RULING OF WARDEN STIRS FISHERMEN

River Alone" Alleged at Mass Meeting.

SPORTSMEN WILL RESIST

McAllister Says No Agreement Was Made, but Bill Affecting Tributary Waters Died in Committee of Legislature.

OREGON CITY, Or., Jan. 30 .- (Spe statement of Master Fish Warden H. C. McAllister that the Oregon Legislature overlooked the closing of the Williamette River from March 1 to May 1, last night at the mass meeting of the fishermen of Oregon City and vi cinity, and the Warden was criticised for statements that the fishermen deciare unfounded. Warden McAllister was quoted as saying that the fisheries committee of the Oregon Logislature forgot to include the Willamette River in the bill agreed upon by the Legisla-tures of Oregon and Washington pro-viding for a close season on the Columbia River.

Error, Jones Insists.

Representative Linn E. Jones in sisted that Mr. McAllister was in error. Mr. Jones was a member of the House committee on fisheries and was present at the hearing held at Salem during the last legislative session.

the last legislative session.

"McAllister agreed to leave the Willamette River alone," said Mr. Jones, last night, "and he knew that the elimination of the tributaries of the Columbia from the bill was made with a complete knowledge of conditions."

"Mr. McAllister has stated that Oremore would be about faith with the Wash-gon would break faith with the Washington fishermen by leaving the Willamette and Clackamas open," said George Brown, who represented the local fishermen's union here today, "and that in this event it would be impos-sible to obtain joint legislation from Oregon and Washington in the future. In view of the fact that the Washing-ton Legislature was in session two weeks later than the Oregon Legislature, this statement is peculiar. Members of the Washington Legislature must have known the provisions of the Oregon bill before they adjourned."

Sportsmen Will Resist Ruling.

Not only the gill net fishermen, but the anglers, as well, are prepared to fight the edict of the State Board of Fish Commissioners. The Board's or-der closes the Willamette and Clackamas to every kind of fishing for sal mon and shuts out hundreds of sports-men from Portland and Oregon City who had royal times last Spring in the latter part of April and the early part of May. Representatives of the hook and line fishermen were present at last night's meeting, as were Portland fish

The law provides a close season for the Columbia of two and one-half months of the year and the close sea-son of the Willamette and Clackamas is seven months. The ordinary close season for this territory is from March 15 to April 15, and from June 15 to November 1, when the river is opened until March 15. If the Beard of Fish go out on the river from May 1 to June 15, when the back water from the Columbia makes it impossible to fish with success, as the fishermen are unable to use their gear.

M'ALLISTER DENIES PROMISE

"Plainly Misunderstanding." Master Warden Replies to Critics.

Master Fish Warden McAllister last night denied emphatically that he ever had promised the Willamette River fisher-men he would "leave the Willamette River alone" and not extend to that stream the same provisions as to salmon fishing which are enforced against the Columbia River fishermen. Mr. McAllister further said that the construction which had been placed on his remarks by the dissatisfied fishermen at Oregon by the dissatisfied fishermen at Oregon City was plainly the result of a misunder-standing on their part.

"In the Oregon Legislature last Winter," said Mr. McAllister, "the bill providing for uniform legislation for the protection of the salmon industry in the Columbia River, as it was approved by the joint fisheries committee of Oregon and Washington, was introduced in the Senate. When the bill had passed that body, it was sent over to the House, where it was referred to the judiclary committee. Representatives Jones and Dimick, of Clackamas County, appeared before that committee and it was not until then that we discovered the words, 'and tributaries,' had been omitted from the bill.

Bill Put in Jeopardy.

Bill Put in Jeopardy.

These members of the Clackamas dele-

These members of the Clackamas delegation asked me if the bill as it stood would apply to the Willamette and the Clackamas rivers. I told them that it would not. They also asked if I proposed to have the missing words inserted so that the provisions of the bill would extend to the two streams in which they were interested. I replied by telling them that since the session was drawing near its close. I would not jeopardize the chances of the bill by offering any amendments which would not jeopardize the chances of the bill by offering any amendments which would not jeopardize the chances of the bill by offering any amendments which would necessitate sending the measure back to the Senate.

