

FRAIL TROUBLE CAUSE OF EXILE

St. Louis Musician Tells He Suddenly and Mysteriously Disappeared.

ORGANIST MAY STAY HERE

Lucien E. Becker Says Health Not Good in Missouri and as He Likes Portland He May Not Return to Old Home.

Lucien E. Becker, the St. Louis musician who was secretly married in New York City to Miss Edith Small, and who has now opened the Becker Conservatory of Music at 225 Grand avenue, North, declared yesterday that a desire to regain his health was his reason for suddenly leaving St. Louis three years ago.

He intimated that he had trouble with his two brothers, who are teachers in St. Louis and piano.

"No man likes to talk about his troubles in business life, you know," said Mr. Becker. "But it is very true that if anything is to be found out, the press will discover it."

"I left St. Louis three years ago upon the advice of my physician. I took a year's leave of absence from the Knights of Columbus Choral Club and the St. Louis Orchestra, telling them to secure a substitute."

"I intended to go to Europe to study. But when I made up my mind to marry I changed my plans. It is true I did not tell them at the time that I intended to become a benedict, but I think some of them knew it. If I had it to do again I would advertise it broadcast at the time. Then I would have it over. As it is now, there is no end to it."

"Miss Small and I agreed to meet in New York City, and there we were married in the Jesuit Church. Then we took the steamer for Paris. While in Europe I met my brother, Lorenzo Perosi, the great authority on church music. After remaining in Paris for about six months we went through Germany, Switzerland and Holland to England. I was very much pleased with England. I thought New York was busy until I saw London."

"From there we went to Australia and then to Vancouver, B. C. We stopped at Seattle on our way down the coast, but we are not thinking of going farther south. We like Portland, we like the people here, and we intend to stay. Of course there is a possibility that I might accept a position in St. Louis, as I said once before. That would depend upon what kind of an offer was made in London."

Becker Objected to Scandal. "It is true that after I left I didn't write to some of the people to whom I should have written. One of the letters I wrote was taken by my friend and turned over to the press by a reporter. One of the papers started a scandal about me. It made a mountain of a molehill. The letters referred to in your dispatch of last Friday were probably ones I wrote a year ago."

"I was in Europe when the year's leave of absence from the St. Louis newspaper correspondent expired. I was not asked to take a position in St. Louis. My only source of information is a telegram from a St. Louis newspaper correspondent which I have blank if I intended to accept the position at the cathedral there. I don't know whether the cathedral at St. Louis wants me. Even if I were asked to take the place I would have to think over the matter."

SISTER CLEARS UP MYSTERY

Becker Left St. Louis Fearing Wrath of Wife's Former Husband.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 6.—(Special.)—The mysterious disappearance of three-year absence of Lucien E. Becker, musician of local fame, was cleared up by Mrs. Louise Plass, of Vinita Park, St. Louis County.

Mrs. Plass, sister of the now Mrs. Becker, declares that the long absence of Mr. and Mrs. Becker is accounted for. She formerly was Mrs. Gill and told her sister that she feared the anger of her former husband in case she married after her divorce several years previous to the last wedding.

According to Mrs. Plass, Becker shared Mrs. Gill's fears and sympathized with her. Becker at that time was president of the Becker Bros. Conservatory, and became acquainted with Mrs. Gill and friendship ripened into love.

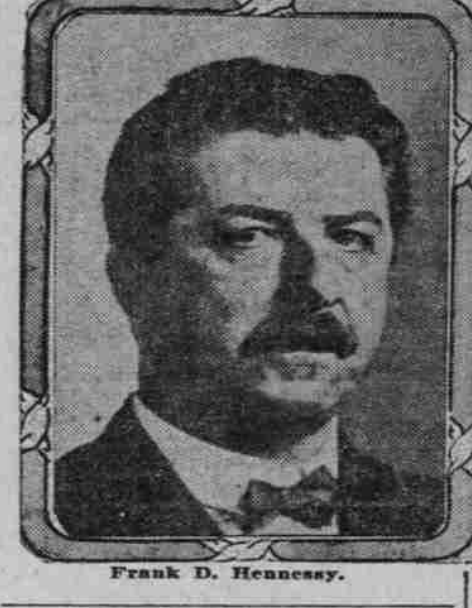

Mrs. Plass was acquainted with the state of affairs and was asked for advice. She advocated an elopement and the burying of the fact of the marriage until such time as Mrs. Gill thought it safe to return.

