JOHNSON SEEKING TO SHOW ANIMUS

Restaurant Man Accuses Policemen of Underlying Motive for Arrest.

SECOND TRIAL IS BEGUN

Detectives "Pounced" Upon Defendant When Contributions Stopped, Declares Attorney — McKinley Mitchell Excused as Juror.

Ed Johnson, ex-proprietor of the Delmonico restaurant, at 149 Seventh street, is on trial before a jury of 12 in Judge Morrow's department of the Circuit Court, on a second charge of having sold beer without a liquor license from the city. It is charged that he sold to Mr. Mackey, proprietor of the Valley cafe, at Second and Main streets, two bottles of beer on August 25, Henry Goetz, a bartender, and two women being with Mackey at the time. This was the occasion of a raid upon the Delmonico by Joe Kienlen, a plain-clothes policeman.

Kienlen testified yesterday afternoon that Special Policeman Ed Maher told him that he was in the habit of receiving cash from Johnson for "special protection," as Kienlen expressed it. Kienlen admitted that it was after these payments ceased that he raided the Delmonico at the instance of Police Captain Slover. He told of having had a conversation with Maher about the money payments on Johnson's part as long ago as in 1905, when Johnson was conducting the West Coast oyster parlors. Another conversation took place a short time before the raid was made.

Kienlen was asked whether he told Captain Slover he would "get him," meaning Johnson, and said that he did, and that he "intended to get him if he continued to violate the law." Johnson was operating under a Government liquor license permitting wholesale business, but a license had been refused by the City Council.

Further questioning of Sergeant Kienlen brought out that while Johnson was conducting the West Coast restaurant a complimentary dinner was given for him and Tom Kay by Johnsond. Kienlen said that he offered to pay Johnson, but that Johnson would accept nothing.

Objection to this testimony by Deputy City Attorney Sullivan brought out the statement from Attorney Seneca Fouts that he desired "to show the animus of this thing."

"These officers pounced upon Johnson as soon as he failed to keep up his contributions to Mackey," said Mr. Fouts.

Kienlen began then to narrate how Johnson once tried to "fix" Maher's testimony in the Municipal Court relative to two young men who were arrested in the West Coast restaurant in 1905. "That was while I was patroling the beat," said Kienlen. Fouts refused to permit Kienlen to continue with his testimony, Judge Morrow upholding him in his objections.

One of the special veniremen subpenaed for the Johnson jury was McKinley Mitchell. When Deputy Sullivan discovered the situation he asked that Mitchell be excused. Attorneys Fouts and Ideman objected, as Sullivan already had exhausted the three peremptory challenges allowed him by law. The law provides, however, that in the discretion of the judge further challenges may be allowed, and after hearing both sides in private, Judge Morrow excused Mitchell. The completed jury is as follows: J. B. Kellogg, G. W. Nothnagle, N. Legault, J. T. McCable, J. H. Criteser, G. N. Ogden, W. W. Savage, J. J. Allard, G. A. Cornish, Z. Fitzgerald, Albert Bittner and George J. Rees.

Lewiston Poultry Men to Organize.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Jan. 21.—(Special.)—A movement has been started by Lewiston poultrymen to organize a branch of the American Poultry Breeders' Association and assurances of the necessary charter members have been secured. As soon as the branch organization has been perfected, committees will be appointed to arrange for a big poultry show here next Fall.

DAILY METEOROLOGICAL REPORT.
