

HEENEY CAMPAIGN

California Friends Urging Claims of Prosecutor Before Primaries.

LECTURE OFFER REFUSED

Relying on "Good Government" Movement, Candidate Will Be Strong Outside San Francisco—Time May Have Passed.

Through telegrams received in Portland yesterday, the knowledge is being put before the people that the name of Francis J. Heenev will be presented for the Republican nomination for Governor of California in the next primary.

When asked for a statement last night, Mr. Heenev refused to discuss the subject in any particular. It was impossible to persuade the speaker to discuss the Oregon land frauds and the San Francisco graft cases either to confirm or deny the rumor.

Labor Accused of "Deal."

It is asserted that the indorsement given to Curry by the Building Trades Council is the outcome of a deal made during the recent campaign when Fickert, the Republican nominee for District Attorney, was placed on the labor ticket with Mayor McCarthy.

Other counties in California are said to have been dissatisfied with the manner in which Republican nominees were judged at that time, and the interests which backed the prosecutions of the grafting Supervisors and Patrick Calhoun, in the traction cases, have been endeavoring for several weeks in arranging the move that will place Heenev at the head of the state ticket.

It also is known that Heenev repeatedly has refused attractive offers to go upon the lecture platform in connection with the California reform campaign, and it is held by his friends that his rejection of a lecturing contract, which would have netted him from $25,000 to $40,000, was because he wanted to be in the state to participate in the campaign for Governor.

Strength Greatest Outside.

That Heenev has a larger percentage of followers in California outside of San Francisco than any other candidate is accepted as a fact by those familiar with the conditions that prevail in that state.

Before the recent political campaign in San Francisco, which resulted in the defeat of Heenev for the office of District Attorney, John Sweeney, ex-president of the San Francisco Labor Council, was employed by the reform forces of California to stump the state in favor of the candidacy of Heenev.

John Sweeney is the leader of the labor element opposing McCarthy. Returning from his state campaign, he declared that the sentiment in favor of Heenev throughout the state is strong.

Another strong labor leader who is outspoken for Heenev is Walter McArthur, editor of the Seaman's Journal. He took an active part in the election of P. H. McCarthy as Mayor of the city.

Labor Leader Refuses Place.

The reform forces of San Francisco, feeling the strength of Walter McArthur as a labor leader and desiring to offset the sentiment among many laboring men that votes should be cast for a labor union man, no matter what might be his personal standing in the city, invited McArthur to head their ticket as candidate for Mayor.

After talking under careful and careful consideration, McArthur addressed a meeting of the reform forces and declared that he would refuse the nomination, even if it were possible at that stage to get the necessary petitions for placing him on the ballot, as he feared that it would result in too great a confusion of issues to be presented at the election of Heenev as District Attorney, which, after all, he declared, was the important campaign.

The next state election in California will be the first one to be held for state officers under the new direct primary law of California. It has been expected by the reformers of the state that the first state election under the direct primary law would show a strong reaction from the machine rule that has dominated in the past and that a reform ticket, if made up of good men, certainly would gain a victory.

STRENGTH WAXES AT HOME

Nomination Unquestioned Year Ago, May Be Doubtful Now.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Generally speaking, the politicians of California and particularly the organization that dominates the Republican party, do not regard the proposed candidacy of Francis J. Heenev for the Governorship seriously. It is understood here that Heenev is a receptive candidate and would accept the nomination of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League or some other good-government body, but it is believed that he will be advised against any such step.

Had the primary taken place a year ago, there is no question that Heenev would have been a formidable candidate. As it stands, however, and with the San Francisco election in the past, Heenev has been more or less discredited with the powers that be, and also with the people. Heenev would therefore have to seek for his vote entirely among the good-government forces.

The machine, which undoubtedly is the factor in the Republican party, will have nothing to turn him down. In such circumstances, a candidate would have to show immense popular support in the state at large, and this Heenev can hardly claim. Past May Be Forgotten.

There is a feeling that it is well to let bygones be bygones and that Heenev is no necessity for raising the issues that were discussed so bitterly in the San Francisco campaign. So general is this feeling that the state that Heenev's name has not been mentioned in any extent in the country press and unquestionably he has lost much ground.

The withdrawal of Governor Gillett from among the candidates means that there will be many seeking the nomination at the hands of the Republicans. Indications are that the organization will be behind Charles Curry, Secretary of State, and that Alden Anderson, ex-Lieutenant-Governor, and Charles M. DeWahl, State Senator, will also be in the running.

South May Get Prize.

The district south of the Tehachapi, including Los Angeles County, runs up so strong a vote these days that it has to be reckoned with and it is whispered that it is likely that the future strong candidate the party organization would be behind him. Just what the Lincoln-Roosevelt will do is a matter for debate and it is likely that they have not decided.

