS

LOCAL SOCIETY HOLDS MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Soldiers Who Laid Down Lives in War of 1830-31 With Russia Remembered by Countrymen.

Polish residents of Portland and vicinity last night held memorial services in the Zeller-Muller Hall at Williams avenue and Russell street, in honor of the Polish soldiers who sacrificed their lives in the war of 1830-31 between Poland and Russia.

A number of addresses were given by prominent citizens of Polish descent. In the principal address of the evening, Thomas Slemradzki said in part: "This is the 78th anniversary of the war of 1830-31. The war started with an insurrection in Warsaw, November 29, 1830. The new kingdom of Poland, which was created by the Congress of Vienna in 1815, and given to Czar Alexander I was a reward for his share in defeating the great Napoleon, enjoyed at that time a restricted constitution, with a diet in Warsaw and a separate Polish army of 30,000.

"But this constitution was being violated incessantly by the Russian government. In Warsaw resided Grand Duke Constantine, the elder brother of Czar Nicholas I, with dictatorial powers, and he was doing his best to make the written constitution a void sound, without real value. In other parts of old Poland, which were not included in the new kingdom, the Russian despotism was raging to the most exasperating degree. The best men in Poland saw that a conflict was inevitable, but they were waiting for the proper time.

"In June, 1830, a revolution in France abolished the regime of the Bourbons and put on the throne the younger line of the dynasty, the Bourbons. The Russian government, under the influence of Czar Nicholas I, refused to acknowledge the change, and was contemplating a war against France. He gave secret orders to mobilize a part of his army; the Poles, as the nearest to the western border, were the first to go. Seeing that the Polish army was to be used for a war with France, and what was worse, to suppress the will of a liberty-loving nation, the leaders of the national movement in Poland decided to prevent the Russian army of the Poles against Russia.

"The beginning of the outbreak was promising. The Grand Duke Constantine, with a corps of 6000 Russian troops, was forced to an ignominious retreat, and for two months Poland was free. A national government was organized, an army raised, and January 25, 1831, the Polish diet in Warsaw deprived unanimously Czar Nicholas and the whole house of Romanoff of the crown of Poland, which was given them by the Congress of Vienna.

EX-CONVICT DOES MURDER

Out of Prison Ten Days, He Has 'Irresistible Impulse to Shoot.'

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Charles O. Anderson, an ex-convict from the Penitentiary at Walla Walla, Wash., was arrested tonight for the murder of William H. Schneider, a bookkeeper who was shot and killed last night, and confessed to the police. Anderson, who believes he is insane, Anderson was traced by the description given by three men whom he held up and was arrested as he entered the bath establishment where Schneider was employed. He entered the place and said he was "seized with an impulse to shoot" and killed the bookkeeper at his desk.

Former "Angel Child" Declares Her Monthly Allowance Is Minus—During Stormy Thanksgiving Visit, Thaw Wants Furniture.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's habit of seeking the spotlight still clings. Since Thanksgiving when she went to the Marston Asylum to see her husband, she has been talking annulment of her marriage with much frequency and vehemence.

"He's got to do something for me pretty soon," she said, "or I shall certainly get my marriage annulled. Since June he has been paying me a monthly allowance of $70 and the monthly check for $200 that I am supposed to get. Why, I have even had to buy my piano because I couldn't pay the rent on it. I am up to my ears in debt. If I were free I could care my own things, but being tied up with a man who promises to take care of me and then doesn't isn't much fun. I shall certainly have my marriage annulled soon."

Evelyn's Visit Lively.

That Thanksgiving day visit of Evelyn's to her husband in the asylum was provocative of an interesting passage at arms between the two, according to report. Harry greeted his wife affectionately, kissing her and holding her in his arms. She had come only after he had written her repeatedly that he wanted to see her. Finally he sent her a letter in which he promised to take care of her and then she came. She had a pet dog of hers, Toto, which had been left in Pittsburgh. This seemed to touch the erstwhile "Angel Child," and she would not leave New York, and accompanied by a man who was first thought to be her brother, Howard Nesbit, but who, it was learned later, was a New York newspaper man.

