

U. S. OF CENTRAL AMERICA'S PLAN

Diplomats See Method in Hurred Southern Trip of Luis Anderson.

CHAOS IS TO BE FEARED

Mexico Committed to Eventual Federation and United States Not Enthusiastic as Prestige Would Be Lost.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Plans are afoot, it is believed, for a confederation of the Central American republics. Proof of this is offered to the minds of Central American diplomats here in the sudden disappearance of Dr. Luis Anderson.

Dr. Anderson was here as special representative of Costa Rica and was the candidate for president of the proposed "United States of Central America." He left on receipt of the telegram and it is learned today that his destination is Santiago. Before going, he held an interview with Senator Creel, former Mexican Ambassador to the United States, and now here as a special envoy of Mexico in the existing trouble in Nicaragua.

Chaos Danger of Future.

Central American diplomats fear there may be a conflagration while now there is only a blaze. In such a case, the governments most interested in the various countries would interfere, with the result that chaos would ensue and new organization would be necessary.

It is believed that Anderson hurried south in anticipation of such an eventuality. He has the indorsement of Mexico, the most powerful near neighbor of Central America, and holds the confidence of at least two other states on the isthmus.

In the event that affairs reached a crisis demanding consolidation, he would be on the ground and ready to step into the breach.

Friends of Dr. Anderson insist that he has gone to San Jose merely to attend a meeting of the International Society on sanitation and to visit his family. This, they declare, is a bluff. They maintain that Dr. Anderson's plans were not changed until it was learned that Zelaya's abdication was inevitable. Then followed the hurried interview with Senator Creel and the journey.

Mexico Favors Federation.

The Mexican government is committed to the amalgamation of the five lily little republics on the isthmus. Senator Enrique Creel has declared that his government would like to see such a consolidation, though qualifying the declaration by saying he did not believe the time ripe for such a transformation.

Although the United States avoided the subject, it is understood that this government would not entertain any great enthusiasm over such a consolidation. It would mean that Mexico could exercise a far greater influence over such a group and that the United States would lose prestige. The close alliance of the tin-American race would bring such a situation about.

The State Department disclaims all knowledge of the movements of Dr. Anderson or of his object in going to Costa Rica.

GERMAN MAIL IS DELAYED

Steamer Sailings Infrequent, So Post Foreign Matter Now.

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 17.—(Special.)—The infrequency of steamer sailings at this port, together with the enormous mail matter handled by post-offices, is threatening serious delays in the transmission of mails between the United States and Germany. Americans wishing to send New Year's greetings or important business communications to Germany to be delivered somewhere near the first of the year would do well to post them immediately and take care to send them at the 5-cent rate.

The risk of delay is especially great in the case of letters with only 2-cent postage, which often require more than a week's extra time in transmission.

It is computed that letters sent now from Germany at the lower rate probably will not reach points west of New York until some time after January 1, owing to the frequent sailing of German ships, which are the only ones carrying the 2-cent mail, and the tremendous volume of holiday mail matter.

BRADY DENIES CHARGES

Governor Says He Bought Irrigation Bonds as Investment.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 17.—James H. Brady, Governor of Idaho, who is made the central figure in a sensational suit filed in Chicago by Mrs. Mary Stone, on account of an alleged swindle of the Idaho Canal Company and the Chicago Title & Trust Company, denies absolutely he conspired with anybody relative to the sale of the bonds floated to finance the irrigation project. He was one of the chief promoters, but declares he bought the bonds and property for the sole purpose of protecting the investment made.

"When this case is tried," he said, "it will be found the two bonds held by Mrs. Stone are fraudulent and should never have been paid. The suit is simply a continuation of the tactics employed by Charles W. Spalding, who never conspired, either directly or indirectly, with anybody relative to this property."

WARRINER PROBE BLOCKED

Henry Clews & Co. Refuse to Let Books Be Examined.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 17.—Another obstacle has been encountered by Prosecutor Hunt in his efforts to discover what became of the $543,000 embezzled from the Big Four Railroad by Charles L. Warriner.

According to a statement given out by the prosecutor tonight, Henry Clews & Co., the New York brokers through whom Warriner claims to have lost vast sums in speculation, have refused to allow their books to be examined.

The brokers claim that a Big Four accountant has obtained all the information they have, but according to Mr. Hunt, all the railroad officials could get was a slip showing that Warriner had lost $17,000 on the stock market.

UNIQUE TREASURE SOUGHT

Monroe's Gift From Japanese Emperor May Be Extant.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—According to Dr. L. H. Cabell, of Chillicothe, Mo., who claims direct lineage from President Monroe, a strange treasure which has been there unnoticed since 1825.