Much will depend on the other candidates in the field. Chester Rowell, of the Fresno Republican, and one of the stalwarts of the reform wing, would like the nomination, if he is assured there is chance of election. Undoubtedly the good-government people will be in the field, but they have made little or no move yet.

CATHOLIC WOMEN BUSY

AUXILIARY TO MEN'S CLUB IS FORMED—MISS RYAN HEADS.

Temporary Officers Chosen and Arrangements Made to Construct Apartments for Fair Sex.

* At a meeting held in the clubrooms of the Catholic Young Men's Club yesterday a women's auxiliary was formally organized and a set of provisional rules were handed over to A. Veiguth, president of the association.

Miss K. Ryan was elected chairman and Miss Floretta Veiguth secretary. These officers are temporary and at a meeting in the near future a complete list of permanent officers will be elected.

Arrangements are being made to construct women's apartments in the eastern section of the clubhouse. The quarters will be elaborately furnished. On Monday afternoons and evenings and on Saturdays the women's auxiliary will have the entire use of the gymnasium and accessories. Many women of the East Side have been endeavoring for some time to organize a club with athletic features and baths, and the new auxiliary is expected to fill the want.

The girls of the club have organized a first-class basketball team, with Floretta Veiguth as captain. For the purpose of becoming better acquainted, the women and young men of the club have decided to give a presentation card party and dance Thursday evening in the C. Y. M. C. auditorium, and all the club members are urged to attend. The next Monday evening in the Christian Brothers "gym." Duke Mullen has been made captain of the C. Y. M. C. team.

The club expects to have a fast outdoor baseball team this Spring and a meeting will be called soon to elect a temporary captain and get a line on the material. Ray Kennedy probably will act as coach. Games are being arranged with various interscholastic club and college teams.

CEMENT SHIPMENTS GROW

Contracts for Year Show California Portland Trade to Be Heavy.

Contracts already made for the shipment of cement from California to Portland for this year indicate that more than twice the amount will be shipped this year than was transported here last year. This statement was given yesterday at the office of the California and Oregon Coast Steamship Company, which will move much of that material this season.

To one firm in Portland more than 100,000 tons of cement will be shipped this year. This is said to be Ryan in advance of the entire shipments of cement to Portland last year, and is additional to the amount to be shipped here for a number of other firms.

Each year the amount of cement shipped to this place increases from domestic ports, and decreases it is stated, from foreign ports. The reason for the falling off of the importation of cement from distant countries is due to high freight rates and to the tariff.

Portland, Oregon has manufactured but little cement, but recently it was reported that projects for the extensive manufacture of cement in this state were to be set on foot, but they have not yet taken definite form.

GRAFF SEEMS SAFE

Schooner Virginia Only Waiting, Says Skipper.

GALE BARS ITS ENTRANCE

Tug Captain Discerned No Damage or Danger Saturday—Master of Vessel Is Careful Mariner. Shipping Men Confident.

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—No trace of the four-masted schooner Virginia, which has been outside the heads since January 15, was seen today, either from North Head or by the bar tug or any of the incoming steamers. As high seas are running and the bar is breaking across, it is supposed Captain Knudson is standing off shore until weather conditions improve.

Reports that the Virginia had been damaged in the recent gale are unfounded so far as known here. Yesterday afternoon the tug Tatoosh was within four miles of the Virginia and Captain Reed says the schooner appeared not to be damaged.

Captain Knudson, master of the Virginia, is a careful and capable mariner, familiar with these waters, and as the vessel has plenty of provisions on board, shipping men do not consider the vessel in any danger. She has simply encountered baffling winds and gales that have made it impossible for her to make her way back to the Columbia at a time when she could be brought in.

The same may be said of the schooner W. F. Jewett, 27 days out from San Pedro, which has not been seen since she was spoken by the schooner Expander four days before that vessel reached this port.

Officers of the steam schooner Thomas L. Wand, which arrived in Portland yesterday from San Francisco, declared that when the schooner was sighted near Astoria Saturday morning the four masted schooner which has been reported to be the Virginia, was sighted near at hand. It was the opinion of the officers that the schooner was the Virginia, although they were not close enough to determine positively the identity of the vessel.

At the office of the superintendent of towage of the Port of Portland it was stated that when the tug Tatoosh went out to search for the supposed Virginia Saturday, it was impossible for the tug to get close enough to determine the identity of the vessel. Some doubt was expressed regarding whether the mysterious schooner sighted was the Virginia.

than the tug could steam, and the chase was abandoned. It was stated at the Ash-street dock office of the Port of Portland yesterday, that the tugs belonging to the Port would make another effort to locate the mysterious schooner as soon as weather conditions will permit.

