Judge Cleeton yesterday put into ef-fect for the first time in this county the new law that can compel a neglect-ful husband to work for the county on the rock pile for $1.50 a day to pay for the support of his wife. After the sentence was pronounced Judge Cleeton was induced to allow Forrest until Monday to secure a bond of $480 to insure future support of the neglected wife. If the bond is not forthcoming at that time, the sentence imposed upon Forrest will be enforced. imposed upon Forrest will be enforced, and instead of entertaining audiences in a moving-picture show the next 12 months, he will break rock under the watchful eye of a guard, and the money he earns will not reach his pockets, but will go into the hands of Mrs. Forrest,

Previous Promise Broken.

Forrest's appeal to the court for nercy resulted in his receiving a lecture from the judge concerning the re-sponsibilities of married life. When arrested on a previous occasion for the same offense, Forrest had promised Judge Webster that if permitted to go be would pay his wife a certain pro-portion of his weekly salary, and in re-fusing to listen to Forrest's promises, Judge Cleeton said that he not only had broken faith with the woman he had promised to support, but that he had betrayed the trust put in him by the court also.

You are only 28 years old," said the court, "and you appear to be a man capable of doing better than you have. You must learn that marriage involves serious obligations that you cannot throw off lightly. You have had the opportunity to improve, and you have failed, and I cannot see that there is anything remaining for me to do in your case except to send you to the rock pile." While the singer's pretty child wife, who is only 17, leaned forward intent-ly listening to all that was being said, some of Forrest's friends joined him in making a plea for another chance to keep his promise, but these appeals were ineffective, and the court re-mained firm in the determination to keep make the man work for the county. At last the request for time in which to furnish a bond was made, and after arefully considering it, the court gave Forrest until Monday in which to obcarefully tain a surety

Asphalt pavement at $1.60 a square yard, the bid of the Barber Asphalt Pav-ing Company submitted yesterday after-noon to the Executive Board, is taken as outward evidence of the fact that one of the fiercest paving wars in the history of the city is in progress. En-gaged in this battle are the Barber Company, the Warner-Quinian Company, of New York, and the Oregon Independent Company, of Portland. The Barber Asphalt Paving Company has made the greatest, cut in prices so far, and it is said the concern will lose about 7 cents a square yard if the Execfar, and it is suid the concern will lose about 7 cents a square yard if the Exec-utive Board awards it the contract for utive Board awards it the contract for the work bid ppon yesterday afternoon. Its proposal was much less than those of all the others, and on three streets where competition was red-hot, fell below the estimate of City Engineer Morris $21,000. Competition Hot on Three Streets.

There were three streets for which ompetition on asphalt was hot yester-ay, and the one upon which the Barber Asphalt Company put in its bid of $1.60 a square yard is a residence street. On a four-inch concrete base, this is far below any proposal ever submitted; this even deducting the one-inch difference in base on a business street, where the specifications call for a base of five

We have a large number of slightly used and second hand planos taken in exchange for player and other planos, that we want to dispose of in the quickest possible time, so we have put them in first-class condition, and are now offering them at less than half their actual value. Some cannot be told from new, and the prices will range from $15 up to $215, according to style and make, and the payments will be from $3 to $5 per month. It doesn't pay to rent when you can buy a nice plano like these on such easy payments, but you will have to call soon, as there are only 18 in the lot. Get busy.

NOW LISTEN.

To the first person presenting copy of this ad each day till notice of discontinuance, it will be accepted as payment on any new plano in our store, as follows: For $50, on all planos from $250 to $200. For $75, on all planos from $300 to $400. For $100, on all planos from $400 to $600.

BUT REMEMBER.

Only one will be accepted each day and that to the first person se-lecting a plano and presenting a copy of this ad. Our planos are marked in plain figures and lower than the same grade of plano can be bought elsewhere. But don't be slow about it, as we are liable to with-draw this offer at any time.