Dr. Cabell has written to Senator Stone making a claim for it. The doctor says that in 1825 the Emperor of Japan made a gift to President Monroe of a cask which contained "Pearls, diamonds and a lump of gold."

That this cask should be developed is conceded. The Navy Department is anxious to obtain it for its warships on the Pacific fleet is either shipped around the Atlantic Coast at a heavy expense, or is imported from foreign markets. Moreover, big commercial industries on the Pacific Coast that require coal of high grade are anxious to get the coal from Alaska. The cask, not a single acre of Alaska coal land has even been patented, title to all of it still remaining in the Government.

DEMAND PRESSING FOR ALASKA COAL

Quality Is Such It Would Supplant Fuel Navy Now Brings From East.

NO LANDS YET PATENTED

Congressman Sees Hand of 'Coal Barons' in Delay—Law to Promote Development to Be Sought This Session.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash., Dec. 17.—Senators and Representatives from the Pacific Coast states will undertake, during the session of Congress, to frame and pass some practical law which will permit the entry and development of government coal lands in Alaska. This is utterly impossible under existing law, and in consequence the vast coal deposits of the big territory lie dormant, except where individuals, in isolated spots, are digging out enough coal to supply local needs.

Under the Cunningham act, therefore, brought into the forelight, little attention had been paid to Alaska's coal possibilities. It was known in a general way that coal was there, but it was never known that the best coal on the Pacific Coast, and the only American coal on the Coast adapted to naval use, is stored away in the mountains of Alaska. Nor was it known that in spite of the fact that Congress three times has attempted to provide a means for patenting the development of this coal, not a single acre of Alaska coal land has even been patented, title to all of it still remaining in the Government.

Navy Needs Coal.

That this coal should be developed is conceded. The Navy Department is anxious to obtain it for its warships on the Pacific fleet is either shipped around the Atlantic Coast at a heavy expense, or is imported from foreign markets. Moreover, big commercial industries on the Pacific Coast that require coal of high grade are anxious to get the coal from Alaska.

This condition, in the opinion of those interested, should not be allowed to pressure will be brought to bear to get through Congress some sort of practical law that will open the way for the development of this coal land, so that the fuel may be put upon the market.

Eastern Influence Seen.

Mr. Kahn calls attention to the fact that coal for the Navy on the Pacific Coast is now, in the main, purchased on the Atlantic Coast, shipped around to the Pacific, and then delivered to the warships or Navy-yards at a cost far in excess of what would have to be paid for equally desirable coal from Alaska. He believes that the capitalists interested in selling Pocahontas coal to the Navy have had a hand in regarding the development of the Alaska coal fields, so long as Alaska's coal is not obtainable, there will be a heavy demand for their coal, and this they propose shall continue as long as possible.

While Mr. Kahn does not charge that the theoretical conservationists are tools in the hands of the Pocahontas coal operators—the Coal Trust, he is sure to state that these conservationists are actually promoting the cause of the coal barons of the East by making competition impossible. In other words, by setting up the Alaska coal in a sack, and preventing its development, the conservationists have given the Pocahontas coal people a monopoly on the Pacific Coast so far the Navy is concerned, just as by sewing up the Nation's timber, they have played into the hands of Weyerhaeuser and other lumber barons.

There are other men on the Pacific Coast who agree with Representative Kahn, and in addition to them should be mentioned Representative John W. Wiggins, chairman of the public lands committee, before whose committee must pass any legislation looking to the further development of Alaska's coal resources.

TABERNACLE MUST BE SOLD

High School and Presbyterians to Bid for Lumber.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 17.—(Special.)—The tabernacle built at a cost of $50 by the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Christian churches in order to provide a building in which to conduct special revival services under the auspices of these four churches and which was capable of seating 2500 persons, will be sold tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, at public auction to the highest bidder. There are 34,000 feet of lumber in it and the lumber was put in with saws instead of axes so that the building might be torn down and the lumber sold.

The high school will bid on the building to get the lumber to erect a play stage, and the Presbyterians wish to buy it that they may use the material in constructing a new chapel on Vancouver Heights.

MRS. BROKAW HIDES FACE

Mr. Gilbert looked at the plaintiff. She shook her head and smiled. So did Justice Putnam as she made good her word.

General surprise was caused when Attorney Baldwin, after concluding his examination of J. Bullard Blair, announced that the plaintiff rested. It was assumed that Baldwin was holding his other witnesses for possible use in rebuttal.

Brokaw Raises Censorship.

Blair testified that at a hotel in Paris he found his sister weeping over the discovery that Brokaw had placed a censorship over her mail.

When Blair asked Brokaw the reason for this, Brokaw declared there had been a mistake and stepped over to the hotel

CLERK'S DESK DIRECTED THAT MRS. BROKAW BE GIVEN ALL HER MAIL.

