VANCOUVER, B. C., April 1 .- (Spe VANCOUVER, B. C., April 1.—(Special.)—Portland was practically eliminated from the P. N. A. tournament tonight in the second night's matches in boxing and wrestling, losing every bout in which the Multinomah Club was represented. There were 13 events tonight and Portland men figured in four, three wrestling and one boxing.

Spokane came out with the lightweight wrestling championship and one other wrestling championship and one other win, while Vancouver showed with the middle-weight championship.

Seattle finished the night with the H5-pound wrestling championship and the 125-pound championship.

Twas Sad Night for Multnomah.

It was a sad night for Multnomah. Beginning with the 115-pound wrestling bout, L. Fabre lost to F. Duncan, of Scattle, in one fall in three minutes and 17 seconds. J. Duff, of Portland, continued the losing streak in the 125-pound class by losing to Chris Wiby, of Vancouver, the fall taking but 29 seconds.

J. Duff, of Portland, continued the losing streak in the 135-pound class by losing to Chris Wiby, of Vancouver, the fall taking but 29 seconds.

R. B. Biell, of Portland, defaulted to Duncan Gillis, of Vancouver, in the heavy-weight wrestling bout and went into the heavy-weight boxing class with W. Weeks, of Vancouver, getting knocked out after one minute and 55 seconds of the second round. In the first round Buell got excited and walloped Weeks while the latter was still on his liness from a fall, but Weeks overlookesd the foul, and although the bout was stopped for the round, went on with the second round.

G. Walker, of Vancouver, won the 185-pound wrestling championship from C. Gesek, of Spokane, on aggressiveness, the bout lasting 12 minutes.

Scattle Gets Championship.

The defaulting of Welsh, of Vancouver, to F. Duncan, of Seattle, gave the latter the 115-pound championship wrestling over Chris Wiby, of Vancouver, the bout going 15 minutes and being marked by a classy exhibition of wrestling and by the Percy Campbell cornet band which also will give a concert before the game and will play throughout the contest. Special permission has been secured from the police department to run two autos abreast in the parade. This will be the first time this plan has ever been followed in Portland. Mayor Simon and several other Portland officials have promised to appear in the parade and to assist in the opening ceremoules. Judge Williams, ex-Mayor and the oldest an in Portland, has promised to pitch he first ball if his health will permit

At the Theaters

THE popularity of Shakespeare's "Othello" is due entirely to its plot. is undoubtedly the greatest tragedy in world, and, as Wordsworth says, "the most pathetic of human conspiracies.

Invariably we must go to Shakespeare for the perfection of inconsistency in character as well as the perfectness in any type or character. Among the many of his finest portraits is that of Othello, the Moor of Venice.

Robert Mantell at the Bungalow last evening demonstrated again that he is an authority on the meaning of the drama and the interpretation of Othello was illuminating to the student of Shakespeare. evening demonstrated again that he is an authority on the meaning of the drama and the interpretation of Othello was illuminating to the student of Shakespeare. His Moor is indeed a civilized barbarian. Mr. Mantell can give nowhere a better performance than he gave last night to the handful of folk who came to hear him. The production was splendidly staged. The great acting of this trage-dian is a rarity so seldom paralleled that it would seem as if it might require some it would seem us if it might require some courage to proclaim it as a thing actually here in our midst. The many walls, verbal and printed, that our stage is deteriorating, and that the theaters are on the downward path, assume proportions of the ridiculous when a meritorious production of standard productions visits Portland and plays to empty benches it would seem much as if these howlers about decadent drama were four-flushing in their demands for the classics.

There is prebably no actor on our stage who can speak either English or verse as can Mantell. In his sciing he has technique earried to suprame heights. His as can Maniell. In his acting he has technique earried to supreme heights. His picture of the implacable Moor was sublime in its tragic intensity and repression. He was a patient figure of fate and evil conquering limits. conquering innate goodness. Mantell's Othello is a carefully finished and vital achievement. Seemingly he transfuses every personal sensation into his audience.

the responded last night enthusiastically, Actor Moor and audience feel the same inpulse. When the Moor, realising that he has been deceived, kills himself by realistications are couch in order not to surdience, and for half a minute last night there was absolute silence before the applause broke forth in a tempest of cheers. Mantell's Moor is characterized by vehemence of passion once his jeal-ousy is aroused, and yet he stamps the character with a quiet dignity, a charm and courage of conviction that needs must be recognized.