Almost immediately after greeting his wife Thaw is said to have made a demand on her for his furniture. "You must have my furniture crated up and shipped to me here," he said; "my trustees demand it. I am a bankrupt now, you know, and I need my furniture for the benefit of my creditors."

"What sort of an Indian giver are you?" Mrs. Thaw is reported to have inquired. "Most of that furniture I bought myself, and the part you gave me isn't worth the price of carrying it downstairs."

Money Matters Mentioned.

Here it is told Thaw got angry and said if his wife did not ship that furniture she would never see him again. After that the matter of her allowance was mentioned and the lady indulged in much sarcastic comment on her poverty-stricken condition, to which her husband is said to have intimated she knew to whom to go if she really wanted money.

"After this, the report goes, Evelyn taxed Thaw with some of his ways of spending money. "I know how well fixed you are, better than you do," she is said to have told him. "I know that you've been plunging in the stock market since you've been in this asylum. You used to play the races over the telephone down in Poughkeepsie, and you're doing it now. I want to tell you I know you are supporting a woman in Europe at the present time, and I want my marriage annulled."

"Harry's mind," she afterward declared, "was in no condition for him to get set over anything. It was a blank as far as everything but the furniture was concerned. I left him and came back to New York. His condition is not improved, though he looks well and much stronger than he did. I think the time has come for me to hire a lawyer and begin a suit for the annulment of my marriage on account of the condition of Thaw's mind."

OREGON CITY IN ELECTION FIGHT

Hardest Contest in Years Opens at Polls Today.

HEAVY VOTE ANTICIPATED

Dr. W. E. Carlil, Present Mayor, Has Business Man for Opponent in His Campaign. W. Eastham, Who Attacks Carlil Administration in Campaign.

OREGON CITY, Or., Dec. 5.—(Special.)—Probably the hardest fought election in recent years in this city will take place tomorrow, when O. W. Eastham, a prominent business man, will endeavor to wrest the office of Mayor from Dr. W. E. Carlil, who is a candidate for a third term.

Eastham has been the aggressor in the fight from start to finish and has placed his opponent strictly upon the defensive, attacking the record of the present administration on street improvements, and censuring Mayor Carlil strongly for the latter's opposition to the granting of a franchise to F. M. Swift, who is promoting a heavy construction of an electric railway from Oregon City to Silverton through the Molalla Valley. The result will be close and if the snow clears off by tomorrow a heavy vote is anticipated.

The only other contest of the day is in the Second Ward, where Albert Knapp, a local saloonkeeper, is a candidate for reelection as Councilman. His opponent is Bert R. Baker, proprietor of the Oregon City foundry. Knapp has the support of the church element in the struggle. Knapp is now president of the Council.

The fight for Mayor, however, pales into insignificance in comparison with the hue and cry that has been raised over the attempt of Dr. M. C. Strickland, M. D., Phillips, D. C. Baker and others to accomplish the removal of the historic home of Dr. John McLoughlin from the public square at the edge of the bluff overlooking the city, where it was placed a few months ago through the efforts of the McLoughlin Memorial Association.

Unknown persons yesterday issued an anonymous letter condemning the plan for marrying a squaw and for being a British subject and indulging in strong personalities. This letter has created a feeling of excitement among the voters of the party that is trying to preserve the building from destruction.

The polls will be open from 9 A. M. to 7 P. M., and much interest is being taken in the outcome.

FIVE CITIES TO ELECT TODAY

Linn County Sees Several Fights for Municipal Places.

ALBANY, Or., Dec. 5.—(Special.)—Five Linn County cities will hold municipal elections tomorrow. Sodaville, Sweet Home and Scio will elect a full complement of city officers. Albany, one elect Mayor, Recorder, Treasurer, Chief of Police and three Councilmen. Lebanon will choose a Mayor, Recorder and Treasurer and three Councilmen.

It is the only night of moment for a city office is the contest for Chief of Police but two measures of civic importance on the ballot are attracting considerable attention and may bring out a big vote. The candidates for Chief of Police are Fred Bies, the present incumbent, and A. A. Munkers, ex-Sheriff of Linn County, who has recently been serving as Deputy Sheriff and who was one of Linn County's Representatives in the last Legislature.