Witnesses for the defense were examined by Attorney Bush, Brokaw's personal counsel. Henry Knox, an engineer, who was at the Brokaw place at High Point, N. C., in the Fall of 1908, said the Brokaws seemed very happy.

"Childish Spats" Frequent.

After the New Year party, however, he noticed a slight estrangement. What the witness called "childish spats" became frequent.

"I can't recall in my 25 years' acquaintance with Billy Brokaw ever seeing him look a drop of blue," Knox declared, "until the first break occurred, when Mrs. Brokaw left the lodge."

The witness would not say that Brokaw was drinking even then, but simply that he seemed "benumbed by some grief."

Knox said the Brokaws disagreed on everything.

"If Billy said a vegetable was a turnip," he testified, "Mary would declare she saw a fly."

Asked to describe the manner of the couple's speech, Knox replied: "That's hard. Everything was chaos—perfect chaos. Mrs. Brokaw was excitable; her conversation was jerky and flitting."

"Did you ever see a horse poke his nose into a barrel of flour, spluttering in every direction?"

The answer caused laughter in the courtroom.

DIVORCE REVEALS CHILD

CHICAGO TRAVELING MAN DID NOT KNOW HE WAS PAPA.

Charles X. Clancy, Wedded Six Years, Is Surprised to Find He Is a Father.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Wedded six years during which time he had no intimation that the stork had visited his home, Charles X. Clancy, a traveling auditor, of this city, astonished yesterday when he learned that his wife had filed a divorce complaint alleging that Clancy had deserted her and her 2-year-old child.

"Not until I was served with the divorce papers did I know that I was a father," said Clancy in discussing his surprise with friends. "What am I to do? I suppose I should be passing around the cigars on the arrival of the youngster into the family, but it seems a bit late now. Believe me, I want to find out all about the child. It may have been born during one of my trips away from home, but where did my wife keep it when I was at home? Mrs. Clancy and I have been living apart since last April."

Determined to discover whether the child was born to his wife or whether it was adopted by her, and also objecting to the divorce action, Clancy yesterday engaged an attorney and began preparations for a legal fight. The nature of the answer which Clancy will mention in her bill, it is said that the legality of the adoption will be attacked because she did not secure her husband's consent to the adoption previous to her marriage. Mrs. Clancy was on the stage. The desire of the wife to return to the stage is reported to have caused the separation of the couple.

FIVE SUGAR TRUST EMPLOYEES CAUGHT

Government Succeeds in Winning All but One Conviction.

MERCY IS RECOMMENDED

Former Cashier of Sugar Refining Company's Willamsburg Plant Is Not Found Guilty, as Jury Disagrees.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The jury today found guilty five of the six employees of the American Sugar Refining Company who have been on trial for the last three weeks, charged with criminal conspiracy to defraud the Government of customs duties on imported sugar.

In the case of James F. Bendoricg, a former cashier of the company's Willamsburg plant, the jury, out 10 hours, disagreed.

Mercy is recommended for all those found guilty.

Others May Be Punished.

Under the indictment Oliver Spitzer, a dock superintendent; John R. Coyle, Thomas Kehoe, Edward A. Boyle and Patrick J. Hennessy, checkers, may be punished for the commission of two overt acts, the maximum penalty for each of which is two years' imprisonment and $5000 fine.

The failure to convict Cashier Bendoricg is regarded by the Government as a distinct disappointment. The effort of the prosecution has been to trace the customs frauds already admitted to a higher source and Bendoricg, though not an executive officer of the company, was an employee who came in contact with those who shaped the company's affairs in their largest aspects.

Conspiracy to Be Proved.

In the final argument Henry L. Stimson, special attorney for the prosecution, reviewed the evidence by which the Government is trying to prove that these men conspired to defraud the Custom-House by underweighing sugar at the Willamsburg docks.

"If the attorneys for the defense," said Mr. Stimson, "had been retained by the men higher up, in any other way, they could not have made an argument better adapted to serve the interests of these men 'higher up'."

Judge Martin told the jury that it made no difference who had a part in the planning, if the defendants had a hand in executing the alleged frauds.

"Should you have the opinion," he said, "that there are others in higher stations of life not reached by this indictment who have participated in the fraud charged here, that must have no weight with you."

Prisoners Out on Parole.

As other indictments are pending against the convicted five on which they are to be tried, it was agreed by the Government that they be paroled in custody of counsel with leave to renew bail when argument for a new trial is heard.

Mr. Stimson moved that the indictment against the ex-cashier be severed from that of the other defendants. To this the court agreed.

Bendoricg put in a strong defense by the introduction of testimony of prominent character witnesses. Tomorrow a date will be fixed for the argument on application for new trial.