According to Mrs. Plass, their fear of the wrath of Mrs. Becker's former husband has disappeared in the three years they have been married and they propose to come back and enjoy life with their friends and relatives. Mr. Becker has been teaching music in Portland.

"JUST as the Sun Went Down," a melodrama, opened a week's engagement at the Baker Theater yesterday and played to large audiences afternoon and night. The scenes are all laid in the West.

to fix the blame more definitely. California is the locale. All the characters speak the dialect attributed to the Far West, and each carries a gun. The plot is a minor quantity. The heroine is a young lady, Colonel Billy, huxton and finally speaks almost plainly of a very bad past. She loves a nice, gentle fellow who has a limp and a belt full of cartridges. He talks in his boots and waves his hands deprecatingly whenever anyone refers to the said past of the said lady.

A parson drifts in. Oh, that parson! He is a slender, combed creature buttoned to his eyes in a black suit. He mouths treatises and sermonettes with every step. Conveniently he contracts consumption and taken to the naughty lady's house. He convinces everyone how bad and generally ornery they are, recites those whom the experience of the play has torn asunder, and is shot in the third act. But the shot struck a little prayer-book in the parson's pocket and he died.

A note of originality is lent by a rattle-snake, the pet of the minister's sweetheart, a giddy girl of 16 who wears her hair down her back. She carelessly leaves John L. Sullivan—the snake—on a bench where she knows the villain is biting on the handle. He asks for whiskey, but it is Sunday and none is forthcoming. The minister gives him the key to his private distillery and the bad man creeps away to savor music.

"Ethel Williams is the bad lady," "Colonel Billy," Victory Bateman is in the cast in a minor role. This one-time star with Aubrey Bouccault cannot get away from the all-pervading mellowing of the play, although individually she does extra work.

The play will be repeated every night this week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

HINSON NOT CANDIDATE

SAN DIEGO MINISTER WILL NOT COME TO PORTLAND.

Californian Preaches at White Temple, but Asks Hearers Not to Be Critical.

W. B. Hinson, minister of a Baptist Church of 1200 members in San Diego, preached at the White Temple yesterday, his subject being "The Good Man Who Went Wrong." Before launching upon his subject he told the large congregation present that he would not be a candidate for the position as pastor of the local Baptist Church. "So it will not be necessary for you to listen to me critically," he added.

General expressions of pleasure and appreciation of the sermon were heard afterwards, and it was evident that many would be well suited to have him called to fill the vacant pulpit. But his remark at the beginning of the sermon leaves little hope that this will be the case.

Dr. Hinson's text was Mark xvii: "But go your way, and tell this to the elders and the priests." The substance of the sermon was as follows:

"I want to show you how Simon Peter went wrong, and then how he got right. First of all, we are told that he followed Jesus afar off. He could not quite desert him. If a man has ever seen the beauty of his face and heard the melody of his voice, he may fall overboard, even if he is apt to be found following, even though it be afar off. Then he stood with the twelve in the garden of Gethsemane. And then Peter sat down with them. And after this while a man came and said to those about: 'He was with Jesus. I saw him,' and Peter said, 'You did not see him.' And Peter said, 'I don't know what you are talking about.' He confirmed his denial with an oath. Alas for the weakness of good hearts when they lie, the great big-hearted, sympathetic, impetuous Simon Peter, a purified liar, gave me a minute when they said to him: 'Get right again. Jesus looked at him. The bitterest drop in the cup that Jesus ever drank in that judgment hall was not distilled from the cruelty of Roman soldiers, but from the betrayal of Peter.'"

"Are we like Simon Peter in his time of cowardice and denial? Are we following afar off? Let us press up against our Savior? Have we denied our Master in our lives, if not with our lips, then in our hearts, that the denial was a lie, that you love Him and serve Him, and that your highest ambition is to spend eternity with Him?"
