Maid Says Two Masked Robbers Bound and Gagged Her.

KNOCK AT DOOR SCARES

Little Eugene Gale Raps for Admittance, Thieves Flee—Man and Wife Find Girl Tied—Police Blame ex-Domestic.

Four-year-old Eugene Gale, yesterday afternoon, by knocking at the door of his home at 249 Sixth street, innocently thwarted robbery of the house by two masked men, who, after binding and gagging the maid, were ransacking the place when the youngster rapped for admittance. The thieves fled and are still at large.

Miss Rose Mosher, 18 years old, employed as a maid in the Gale household, says the thieves entered by the back door as she was examining a roast in the stove. She heard them enter, she says, but thought the noise was made by Mr. Gale and his wife, who were expected home any moment.

Adjusting their masks, the girl told the police, the robbers sprang upon her, one of them pinning her arms to her sides, the other placing his hand over her mouth to prevent an outcry. Then the girl's hands were bound behind her and a towel was so tied around her face as to gag her. As the ruffians bound her feet, she said, she fell to the floor in a swoon. How long she lay there Miss Mosher does not know.

Knock Scares Thieves.
"I distinctly remember coming to my senses partially and hearing someone knock on the front door," she said. "Then the two men ran out the back door."

The knock at the front door was made by Eugene, the 4-year-old son of Mr. Gale. The child had been playing in the street with neighbor children. There was no response to his knock or cry, save noise made by the scurrying thieves. The youngster rejoined his playmates in the street.

Miss Mosher, reviving, dragged herself through the kitchen and dining room into the parlor, where she swooned again after reaching a Morris chair near an open window. In this position she was found by Mr. Gale and his wife when they returned to the house at 2 o'clock. It was an hour before Miss Mosher told her story. Mr. Gale then notified the police.

Miss Mosher's father, R. Mosher, is a postman, living at 506 Jersey street, St. Johns. She went to work for the Gales two days ago. An hour after she was found Miss Mosher spoke laughingly of her experience.

Maid's View Slight.

"I was terribly scared," she said. "I thought Mr. and Mrs. Gale had returned. They told me they would be back about 1 o'clock and I was turning the roast in the stove. I heard footsteps behind me in the kitchen doorway, but did not turn my head. Then someone grabbed hold of me around the waist and a hand was placed over my mouth. I tried to scream, but couldn't. Then they bound and gagged me and I fainted."

"I did not see much of the men, but know there were two of them. I did not see them very plainly. They wore dark clothes and one was taller than the other. That is about all I know."

"When I came to my senses the first time, they were going through the rooms. I could hear them opening drawers as they went through the house. Then little Eugene knocked on the door and they ran away, leaving behind the things they had collected on the floor in the dining room."

The robbers, after binding the girl, ransacked the house. Jewelry of various kinds, silverware, small change and a toy bank containing $5 were heaped on the floor. So far as could be learned nothing whatever was taken from the house by the robbers.

None Sees Invaders.

How the robbers entered and left the house without being seen by neighbors is perplexing to the police. Half a dozen children were playing on the sidewalk and in the street at the time. All the window shades were up in the house and the rear door was open. The house occupies a 50-foot lot with houses on each side. It is believed the robbers entered the grounds to the house through the back way and took the same route in escaping.

Mr. Gale is proprietor of the Gale Outfitting Company at 430 Washington street.

Detectives are inclined to suspect a domestic employed until recently by the Gales. The robbers evidently were familiar with the arrangement of the house. Just how the burglars learned of the absence of the Gales puzzles the police. They are working on the theory that someone with information from close range was involved in the case.

HOT CAMPAIGN OVER

St. Johns Votes Today as to Whether Saloons Stay.

THREE TICKETS IN FIELD

Socialists Name Candidates and Other Lists Are Headed "Progressives" (Dry), "Citizens" (Wet)—Ayer in Campaign.

With prohibition as the principal issue, voters of St. Johns will go to the polls today and decide definitely the issues of the hottest political campaign in the town's history.

Throughout the campaign the question of whether St. Johns shall continue to have saloons has been the issue. The people will vote on this, and in addition will vote on three separate tickets for city offices. One of these tickets was promulgated by the Socialist party, while the other two are labeled "Progressive" and "Citizens." The latter is for a continuance of the saloons, while the former opposes them.

Mayor Hendricks heads the "wet" ticket. A. M. Eason heads the "Progressive" ticket.

Interest is chiefly centered between these two, with the chances considered about equal for both. The entrance during the closing days of the campaign of N. E. Ayer, of the St. Johns Lumber Company, as a "dry" exponent, has caused an increased interest in the campaign. Both sides closed Saturday night with large rallies.

There are two amendments to the city charter to be voted upon which are of general interest. One is the changing of the time of city elections from April to November, and the holding of elections every two years, instead of annually. The amendment of chief interest is that proposed in which the Council is given authority to lease the city dock to private interests for 25 years. This, it is believed, will be defeated.

A touch of rheumatism, or a twinge of neurasthenia, whatever the trouble is, Chamberlain's Liniment drives away the pain at once and cures the complaint quickly. First application gives relief. Sold by all dealers.