"At the same time, however, I did explain to Jones and Dimick that there was then pending before the fisherles committee in the House another bill which established for the Willamette and Clackamas rivers the same closed seasons as were provided for the Columbia River in the bill, the necessity for amending the original measure would be obviated. This bill, however, was killed in the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result was that the fisheries committee, of which Mr. Jones was a member. The result of the light and the stable provision w rivers continued to enjoy the privilege of fishing for 30 days in March and April when the fishermen on the Columbia were forbidden by law to operate.

Effort Made to Keep Faith.

"The order of the State Board of Fish Commissioners, which becomes effective March I, applies to all kinds of fishing on the Willamette and Clackamas, including angling, during the same seasons of the year that fishing on the Columbia is prohibited. In making this order the board is merely striving to keep faith with the Washington authorities. It is futile to undertake to protect the salmon by enforcing the law only on the Columbia River and at the same time allow fishermen 10 operate on its tributaries. fulle to undertake to protect the salmon by enforcing the law only on the Commbia River and at the same time allow fishermen to operate on its tributaries. That is the only reason the board has made the order which does not work any discrimination against the Willemetta Onling & Taylor.

ides that they must comply with the ose operating on the lower river.

"The Oregon City people are certainly istaken in their representations as to y position. In the first place, it is not my position. In the first place, it is not my province to promise them or any other section immunity from enforcement of uniform laws for the regulation and protection of the saimon industry of the state. The board will exercise every precaution under the law which authorizes it to close any and all streams which may be deemed necessary for the propagation.

Every Phase of Science of Agriculture to Be Expounded for Five Days in February.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COL-LEGE. Corvalis, Jan. 30. (Special.)-The Winter short courses at this col-lege will close with a Farmers' Meet, beginning February 14 and continuing five days. Every phase of the science of agriculture will be expounded.

The last day will be largely a poul try day. During the day there will be a poultry show in the new college barn, and in the evening there will be Hiustrated poultry talks in the Armory by several speakers. Specimens of different varieties of fowls will be on exhibition at the show. They will come from the best-known breeders in Oregon. Some of the college stock will be exhibited to illustrate different three pairs of twins born last year were three pairs of boys and one pair of girls. types of layers, and comparisons wil be made of the hen with the high egg record with that of the poor rec-ord. Poultry students will engage in a judging contest, prizes being offered for best work. Incumbators will be hatching chicks.

Day-old chicks will be shown in brooders of different kinds. One kind will be heated by a cosl-oil lamp, an other by electricity, another by a hot-water jug, showing that there are different ways of caring for chicks arti-ficially. Not to be outdone by modern contrivances, nature's way of hatching and brooding chicks will be demon-strated by the hen.

Poultry food, feeding rations, equip-ment and appliances of different kinds for poultry farming, will be displayed. Colony houses, hatching and brooding houses will be thown: in fact everything necessary for successful poultry farming.

The "electric hen" that attracted President Taft's attention at the A.-Y.-P. and won the grand prize, also will be on exhibition.

Paper Published Free Prescription Which Attained Gratifying Re-

In an eastern city of over one hundred thousand population, nearly every case of kidney disease has disappeared and physicians marvel at the "power of the press." It seems that the local paper copied a prescription said to be used by a German specialist with great success in the treatment of kidney and bladder derangements. Such magnificent results attended the publication that the paper continued it week after week, giving the symptoms and prescriptions as follows: Deranged kidneys and bladder are indicated by dry parched skin, hot and cold sensations, frequent burning or scanty urination (especially at night) with bad odor, tender spots in the back, loss of weight, morning weariness, swollen feet and ankles, backache, headache, infiamed eyes, etc.