BREAKWATER IN OVER BAD BAR

Several Other Vessels Fear to Attempt Trip Into River.

Until late in the afternoon yesterday no vessel was able to cross the Columbia River bar, except the steamer Breakwater, which left up the river from Astoria 10 o'clock and arrived in Portland at six last night. Captain Macginn braved the rough bar, and brought his vessel safely into the river, while other vessels lay off the bar fearing to cross.

Leaving Coos Bay, the Breakwater crossed a rough bar also on Saturday, and encountered the same difficulty on the southeast all the way up the coast. When asked if he had seen anything of the four-masted schooner supposed to be the Virginia, Captain Macginn said that the spray and rain was so dense that only things near at hand could be sighted. Thus it was impossible to determine if another vessel was in the vicinity of the Breakwater, unless it should be at close range.

The Breakwater brought up 300 tons of general merchandise from Coos Bay. She also brought up 50 passengers.

Schooner Brings Powder Cargo.

Two hundred tons of powder for the Dupont Powder magazine at Martin's Bluff, were brought to the latter place yesterday by the steam schooner Hornet from San Francisco. The Hornet will come up to Portland with the remainder of her cargo as soon as she has discharged her powder. Besides the powder carried on the Hornet, she brought a consignment of oil and another of cement for Portland.

Cargo of Raw Sugar Arrives.

VICTORIA, Jan. 30.—The steamer Elefantia arrived today, 42 days from Mauritius, Isle de France, with a cargo of raw sugar for Vancouver.

Marine Notes.

Loaded with lumber for Cape Town, the American ship Gulf Stream left down the river yesterday morning at 7 o'clock. The steamer Santa Clara, of the North Pacific Steamship Company, which left down the river Saturday, was bar bound at Astoria yesterday until 3 P. M. With 900 tons of freight, including 250 tons of cement and 60 tons of plaster, the steamer left for Astoria yesterday at 4 o'clock. She experienced strong westerly gales all the way up the coast. The Wand will take lumber from Willapa Harbor to San Francisco.

U. S. LIVES TOO FAST

Evangelist Fred B. Smith Calls to America to Halt.

200 MEN ARE CONVERTED

Stirring Addresses Made Yesterday by Y. M. C. A. Secretary Bring Many to Realization of Wrong-Doing—Boosts Bryan.

More than 200 men were converted at the White Temple yesterday afternoon at the close of Fred B. Smith's stirring talk on "America's Greatest Sin." Although his voice showed the strain to which it has been put during the last few days, Mr. Smith, who is religious work secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spoke with a power that moved to tears many of the men in the crowd of 2000, which filled the double auditorium.

There were no women in the great crowd, for it was the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting, this having been transferred from the Association Hall on account of the large number of women who wished to hear the evangelist.

Before Mr. Smith arose to speak, Dr. J. Whitcomb Broughter expressed his appreciation to the men for the cordial manner in which they had received him during his pastorate in Portland, and said that on this, his last Sunday before leaving for Los Angeles, he was glad to see so many present. A. R. Gray then rendered a baritone solo, after which W. M. Ladd introduced Mr. Smith as an old acquaintance, "and the friend of every man present."

The New York pulpit orator took as a text the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy, which he referred to as a part of Moses' last sermon. The speaker compared the course of the United States, and said that Moses' warning, "Beware, lest ye forget God," is especially applicable to-day. He told his hearers that the fire of conviction, rationalism and fun are burning so fiercely that the fires of religion in the hearts of young Americans are submerged. He then discussed the causes, and incidentally scored Portland's moving picture shows.

"The other night, as I walked the streets of Portland, I said, 'God pity this poor town.' Hundreds of young men were standing in line, waiting to gain entrance to cheap 5 and 10-cent shows. I don't know that they were vicious. But listen to me, young men. If you have come to the place in life where, to be entertained you have to chase up and down the street looking for a little 5-cent show, God pity you. I don't know what they have inside, but if you have to be entertained that way, there isn't much that's deep in your heart. There is something in the Old Book which says it is better to go to the house of mourning than to the house of laughter. God deals with serious folk, and you shallow-pated, 5-cent show-bunter, God is not in your path today."

That the American Nation is money-minded today is the beller and the view taken yesterday morning by Mr. Smith in his address at the First Presbyterian Church. Mr. Smith took for his subject "Profit and Loss," viewing the question in the light of the cry for today, the "almighty dollar" as against "salvation for the soul."

Mr. Smith will speak to men in the Association Hall, Sixth and Taylor streets, at 12:15 today. He will speak again at the same place at 8 o'clock tonight.