Shakespeare, with his usual penchant for contrasts, made lago a perfect Lucifer. This character in the hands of Fritz Leiber is most excellent. As he portrays it, lago is not a shade too satanic. His instinuations are delivered with apparently little care, but in every instance he forces the conviction that he is telling the truth. Much of the effectiveness of Othello depends on lago, hence it is fortunate that the role is so happily cast. Mario Booth Russell is, of course, Desdemona. She has a personal charm and beauty that serve her well in hand, but as Desdemona she is neither sincere nor convincing, particularly in the murder scene.

It is not so much by the inward and scene.

It is not so much by the inward and spiritual grace that Miss Russell gives in this role, but rather is it the outward and physical. Mention must be made of Agnes Elliott Scott, who as Emilia gave a decidedly fine bit of dramatic work.

Tonight "King Lear" will be given, with "Romeo and Juliet" tomorrow afternoon and "Richard III" tomorrow night.

SMOKER WADES AT NINETY

Old Man Is Not Afraid of Chilling Bare Feet.

YARLEY. Pa., April 1.—John H. Morris, the 90-year-old river farmer of Morrisville, tells how to live to a ripe old age. Mr. Morris, who is well known to hundreds of residents of the county, has been a constant user of tobacco since he was 10 years old. Now, however, he confines himself to his clay pipe, although he formerly was a tobacco chewer of no small proportions. In his young days Morris was regarded as a sickly child and required the attention of a physician quite frequently, but he has reached the ripe old age of 90 years and is sturdy and nimble. He has a long, flowing white beard, and says he keeps his joints in good working order by bathing himself in olive roll, a thing he has done for years.

The frequent bathing of his feet is also given as one of the reasons he has witnessed the advent and departure of so many years. A favorite method of Mr. Morris for cleansing his feet is to wade in the water. This he does in Summer and Winter, and not infrequently when the loe is so thick that it is necessary for him first to break it. He is a great lover of buttermilk and in season eats generously of asparence.

TOO POOR TO LIVE, DIES

Lonesome Life in Lodging-House Leads to Suicide.

Chicago, April 1.-Silas I. Tuniso

Chicago, April 1.—Silas I. Tuniso, bookkeeper, 67 years oid, a widower, 322 North Clark street, died by his own hand because he was tired of a lone-some life in a lodging-house.

"Ain't it hell to be poor?" he demanded of Policeman Mullane, who, with the night clerk, John Miner, found the old man dying in bed, his throat slashed and a razor lying by his side.

"Who cut you?" asked the policeman, ignoring the man's question.

"I did it, because I was lonely and tired of life."

Members of his family, including his wife, died years ago, and the man had lived in hallrooms alone. He seldom made new friends and kept to his room

Despite the fact that his throat was siashed from ear to ear the vocal chords were not severed, and the old man talked of his past and told of his act while he was being removed to the police ambulance. He died on the way to the Passavant Hospital.

"Life in a hallroom don't mean much," he complained. "I was just a plodding old bookkeeper and never could get ahead. I knew no pleasures and lived this lonesome life until I became so tired of it I wanted to die."

Groans coming from Tuniso's room attracted the night clerk early today, and the police of the Chicago-avenue station were summoned.

"Don't bother about me," the old man urged the police, when they prepared to move him to the hospital.

"Maybe you'll live," said the policeman, hopefully.
"But I won't. I don't want to, either. I am dying now."

COWBOY HUNTS FOR WIFE

Good Looks and Good Humor Worth More Than Million.

CLEVELAND, O., April 1.—A unique request has reached Mayor Baehr from Spokane, Wash. John J. Powell, a cowboy, has written that he wants an Ohlo girl for a wife and that he has Onio giri for a wife and that he has heard that many beautiful ones reside in Cleveland. He writes that as Speaker Cannon has been besieged by girls wanting husbands, there certainly is one who would like to take pot luck with him. He says he wants a good-humored, good-looking wife, who is not worth a million.

The cowboy's letter was accompanied by a photograph, which shows him to be a handsome type of Western young manhood, looking like a stage cowboy

Normal, healthy blood contains millions of tiny red corpuscles, which are the vitalizing and nourishing element of the circulation. These corpuscles are constantly forming in healthy systems by the extraction of nutriment from food eaten, and this nourishment is then supplied through the circulation to every portion of the system. Any system which does not receive the proper amount of blood nourishment is not prepared to withstand the countless disorders that assail it. Bad blood can not nourish the body, the circulation must be pure, rich and strong if we would enjoy good health. Bad blood manifests itself in various ways. With some it takes the form of skin diseases and eruptions, others become bilious and malarious, with sallow complexions, torpid liver, etc. If the germs and impurities in the blood are of a more virulent nature then bad blood becomes more serious and produces Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcars, and like troubles.
