IRRIGATION PLANS GROW

EASTERN INVESTORS SEEKING FIELDS FOR INVESTMENT.

C. B. Hurt, Leader in Development Enterprises, Tells of Big Projects Under Way.

C. B. Hurt, of Boise, Idaho, one of the foremost men in the West in the development of irrigation projects, and the active head of the Clinton Hurt Company, is at the Portland. He is here to keep in touch with Central Oregon and possible opportunities in that section. Mr. Hurt, however, does not confine his activities to either Idaho or Oregon. He is already interested in Montana and Wyoming, and has representatives in the states of Washington, California, Arizona and New Mexico and even Texas, looking up feasible irrigation and land deals. His financial connections are now with Chicago and New York and will probably be extended to London, where some of the big bond houses have been operating in Canada and have become familiar with irrigation in the United States.

Referring to irrigation in this state Mr. Hurt said that his company was pleased with the progress it was making with the Owyhee project. This includes the Malheur enterprise that the Government abandoned last October.

"The Owyhee is the largest irrigation scheme in Oregon," said Mr. Hurt, "and contemplates the reclamation of approximately 300,000 acres. The waters of the Owyhee River will be conserved in a reservoir 70 miles south of Vale, with the capacity of 480,000 acre feet, which means sufficient water to cover 480,000 acres 12 inches deep and this necessarily involves a colossal dam of steel and concrete construction."

"In Southern Idaho it is possible the Twin Falls-Bruneau extension will materialize, and if it does, there will be 600,000 acres reclaimed, the largest Carey act project in the United States. The cost of this extension will run into eight figures."

"In Idaho public sentiment is overwhelmingly with Secretary Ballinger, and the exit of Mr. Pinchot 'delighted' the whole state. The Secretary of State, Mr. Lansdon, in the absence of Governor Brady, promptly telegraphed a congratulatory message to President Taft. The Idaho folks think there is more conversation in Pinchot's methods than conservation. They favor real but not theoretical and impractical conservation of our natural resources."

WINING WIDOW PAYS FINE

Handkerchief Flirtation Costs Mrs. Lawler of Oregon City $10.

Mrs. Amelia Lawler, a widow of 29, who resides in Oregon City, was arraigned before Judge Bennett in the Municipal Court yesterday morning for a handkerchief flirtation which the accused woman carried on the day before at the corner of Sixth and Stark streets. With her dresses pulled high above the line of conventionalities, she moved along the street with deliberate motions, with a dainty lace handkerchief held between the tips of her fingers, which she waved at passerby.

Mrs. Lawler admitted that she had been dining with friends and that perhaps a little wine had caused an unusual exuberance of spirits. Judge Bennett imposed a fine of $10.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Dirt Pile Starts Fist Fest, Ending in Court

Portland Woman Appears Before Judge With Black Eye.

MRS. GEORGE STEWART, 432 Fourteenth street, North, was haled before Judge Bennett in the Municipal Court yesterday for having beaten Mrs. Mattie Dorthy, who occupies rooms in the same house. Mrs. Stewart had a black eye and Mrs. Dorthy had a swelling on the cheek under the eye nearly as large as a hen's egg. Mrs. Jennie Strife and Mrs. H. Kephart, other lodgers in the house, were summoned as witnesses. The women had quarreled because Mrs. Dorthy had swept a little dirt into a pile in front of Mrs. Stewart's door and had forgotten to remove it.

Each one of the witnesses had a slang word for "blow." Mrs. Dorthy, the one most injured, said she had been "soaked." Mrs. Stewart admitted that she had "swiped" her and Mrs. Strife and Mrs. Kephart differed in that one said she had been "swatted," and the other classified it as a "wallop."

Each of the witnesses told a different story but the salient feature of it remained unshaken and that was that Mrs. Stewart, 28 years old, is the proud possessor of an athletic punch and that she landed it upon Mrs. Dorthy, several years her senior, with such telling effect that Mrs. Dorthy was knocked down a flight of stairs.

After having taken this punishment Mrs. Dorthy displayed her grit by rising and returning to the fray. She clinched with her hard-hitting antagonist and taking a strange hold upon her back hair pulled until peace was declared. During the scuffle a key in the hands of Mrs. Dorthy struck the eyeball of Mrs. Stewart, inflicting painful injuries.
