Training Camp Not Chosen.

The games scheduled with the White Sox are to be played in four different towns, Madera, San Louis Oblepo, Salinas and Ventura, and the other game may be played at Santa Maria. McCredie has not definitely selected a training camp, but he says the Portland players will be ordered to report at either Madera or Santa Maria, both of which towns are located within a few miles of San Luis Obispo, where the team trained last

Manager McCredie also announced that he would insist on every member of his squad signing a contract before he re-ports, and no player whose signature is not in the possession of the tail manager will be welcomed in the training squad, nor will transportation be sent any of the holdouts until their contract is returned stored bigned.

According to the Portland manager all of his players, with the exception of the squad wintering in Portland, Ivan Olson, who is at his home in Kansas, and Phil Lezie, have signed up. McCredic re-ceived a lotter from Lezie yesterday, con-tacting the playar's addraws and a containing the player's address, and a con-tract was immediately forwarded him. Jesse Garrett, Howard Guyn, Charles Armbruster, Ivan Olson, Phil Lezie, Jimny Shinn and Tommy Murray are the Portlanders who have not yet signed but in the case of the first three named their contracts have not been submitted to them, and McCredie does not antici-pate any difficulty in coming to terms with these players, for all are conscientious, gentlemanly fellows who like Portland so well that they have remained here during the off season.

Their science and ability preclude that, as a probability, but the unexpected is always to be reckoned with and if, by chance, Conley were to put Webster down for the count, the feat would place a new champion in the fleld. This is the first meeting between these two, and it also is Conley's first noteworthy engagement on the Pacific Coast, which indicates that he will try his best to show to equal advantage as an exponent of the boxing art with the little Los Angeles rival of Monte Attel for the championship honors. Webster has met Attell three times. On each occasion their bout was short and neither scored material advantage. This of itself is evidence that two strong, healthy and athletic youngsters can box ten or 15 rounds repeatedly and neither suffer ill effects from the exercise. Friends of Attell and Webster assert that both boys will be found on their feet even in the 45-round engagement for which they are matched

Conley now enters the ring at 116 to 120 pounds, but would rather meet an opponent at Wolgast's weight of 120 to 133 pounds. three meetings between Webster and Attell seem to have given each some claim to the title. This fact gives Frankie Conley an opportunity at least to make the claim triangular. When Bat Nelson met Joe Gans July 4, 1908, few had faith enough in him to plck him as the victor, yet he defeated the colored man who long had held supremacy, and then repeated the trick within three months. This is mentioned to illustrate how the unexpected becomes the expected even in the prizering-sometimes

In past performances, Danny Webster has shown himself to be clever, scientific and a ring general. He has a defensive style that will be a revelation.
