Dancing for Mind-Cures.

Westminster (London) Gazette. In an article on ancient Highland spas the British Medical Journal refers to a curious Highland remedy. This was the dancing cure as it was practiced many years ago in Strathspey. A Highland shepherd, one Donald McAlpin, a famous dancer, was reputed to have cured his woman employer of a mysterious malady woman employer of a mysterious malady by means of dancing a reel with her, and this story being noised abroad gained him the reputation of being a successful physician. His humble cottage, overlook-ing Strathspey, was besieged with crowds of patients who hoped to get rid of their allments by a dance with Donald. The shepherd did not hesitate to take ad-vantage of this stroke of good luck, and soon had a large and thriving practice. soon had a large and thriving practice. He engaged as assistant an ancient piper, who did the duties of apothecary, and the two between them evolved a course of treatment for almost every ill to which the flesh is held.

GOOD GROWTH LAST YEAR

Figures of Interest to the Hop Trade as Showing Possible Brewery Requirements-Stiff Prices in Produce Market.

Statistics of the Internal Revenue Bureau show that in the production of beer, as disclosed by barrel tax collections, there was a gain in 1969 over 1908 of 638,245 barrels. The total output in 1968 as compared with 1907 showed a decrease of 2,728,030 barrels. These changes in the volume of the beer business seem to reflect industrial conditions more than anything else,

The production by months in the past two years compares as follows: compares as follows:

These figures are of especial interest to he hop trade, as showing the probable requirements of the brewers, revealing as they do the consumption of brewery reserve stocks in past months.

The local hop market did not display much activity yesterday. There is still evidence of an export demand, but in refusing to bid up prices the exporters are not successful in getting much business. It was reported that 21 cents was offered by a shipper for the Provost lot of 145 bales

ASPARAGUS PRICES ARE NAMED.

Higher Than the Figures at Which Business Was Done a Year Ago.

Opening prices on the 1910 pack of Caliornia asparagus have been announced by most of the prominent packers. They are the initial figures, but anywhere from 21/2 cents to 10 cents above the prices at which the actual business for forward delivery was done on the 1909 pack. There is general disposition on the part of buyers to take hold, as spot stocks are unusually well cleaned up. Canners are satisfied that the general verdict will be that the prices named are reasonable and they look for a good business.

The prospects are favorable for a large pack of asparagus this year, and conditions have been such that the quality of the output is expected to be the best that has been seen for a number of years. The packing season will open toward the end-of next month and new goods will be ready for shipment early in April.

Maine packers have announced opening prices on 1910 corn. The general quotation was in line with expectations, being 90 cents f. o. b. Portland, Me. It is understood, however, that one firm is asking 9216 cents, and it was also said that some of the minor packers were willing to book orders at 87 % cents Portland.

SHEEP LOSS IN HABNEY COUNTY

The report of heavy loss of sheep in the Stein Mountain country because of the severs Winter, is confirmed by the Laidiaw Chronicle, which says: Harney County experienced colder weather in January than for the past four years. The thermometer has been registering 24 degrees below zero in Burns and eat the Narrows, on Malheur Lake, 32 below zero. The coldest period in the history of Harney County was from December 15 to January 19, during all of which time the thermome ter registered 8 to 24 degrees below zero The stockmen are losing their animals by the thousands. The sheepmen in the Stein Mountain country have not been feeding the past three Winters, and the cold weather has caught them without supplies. They cannot purchase hay, as the cattlemen are holding it for their own use. Several big stockmen of the county have suffered heavy loss, and if the snow and cold hold on till the 1st of March, as in former hard Winters, the loss of sheep and cattle will be very heavy, as hay is getting short with some of the stockowners and the price has risen from $5 to $8 per ton in the last few days, with some holding for $15 per ton.

LITTLE TRADE ON FRONT STREET

Eggs Quoted as High as 39 Cents Because Of the Cold Wave. Between the half holiday and the snow torm, there was not much room for setlviy in the produce market yesterday, and for all the business that was done, the dealers might have kept their stores closed all day. The only feature of interest was a small flurry in the egg market, occasioned by the cold wave. Some of the dealers put their egg price up to 30 cents, others quoted 20 cents and still others 2814 cents. There were not many sales at any price. A fair supply came in, and if the weather moderates today, the market will probably drop back to Monday's quotation.

Poultry as usual was firm. Dressed hogs ere very firm and veal was about steady. The green produce receipts included a car of cauliflower, and a car of cabbage and small vegetables. The cauliflower was of good quality and the best of it sold at $2. Onlone were firm on the street, some dealers

BOY STARTS OUT IN LIFE

New York Lad Found by Police Just as He Faints With Hunger.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.-Leaving his home to carve out his fortune alone, Alfred Harrison, 8 years old, tramped the streets without food for several hours, when he collapsed in 111th street. The boy was half dead when picked up by Lieutenant Snyder, and later was thawed out at the police station. station.

The boy's parents formerly lived at No. 1352 Lexington ayenue, but being dispossessed he was sent to the home of his uncle. Daniel Callahan. Although he was kindly treated, the boy fancied he was not wanted by the Callahans, and resolved to leave them. The opportunity came Saturday morning, when he wrapped his effects in a hand-kerchief and started forth.

BEING A GRANDMOTHER

Affectionate Nickname Now Takes Place of Old Title.

Plorence Howe Hall, in the American Baby.
The art of being a grandmother, like other arts, needs practice to bring it to perfection. Now the young grandmother, while perfectly delighted to have a grandchild, is by no means reconciled to the idea of being a grandmother. A little reflection should convince her of the felly of this point of view. In the first place, she waves aside the title, much as Caesar waved aside the crown. The baby is taught to call her by some sort of affectionate nickname, "Minnima" or "O'mamma," but never by her official and surely honorable title of grandmother. If anyone is so unfeeling as to say to her bluntly, "How is your grandchild?" she will observe with entire grandenia; she will observe with entire irrelevance that she married very young, or that it seems like her own child, as who should say, "I am a grandmother, but remember there are extenuating cir-cumstances."

It is very evident that the art which we are considering has two branches, first that of being personally a grand-parent, second that of being the child's ancestress, its mother once removed, as we might say. It as very important to cultivate both, since they supplement each other. The personal grandmother should endeavor to tone down the intense family pride in her descendant which might make her a social nuisance, were it suffered to a unchecked.

were it suffered to go unchecked.

If we turn now to the art of being the child's ancestress, we shall find ourselves hampered by faulty traditions. A grand-mother is usually supposed to be an amiable idlot who stuffs the children with goodles, thereby making them ill, and who saviers "blessyma without reserved." goodles, thereby making them fil, and who snjoys "pleasure without responsibility." as if there could be any pleasure for the women of our race that did not involve responsibility. The great drawback to the delightful position of grandparent is just the opposite of all this—it is the absence of all power save that which can be acquired by skill at arms. A successful grandmother must be a skillful tactician and she must learn to skillful tactician and she must learn to hold her tongue.

As for her relationship to the dear grandbabies themselves, it will surely be happy, if the grandmother is a proficient in the school of life. There is a natural
