BELDING VICTOR IN PAVING FIGHT

Councilman's Efforts Will Give South Portland Fine Streets.

$500,000 WILL BE SPENT

Macadam Road and Corbett Street Principal Thoroughfares Favored for Improvements—Clash in Meeting Barely Averted.

An aggregate of $500,000 worth of asphalt and Hassam pavement will be laid in South Portland and Fulton the coming Summer, the Council having passed upon the first installment of $150,000 and the street committee of the Council the remainder. It probably will be approved by the main body next Wednesday. This makes the largest extension of hard-surface to be put through for any single section of the city in the history of Portland.

Macadam road and Corbett street are the principal thoroughfares in the two improvement districts, ordered through the efforts of Councilman Belding.

In securing this great amount of paving Mr. Belding met with considerable opposition, because he asked that the petition for Hassam on the Macadam road be held up until another petition for asphalt could be filed. His integrity was called in question by Fletcher Linn, of the Oregon Furniture Manufacturing Company, who strongly intimated that Mr. Belding was endeavoring to throw the work to a certain paving company.

Mr. Belding Takes Exception. "Any man who says that I am trying to hold this petition up for other reasons than the public good is a damned liar," said Mr. Belding.

Mr. Linn then explained that he had heard such was the case, and Mr. Belding repeated his statement. It went unchallenged.

In order to avert a serious clash between paving companies and to get the work under way promptly, Mr. Belding and representatives of the Barber Asphalt and the Hassam companies agreed to divide the territory and let the Council committee act at once. By this arrangement the Hassam Company will get about two miles of Macadam road, running as far as Dakota street to the south, where the asphalt will begin and run one mile south. Interesting streets to the extent of three miles will be paved with asphalt.

Owing to the war that is on in paving circles and the attitude of Mayor Simon and the administration, it is declared that this work will undoubtedly be done for less than $1.75 a square yard, which is the cheapest figure yet bid by any local concern. There are several bidders who are eager to get this contract, as it is a large and profitable one, and it is anticipated that bidding will be the keenest yet.

There has been so much paving projected for this season that Councilman Baker introduced a resolution at the last Council meeting that none but streets petitioned for be ordered paved, but this was defeated in committee yesterday.

City Engineer Morris said the paving companies have not yet secured half their capacity for the season, and he thought that it will be all right to continue with improvements by resolution, as has been done since the Simon regime took office.

Communication from Vice-President Fuller, of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, was read, stating that he could not see how the corporation is going to do all of the work mapped out for it by the city officials, and suggesting a conference, to the end that some agreement may be reached as to which streets are to be paved first. The company is obliged to improve between its tracks and one foot on each side.

Work Asked, Not Talk. "I think the streetcar company has been holding up street work about long enough," declared Councilman Lombard, who was presiding. "I think they had better proceed with their part of the work on these streets and quit talking."

The letter from Mr. Fuller was ordered filed without further comment.

Councilman Ruslight attempted to secure action by the committee, forcing the Robert Wakefield Company, contractors on the two large water storage reservoirs at Mount Tabor, to pay 35 cents a car for the dirt and gravel to be hauled from the excavations and down to certain gulches that are to be filled. The committee took the view that this course would be unfair, and voted to grant special permit to haul without payment of the sum stated in an ordinance.

As a matter of fact, the ordinance was never intended to exact money for contract work of this kind, the subject was also referred to the City Attorney for an opinion, to be given before the next meeting of the Council.

LONG SEARCH REWARDED

Father Finds Daughter After 17 Years and May Remarry Mother.

After having lost his daughter 17 years ago, when she was but 2 years old, Alfonso Elsworth Shirley has finally found her and now a happy family reunion is being celebrated.

Parted from the child by a divorce at Camas, Wash., Mr. Shirley, who is now an employe in a local pawnshop, was called on the scene until his wife had married a second time. Then he bade good-bye to the little one, which had been given to her mother in Salem. The second husband had long since died.

Several weeks ago he started a search for the missing daughter. An advertisement was inserted in The Oregonian and in answer came a hurried response from the daughter, Ella, who had resided in the State of Oregon one year and in the United States five years. She was also charged with being an undesirable alien on moral grounds.

Morgan & Robb, 250 Stark st., will insure your plate glass for you.

FENCE CAUSES SUIT

Thomas Turnbull, of Malheur County, to Be Arrested.

WARNING SAID UNHEEDED

Wealthy Rancher, It is Alleged, Has Been Warned to Remove Barriers Said to Inclose Government Land, but Has Not Done So.

Having allowed Thomas Turnbull, a Malheur County ranchman, four years in which to remove the fences which the Government alleges have given him exclusive control of more than 1000 acres of the public domain, a warrant was last night issued for the arrest of the wealthy cattle-owner.

Complaint was filed by the Assistant District Attorney for the United States, Walter H. Evans, and points out that Special Agent Mayberry, of the Land Office, discovered the illegal inclosure in 1904. Mr. Turnbull is said to have been warned at that time.

Mr. Turnbull, residing at Cord, is one of the best-known ranchers of the Malheur grazing district, his cattle ranging over a wide expanse of territory, and the information gathered by agents of the Department of Justice is to the effect that he is the owner of a large amount of patented land. In taking short cuts to inclose the desired land with the least amount of wire and the smallest number of poles, a considerable tract of the unappropriated holdings of the Government, it is said, was enclosed.

