NAVAL RESERVE SCORNED

Civilian Recommendations for 10,-000 Force Criticised by Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Notwithstanding the attempt to unify the workings of the Navy Department, recommendations by the civilian heads of the department for the establishment of a naval reserve of 10,000 men seem to have met with acrid criticism by naval officers.

From time immemorial a hostile opposition to any plan of making the haval militia a naval reserve has found impression among officers of the Navy. The only kind of a naval, reserve that would receive the sanction of naval officers would be one that would have practical sea-going men as members. A reserve composed of men who bers. A reserve composed of men who know little of ships of sea, officered by their fellows, equally without experience and chosen perhaps because of social or financial standing, is regurded as little better than useless.

The misunderstanding was due to the fact that the game Friday night was awarded, 8 to 6, by Umpire Washburn to the Honeyman team when the lights were turned out at the end of the seventh inning, as the score stood 6 to 5 in favor of the Y. M. C. A.
