

PORTLAND HONORS ST. PATRICK TODAY

Day Will Be Fittingly Celebrated in Religious and Civic Meetings.

SEATTLE MAN TO SPEAK

Thomas B. Minahan Will Make Principal Address at Exercises to Be Held in Masonic Temple. Shamrock Sale is Feature.

The birthday of Ireland's apostle, St. Patrick, will be appropriately celebrated today in various ways. The programme for the day will include religious and civic meetings, and numerous social affairs and private parties.

Decorations of green are much in evidence throughout the city. Everything is in excellent shape for the sale of shamrocks and green tags for the benefit of St. Mary's Home for Orphans. Attractive booths for the sale have been erected by Tull & Gibbs, Olds, Wirtman & King, Meier & Frank Company, McAllen & McDonnell, the Hazeltown Cream Company, the Sweetland Candy Company and Lipman, Wolfe & Co., and other booths are in construction.

Celebration Starts at Church.

The celebration began last night with an entertainment at St. Lawrence Church by the Hibernians. The affair was presided over by Burt C. Jones and James Hennessy Murphy delivered the principal address his subject being "The Impression of St. Patrick on Contemporary History."

The main exercises of the day will be the concert and address tonight at the Masonic Temple, West Park and Yamhill streets, under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The address will be given by Thomas B. Minahan, of Seattle, the ex-president of the American Federation of Catholic Societies. One of the prominent contributors will be the talented singer, Mrs. Rose Boyson, who will be heard in "Killarney." The doors will be open at 7:45 and the programme will begin at 8:15.

Programme is as Follows.

Selection of Irish Airs—Weirberger's Orchestra. Vocal solo, "The Hat My Father Wore St. Patrick's Day"—D. D. Hennessy. Vocal solo, "Killarney"—Mrs. Rose Boyson. "Star Spangled Banner," by the quartet, Prof. Frederick W. Goodrich, accompanist.

ST. PATRICK IN NEW LIGHT

Master Lawgiver No Longer Regarded as Myth, as of Old.

Before the St. Lawrence Catholic Club, last night, and to an audience that packed the hall to its capacity, James Hennessy Murphy stated the case of "The Impression of St. Patrick on Contemporary History," from the viewpoint of non-Catholic writers and historians. In the course of an address lasting an hour, the speaker used only one Catholic authority and he was not an Irishman.

The uncommon nature of the presentation attracted many of other beliefs and nationalities, among whom were several well-known educators. The burden of Mr. Murphy's address was a survey of the impressions of the work and mission of the saint as now understood and admitted from the comparatively short time ago when the accepted theory among many writers was that St. Patrick was a myth, and his reputed acts and sayings legends, fables and inventions, and the emerging of St. Patrick in the historical perspective as one of the world's masters.

Saint is Law Giver.

The speaker declared that the impression of St. Patrick today in this country was that of the conservator of a free democracy and republican institutions; that in spite of pessimistic Macaulay and gloomy foreboders, it is not the encroachment of plutocratic wealth on one side, nor the howl of the demagogue on the other side wherein lay the danger to free government. Religion has always neutralized these forces, he added. The religion taught by the Roman Catholic Church inculcated a civic allegiance which did not rest on armies, navies and police, nor the fear of jails and penitentiaries, but submission and loyalty to the government and lawfully-constituted authority through an obedience to God, who is above all and the source of all. Quoting Edmund Burke's axiom, "that true religion is the foundation of the state and when attacked with contempt makes the whole fabric unstable and insecure," he declared that the same applied to true government. The speaker said that modern man never denounced the rich and indolent, the pitiless plutocrat, the perverse scribe, the corrupt law-giver, the pilferers of the poor and the despoilers of the widow and her orphans more severely than did Ezekiel, Isaiah and Jeremiah; that modern man never denounced the whitened sepulchres, the sanctimonious pirates and the brass band philanthropists more than did St. Matthew and St. Paul; that modern man never infused more of the spirit of Christianity into the civil laws than did St. Patrick, and that modern man never lashed with more bitter scorn all evil than did the divine founder of Christianity himself.

Old Religion Not Outworn.

Men who are prating about a new religion might profitably study the old religion and men who sneer at religion as outworn, back dated and superstitious, said the speaker, are very likely to apply the same terms to the sacrifice and sufferings, to the simple habits, strenuous virtues and solid wisdom of the noble and immortal men who founded this republic. The summing up of the price paid by the Irish, his race and nation for centuries of unswerving loyalty to St. Patrick and the ideals of his race and the long-delayed but universal encomiums of the world today of his saint and his motherland, was not the least effective feature of the address. Mr. Murphy declared we were too close to the stirring events which he sought to realize their significance, but that within a half-century hence John E. Redmond would loom up in the historical horizon as one of the largest and

THE HOME PHYSICIAN

This Recipe Makes a Splendid Remedy for Coughs.

The home-made remedy described below will be found a very handy and effective thing to have in the house ready for use. It is simple, pleasant to take, easy to prepare, and lasts a family a long time. It wipes out a cough quickly.

Take a pint of Granulated Sugar, add one-half pint of warm water, and stir about two minutes. Put two and one-half ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill up with the Granulated Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Cough preparations, as a rule, are mostly syrup. Granulated Sugar Syrup is both cheap and excellent. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract and is rich in all the healing pine elements.

None of the weaker pine preparations can compare with the real Pinex itself. If your druggist hasn't it, he can easily get it for you.

