PORTLAND HOTEL SALE COMPLETED

Norman Bros. and Day Bros. Take Up Option on Majority of Stock.

$1,000,000 IS PAID OVER

New Owners Plan Big Improvements, Including Change of Ground Floor and Use of Court - Bowers to Stay.

Negotiations were closed Tuesday for the transfer of the majority of stock in the Portland Hotel, which was purchased by Ben, and William Norman, of Spokane, and by Harry and Eugene Day, of the Coeur d'Alene mining district, at approximately $900, -000. There are 4965 shares of the stock of the hotel company outstanding, and of these 95 per cent was taken over by the new owners at $190 a share. The purchasers have also deposited in the the new owners at $190 a share. The purchasers have also deposited in the First National Bank the required amount of money to purchase any other shares of outstanding stock which the holders may care to sell.

Announcement was made last night by William Norman that H. C. Bowers, the present manager of the hotel, would be retained at the head of the caravansary and would be elected as a director of the company at a meeting of the stockholders, to be held this morning. Mr. Norman also announced that he will spend the next several weeks in furthering plans for improving the ground-fleer frontage of the hotel, to make it into renting property, to increase the dividends. These immediate improvements, he estimated, may cost between $150,000 and $250,000.

Deal Begun Four Months Ago.

The deal was closed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Norman Bros. secured a four months' option on the hotel stock last October. Last Saturday Ben Norman appeared with less than half the money raised and asked for an extension on the option. This was refused by the Corbett estate, where of the majority of the stock, and Mr. Norman, returning to Spokane, managed to secure the full amount just in time.

Wednesday night William and Ben Norman, Eugene and Harry Day, A. F. McCleane, president and one of the largest stockholders of the Traders National isank of Spokane; Thomas H. Money Changes Hands.

This money was paid over yesterday afternoon and the stock was delivered. Mr. Norman said last night that every penny of the money had been raised in Spokane and that it was collected in

"I wish to deny emphatically that here has been any bad feeling between Mr. Corbett and ourselves," said William Norman. "It is this real estate valuation that I intend to develop. I already see many opportunities to increase returns on the property. First of all we will tear out property. First of all we will tear out the ground floor frontage and put in stores there. We have always developed our street frontage and we intend to improve the Portland Hotel along lines which will astonish the city. Of course, we will do something with that court. It is too valuable to waste and we will change it in some way to increase the room space of the hotel.

Summer That a Portland architect would get the contract is the assurance given by the new owners.

The big deal will not go on record as a real estate transaction in Multnomah County. There has been no change in the title to the property. The Hotel Company still owns the property, unengaged by any mortering and the Company still owns the property, unen-cumbered by any mortgage, and the transfer represents simply sale of the greater part of the stock. The new owners are W. S. Norman, Ben Norman, Harry L. Day, Engene R. Day, Mrs. Ed-ward Boyce, formerly Eleanor B. Day, Mrs. Rôbert H. Ellis, formerly Blanch Day, and Jerome J. Day, of Meseow, Ide. William S. Norman, as well as his brother Ben, is a native of England. the Hotel Spekane, Hotel Yakima, and Hotel Tacoma, as well as valuable real estate throughout Washington.

Harry L. and Eugene Day, immediate representatives of the Day family interests in the Portland deal, are types of sturdy Western business men, their success being interwoven with the history of the Hercules mine, one of the famous silver lead properties of the Couer d'Alene mining district and known as the richest mine of its kind on earth. The mine was originally located by Harry Day in 1889 and in 1901 the great strike was made which made the property one of the biggest dividend-payers in the world.

without a teacher, as the result of trouble in the school. Melvin Crumbaker, the teacher, has "resigned" at the request of the directors, whom he accuses of having locked him out of the schoolhouse after he had trouble with the pupils in a rough and tumble fight.

The trouble, as told by the pupils, the neighbors and Mr. Crumbaker, shows that the teacher emerged from the fight with torn clothes, broken eveglasses and numerous bruises. Phoche McInturff, a girl of 14, daughter of A. R. McInturff, director and clerk of the district, is given credit for putting the teacher, a well-built man, down and out. Crumbaker said he had undertaken to "whip one of the kids of a director, and they jumped on to me in a rough manner."

A. R. Mchurff asserts the school children all say that Mr. Crumbaker seized Clyde Mchurff by the collar, jerked him out and threatened him. Phoebe, fearing her brother would be seriously injured, seized the teacher by the hair, which is long and curly, and getting both hands well fastened in his locks, proceeded to wool him around. Then Clyde took a hand, the teacher was thrown to the floor and "roughed," the pupils cheering their classmates to victory.

The fight was reported to the directors, A. R. McInturff, Levy Wiggins and Samuel Hillgards, who held an investigation and decided that the teacher's "days of usefulness were over." Mr. Crumbaker went to Colfax to consult with County Superintendent Mattoon and upon his re-turn was refused admittance to the schoolhouse. He "resigned" and has gone to Colfax, where he was offered a postto Colfax, where he was offered a posi-tion as temporary teacher in Green Hol-low district, west of Colfax. "But his heated verblage will not deceive the American people or the Protestant world. The simple fact is that the Roman Catholic Church accepts the presence of any other church organization in Rome and Italy only because it is compelled to do so by the law of the land. "Another well-known fact is that, despite the laws of Italy, Rome does not believe in religious liberty and, wherever it has the power, forbids it."

Bishop Hartzell said Archbishop Ireland sought to cover up the real issue involved in the incident in which ex-Vice-President Fairbanks, "so nobly stood for, his rights to address a Methodist congregation in Rome, even if in so doing the Pope saw fit to give so distinct an illustration of the seemingly unchangeable purpose of the Roman Catholic Church to refuse proper recognition of all branches of the Christian Church outside of itself."

All night 40 unarmed white men "bluffed" off an attack of the 200 armed negroes. Barricades had been erected which looked to the enemy sufficiently threatening to inspire fear, Helpless women and children were thus protected from the attack loudly threatened by the negroes. At any time before the arrival of the squad of police the negroes could have captured the white camp. But they did not know it.

At daybreak, when the first shot was fired, a fusiliade followed, and the crack of rifles did not cease until the negro camp had been vacated and every weapon that could be found in a negro's hand or house had been seized.

The negroes had fled, carrying with them what of their effects they could, but leaving behind them the three dead bodies.