Mr. Turnbull is alleged to have promised to open the land to public use, but a recent inspection of the premises revealed the fact that this had not been done.

In case a conviction is had it is probable that the office of the United States District Attorney will abandon its usual custom of recommending leniency in the imposition of sentence. It has been the practice to request the court to impose nominal fines for first offenses in fencing land, and that the penalty of the law be applied on only one count in the indictment.

WOMAN GETS COSTLY DEFENSE

Accused of Perjury, French Woman Is Found Guilty.

Pleading guilty when first arraigned in United States Court, Jeannie Rose Dupont, a French woman, was allowed to withdraw her admission and have benefit of counsel in a jury trial. The jury yesterday returned a verdict of guilty, but recommended her to the mercy of the court.

Jeannie Rose Dupont was charged with having attempted to secure naturalization papers at Astoria, and to having committed perjury when she testified that she had resided in the State of Oregon one year and in the United States five years. She was also charged with being an undesirable alien on moral grounds.

LEGS WORTH $10,000 EACH

Thomas Evans Sues for Injuries Caused by Backing Train.

Thomas Evans of Portland began suit yesterday against the Southern Pacific Company for $20,000 for damages for the loss of both legs. The accident happened September 25 last, when Evans was struck by a train which was backing along the tracks at Wilson.

Evans declares that he bought a ticket from Portland to Oswego and return, that he walked back from Oswego to Wilson, following the trail commonly traveled by the public, along the right of way. Dark had fallen before Evans crossed the trestle bridge near the Wilson station and glancing ahead he saw the side lights of the passenger train standing at the station, the engine headed for Portland. Mr. Evans avers that the train backed as he ran.

He alleges that no signals were given to announce the movement of the train and that the failure to give such warning resulted in his injury.

WITNESS IS FIRED

Must Also Go to Jail Until Ready to Testify.

CONTEMPT HEARING LIVELY

Arleta Butcher Who Failed to Remember Facts About Druggstore Whisky, Is Severely Punished at a Special Session.

Late last night, at the close of a somewhat lively hearing, Presiding Judge Morrow, of the Circuit Court, sentenced John Ferris, an Arleta butcher, to pay a fine of $50 and ordered that he be confined in the County Jail until such time as he expressed a willingness to testify before the grand jury in regard to the alleged illegal sale of liquor at W. J. Armitage's druggstore, in Arleta, a "dry" precinct.

Ferris had replied "I don't know" to all questions asked him by the inquisitors, and was therefore charged with contempt of court.

The implication on the part of Deputy District Attorney Page that R. R. Giltner, attorney for Ferris and for Armitage, induced Ferris to testify before the grand jury as he did nearly led to an open fight between the two men during the trial of the special proceedings, which were held last night after time for regular court adjournment.

Threat Made in Court. Attorney Giltner had made a motion to dismiss the charge of contempt against Ferris, and was arguing the matter, when remarks distasteful to him were made in a low tone by Mr. Page.

"I want to be protected here by the court from Mr. Page," declared Mr. Giltner, "and if the court doesn't protect me I shall take it in hand to deal with Mr. Page as I see fit."

"I have always said, interposed Judge Morrow, "that when attorneys begin to make threats in court it is time to call a halt. Mr. Giltner, I consider you in contempt of court, and for your own sake the court an apology."

"I apologize to your honor," answered Mr. Giltner, "for what I have said, but I do not desire to hear any more reproaches upon my integrity by Mr. Page."

Cameron Waxes Angry, Too. Another tiff occurred a few minutes later, when District Attorney Cameron made a remark to Mr. Giltner under his breath, and the latter replied: "You had better get after those saloons here, then."

"I don't need any dictation from you, sir," retorted Mr. Cameron. "Last night's contempt proceeding is the only one for refusal to answer questions regarding the sale of liquor which has been taken into the Circuit Court within the memory of those present at the hearing. The matter came before the court on an affidavit of Frank Wilmut, foreman of the grand jury, that Ferris was called before the inquisitorial body, and refused repeatedly to tell whether he had procured liquor at Armitage's druggstore by saying he didn't know the color of whisky or beer, that he didn't know what it was to be drunk, didn't know whether he was ever drunk, or whether or not he had ever purchased whisky from Armitage.

Former Testimony Cited. L. B. Senosky, a member of a previous grand jury, testified that Ferris told him and those on the jury with him that he averaged three drinks of whisky a week at Armitage's; that he ran a bill there; that he sometimes borrowed money to buy whisky, and that sometimes he secured whisky from Armitage's in bottles.

Mr. Senosky declared Ferris told the previous grand jury that he obtained whisky and peppermint at Armitage's, and that he knew there was peppermint in it by the taste. He said Ferris also told them that whisky was kept on the sidewalk at home, and that he sometimes drank some of it.

Ferris told Judge Morrow that he did not refuse to answer any of the grand jury's questions, but said he did tell them he did not know whether or not he was intoxicated after drinking something at Armitage's druggstore. He never secured liquor at the druggstore except on the physician's prescription, he said. What he secured on the prescription he didn't know to be whisky, he said, or he would not have bought it.

Judge Morrow asked the young man a large number of questions as to his habits and general events. This was to determine, said the judge, whether the young man was in his right mind and possessed of his normal faculties. He first imposed a fine of $25 and 10 days' imprisonment in the County Jail.
