MOORE HAS CHANCE

Fate of Banker Depends on Court's Decision.

MOTION PENDING

Defense Contends Woman's Draft Was Not Entered or Collected. State to Assail Argument. Case May End Tuesday.

Waiter H. Moore, ex-president of the wrecked Oregon Trust & Savings Bank, today may secure freedom from the indictment on which the state is asking a conviction alleging that he received deconviction alleging that he received de-posits knowing the institution was in-solvent

Should Judge Bronaugh sustain the motion made by Attorney Fulton and instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, the case would be concluded without foreign the defense to place with without forcing the defense to place wit nesses on the stand. The prosecution is very confident, however, that the court will overrule the motion and proceed with the trial. There are a number of other indictments pending against Mr. Moore charging similar offenses.

Contending that deposits received by imployes of the bank after closing of the Institution the day preceding its suscension, had been refunded by the repension, had been retunded by the receiver, and that the draft deposited by Minnie Mitchell had not been entered on the books or collected by the receiver, Attorney Fulton argued that Moore was not guilty of the fraud charged.

Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald to-

Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald today will submit a lengthy argument assailing the position of counsel for the defense on the liability imposed on the bank in receiving Minnie Mitchell's draft.
Attorney Fulton and Mr. Moore passed Sunday in consultation. Attorney Fulton expressed great confidence in the soundness of the legal point upon which Judge Bronaugh will pass. Should the court refuse to instruct the jury to acquit Moore Attorney Fulton expects to conclude evidence for the defense by Tuesday night or sooner.

The decision to be handed down by the court will be of great interest as it will establish ownership of drafts that have been deposited in a bank. In the case of the Minnie Mitchell draft, it was case of the Minnie Mitchell draft, it was asserted by Receiver Devlin that Minnie Mitchell stopped payment of the paper by telegraph. The defense contends that if the bank owned the draft after deposit, its payment could not have been interfered with in this way, and if it still belonged to Minnie Mitchell, after being deposited in the bank, then it was a trust fund, and not a deposit. trust fund, and not a deposit.

Testimony of Girl Accepted as Dying Statement Deemed Improper by Supreme Court.

In the opinion of John Manning, of this city, attorney for Dr. Fred Peacock, of Cathlamet, Wahkiakum County, Wash., who was convicted a year ago of manslaughter in connection with the death of Madeline Longtaine, a young death of Madeline Longtaine, a young girl, of that place, December 16, 1908, and which conviction was set aside by the Washington Supreme Court Saturday, will not be prosecuted again.

According to Mr. Manning, the principal evidence of the prosecution was declared incorporar by the Supreme Court eclared improper by the Supreme Court

The alleged improper evidence was a typewritten statement made by the girl some days before her death when she believed she would recover. Later, when she realized she was about to die, the sue realized she was about to dee, the statement was declared by her to be true and was introduced in evidence as her "dying statement," This was de-clared by the court "improper," as it was not made in full just before her death.

The cost to the county would be to great to attempt another conviction, said Mr. Manning. "The statement was the only important evidence the prosecuthe only important evaluates the prosecu-tion had, and it was on it that the con-viction was secured. I am inclined to think there will be no further attempt to push the case against Dr. Peacock. In addition to the legal aspects of the case, sentiment, formerly against Dr. Peacock, has changed greatly. Now it is more in his favor."

more in his favor."

At the time of the arrest of Dr. Peacock, late in 1908, the case was a sense. The entire county was muc

Modart Corsets of FASHION"

Corsets either mar or enhance the beauty of a woman's gown. No other element plays such an important part in the general scheme of dress. One defect or inartistic quality strikes a false chord and spoils the whole symphony.

Modart Corsets are distinctive and artistic. Made only by experts in a specialty factory. Each employe is a specialist and performs only a certain kind of work. Each finished corset reflects the skill of its makers—it imparts both style and comfort.

We hope those who have thus far deferred paying a visit to our Corset Section will this week find early opportunity to inspect these beautiful corsets and judge for themselves whether their merits have been exaggerated.