This recipe is also splendid for chest pains, whooping cough, hoarseness, bronchitis, etc.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

Some of the best known druggists here, as Lane-Davis Drug Co. (distributors) and others, think so well of the above prescription that they guarantee it to give perfect satisfaction or refund the purchase price.

solidest figures of his day and generation. The programme was as follows: Overture, Medley of Irish airs, St. Lawrence orchestra; "Come Back to Erin," Miss Dagmar Kelly; "Killarney," Mrs. F. J. Buckert; "Killarney, My Home O'er the Sea," Augustine B. Cain; "Kathleen Mavourneen," Miss Anna M. Twiss; "Father O'Flynn," Frank D. Hennessy; lecture, "The Impression of St. Patrick on Contemporary History," James Hennessy Murphy; "Oft in the Silly Night," Miss Rose Friedle; "Dear Little Shamrock," Miss Helen Carritt; solo, selection, A. Fleming; "Will My Soul Pass Through Old Ireland," Miss Florence Gilmore; solo, selection, S. A. McCartney; "The Harp That Once Through Tulla's Hall," (Harp), Miss Tillie Jennings; "Hibernia's Champion Sateen All Hall's Eve," (Harp), Miss Tillie Jennings; orchestra.

CHURCH INTEREST KEEN

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT GATHERING FORCE.

Deputation Committees Busy Among Outside Delegates—Help May Be Given Needy Ministers.

All of the leading denominations that are uniting in the Laymen's Missionary movement are taking steps to interest outside churches in the convention that is to be held in this city March 29, 30 and 31. It is expected that at least 1000 laymen and pastors from outside Portland will be present during the convention. The work of interesting outside churches is being conducted by the deputation committee, of which B. Lee Paget is chairman. The committee already has sent out hundreds of letters and the replies are now coming in. Each denomination is doing much to interest its own members in the convention.

Rev. Arthur Folsom, of Forest Grove, state home missionary superintendent of the Congregational Church, is making a tour of all churches of that denomination near Portland. He is not only presenting the objects of the Laymen's movement before them but is circulating a large amount of literature and urging those who can do so to attend the convention.

The Episcopalians are showing particular interest in the convention than any other single denomination. Bishop Scadding has furnished the local secretary, W. A. Lovett, with the addresses of 500 prominent laymen throughout Oregon. To each of these Mr. Lovett is sending a personal letter in addition to one from Bishop Scadding, and it is expected that there will be several hundred Episcopalians at the convention, in addition to the local members.

Rev. W. B. Hollingshead, Portland district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is doing the deputation work among members of that denomination. F. E. Dark has charge of the subject for the Baptists, and both the United Brethren and the Friends have announced that they will provide entertainment for all their members who attend the convention.

A movement is now on foot to raise a small fund to take care of a part of the expenses of those who cannot well afford the cost of a trip to Portland. In some cases a portion of the traveling expenses may be paid and others will receive their delegates' fees and free tickets to the big banquet that is to open the convention. This fund will probably be used chiefly for the clergymen of small congregations in the more remote parts of the state.

In response to invitations to attend the convention some of these clergymen have written rather pathetic letters. All have expressed a desire to be present, but some of those in smaller towns have told of meager salaries, barely sufficient to meet the cost of living. It is such as these that the local committee desires to help attend the convention.

Stine, at the Stratford; R. R. Gardner, at the Great Northern. ASPHALT BIDS IN ORDER Street Committee Will Consider Contracts at Meeting Today. The street committee of the City Executive Board will this afternoon meet and consider, among other items of business, bids for a number of asphalt streets. There are three of these upon which the Barber Asphalt Paving Company and the Warner-Quinlan Company, the former an old and the latter a new concern in the local field, have sought work. The Barber Company underbid the Warner-Quinlan Company on all of the streets concerned, and will probably receive the award of contract. Thus far, the Warner-Quinlan people have not secured any work, each time being outbid by competitors. The Barber Company bid $1.00 a square yard on the residence section specifications of 4 inches of concrete base, and $1.90 on the 8-inch base. It was lower than any of its competitors. Owing to the large amount of paving that is to be done this season, there is great competition. Mayor Simon and members of the street committees of the Executive Board and City Council are determined that Portland shall have many well-paved streets, and the Mayor has made a determined fight to lower the price of all kinds of hard-surface materials. The competitive bidding has already lowered rates far beyond anything previously recorded. SHAMROCKS. The real article, grown from seed, imported from Ireland. WHAT IS ALAMEDA PARK?

THE QUESTION ANSWERED. PRICES WILL ADVANCE SOON. ALAMEDA PARK is a high-class residence addition to Portland. It is just two miles from the heart of the business portion of the city. IT IS REACHED BY THE BROADWAY CARLINE, which runs direct to its entrance. Every Broadway car bears the sign "ALAMEDA PARK." Besides, THE CARLINE IS NOW BEING EXTENDED ON THROUGH THIS SECTION at the expense of the ALAMEDA LAND COMPANY. This addition adjoins and overlooks Irvington, being 250 feet in altitude. These two latter facts establish, first, the high character of the neighborhood; second, the BEAUTY and HEALTHFULNESS of its natural formation. As for improvements, the restrictions are such as to insure nothing but creditable homes, no business houses are allowed except in one portion isolated from the main body of the park. ALL THE BEST CITY IMPROVEMENTS, including WIRES UNDERGROUND are being installed. Plans for a CENTRAL HEATING PLANT are in the hands of competent engineers. PRICES ARE FULLY TWENTY PER CENT BELOW THE MARKET. ALAMEDA PARK may be seen at any time by appointment at the offices of the Alameda Land Company, owners of Alameda Park, 322 Corbett Building.
