Money Taken and Trade Enforced.—Nathan Freedman, a North End horse-trader and peddler, was arrested inte yesterday afternoon upon a watrant from the Municipal Court charging him with larceny. The complainant is Michael Banks, an old pensioned soldier living on Swan Island. According to Banks, Freedman first piled him with liquor and then, when he was unable to take care of himself, forcibly took the money from his hands and went off with it. Banks declares that Freedman also traded horses with him against his will, leaving horses with him against his will, leaving him a horse he had refused to take, which was unbroken and which re-quired the combined efforts of three men to harness it. Freedman put up $200

COUNTY TO PAVE BOULEVARDS.—The Peninsular Development League has revived opposition to the city taking over the boulevards on the Peninsula, and wants the county to retain possession and title to them. At a meeting Wednesday night it was decided to ask the County Commissioners to retain possession of the Commissioners to retain possession of the boulevards and not turn them over to the city as proposed by the Mayor and Council. It was the sense of the league that to pave the wide boulevards with bard-surface improvements would result erty. The league indersed the movement to establish a public service commission and adopted plans to keep up the agita-tion for such a commission.

A poor musician won the heart of a rich girl, married her and left her in her father's home while he went abroad and made a name for himself. He learned, after a year in which his letters were unanswered, that she had died. Her father is an intolerant rich man, with a hatred for music, and a singular love for his lost daughter—and for the maiden child of that daughter, of whose existence the father was never appraised. The musician drifts back to New York 20 years after, and the daughter hears him singing in the park to the accompaniment of a harp. She invites him to her home because it is her birthday, and she knows she can prevail apon her grandfather to permit the intrusion. There is a scene between the musician and the father of the woman who died at the birth of the girl.

Mr. Steger faithfully expresses the A fine record has just been made by the Board of Education. Because of thorough preparation, none of the schools were forced to close during the long cold spell. Everything worked splendidly, and none of the thousands of pupils was obliged to lose any time because of closed rooms. "The public taste is becoming more elevated. Vaudeville sudiences are as susceptible as any others to the finer impulses, to touches of human sympaimpulses, to touches of human sympathy. Men and women who find joy in slapstick comedy and the dumpings of melodramatic turns and off-color songs have the same red blood in their veins as have other men and women, and they appreciate the laundrying process of their stage ideals as much as anyone. I emphatically believe in high-class drama in vaudeville, and while it is an innovation foreign to the generally acepted idea of variety, still it's going to make good—mark my words."