Aside from the contest between Bies and Munkers, the liquor ordinance is attracting the most attention in tomorrow's election. At 10 o'clock the Council passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor in Albany and it was referred to the people by referendum petition. This is the first election since that time so the people will probably be voting on the proposition to bond the city for $40,000 to build a City Hall, will be asked.

MILWAUKIE ELECTS TODAY

Only One Ticket in Field—Vote on Bond Issue.

The annual election of Milwaukie will be held today. Only one ticket is in the field and the present Mayor holds over for another year.

Chief interest centers in the amendments to the city charter. At this election an amendment to provide for issuing bonds will probably be voted into the city. This addition has been partly covered with new dwellings the past year. The election will make no major change in the policy pursued by Mayor Streib the past year, which has been to encourage general improvements.

He assured Dickman that he possessed confidential advance information as to what horses were to win, and that if he had the money he "could clean up a awful in a day."

Dugan piloted Dickman and Thomas to the rear of a San Francisco cigar store, where they found the bookmakers at work. On information furnished by the tout, Dugan, the Oregon farmer and Thomas won a few dollars. There they obliged to talk it over, and both Dickman and Thomas convinced themselves that the $100 which Dickman carried for his prospecting bride could be easily increased to a dowry of $200 or more.

Thomas bet the entire amount on a horse that won but Dickman was informed by the gang that he could not obtain the funds until next day because the banks had closed. He agreed to allow Thomas to draw the winnings the following morning.

Thomas, instead of turning the money over to Dickman reported that he had bet it on another race, and lost the money by becoming confused in the names of the horses, two of the runners having similar names.

More Money Needed.

Thomas and Dugan were heartbroken over the outcome of this unfortunate bet. It was such a foolish mistake and could never happen again in a thousand years. Would Mr. Dickman go home, get some more money and retrieve his losses? Dickman, in charge and the cripple accompanied him back to Oregon.

One week from the date of cashing the first draft on the Ladd & Tilton Bank, Dickman responded before the Banker Thornton and negotiated a loan of $100, saying he had a sure investment in the city by the Golden Gate. As he received the money Thomas, the cripple, again took Dickman in charge and did not let him out of his sight until San Francisco was visited the second time.

Scratch Costs $1000. Thomas and Dickman were guided to the same resort by Dugan, who told them to "bet the bundle on horse No. 8" in the last race containing 9 horses. They followed instructions, but before the race was run two horses were scratched and there was no ninth horse "running for Sweeney," said the bookmaker. Thomas complained vehemently, as did Dugan, but the obstinate "bookies" refused to return the money.

Dickman was chagrined over losing the wedding present he had set aside and he was easily persuaded to return again to Wilsonville to mortgage his farm for $2000 that he might recoup his losses.

Banker Thornton had grown suspicious of young farmer Dickman's "investments," however, and shut off his credit to the latter. Seeing that the situation looked bad for him, Thomas, the cripple, disappeared. But the going of "bunco" man was unwilling to abandon such a fruitful field, and in a few days Dickman received a letter signed "Bigelow," asking Dickman to meet the writer in Seattle.

Mr. Loder states he was not aware that the letter constituted a violation of the corrupt practices act. OREGON CITY, Or., Dec. 5.—(Special.)—John W. Loder, a local attorney, this afternoon acknowledged the authorship of the anonymous printed circular attacking the memory of Dr. John McLoughlin, the founder of Oregon City.

The circular was full of defamatory statements about the life of McLoughlin and was mailed to every voter in the city yesterday in anticipation of tomorrow's election, when the people will vote on an initiative ordinance which has for its purpose the removal of the historic home of McLoughlin from the public square donated to the city by the Father of Oregon.

RESULTS OF FOOD

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which is the secret of health. It was "Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 19 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed a great cause of illness in the past—nervousness, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of adding others in their search for health."

Look in page for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." There's a reason ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They're genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Canfield, president of the association, lost no time in communicating with W. S. U'Ren, who had a finger in drafting the measure. Mr. U'Ren was at first disposed to doubt that the act had been violated but a closer examination of the law convinced him of the existence of a gross violation. Mr. U'Ren was apparently able to find the author of the circular without difficulty, for this afternoon an explanatory letter was posted in conspicuous places about the city acknowledging over the signature of Mr. Loder the authorship of the original communication.
