Fairbanks Men Who Say They Ascended McKinley Call Doctor's Trip Mythical.

PIONEERS INSPECT NOTES

Mountaineers Reporting Success Say Peak Is 20,500 Feet High-They Recount Holsting Old Glory at Highest Point.

FAIRBANKS, April 12 .- The Fairbanks Mount McKinley expedition, said by them to have reached the summit of the peak, asser, the by them to have reached the summit of the peak, assert that the party started to follow the route alleged to have been taken by Dr. Frederick A. Cook and were obliged to abandon it as impassable. Thomas Lloyd, leader of the expedition, says no traces of Cook's camps were found, and he declares the doctor's story of the four-day ascent a pure myth.

Lloyd placed his crude notes of the journey in the hands of a committee of the Order of Ploneers of Alaska, who will arrange for publication of the story. The party took photographs of the highest point reached and of points all along the trail. They also established the trail so well, they say, that it can be followed by other parties next Summer. On one stretch of the trail eight miles long the explorers report working two weeks. On one high point a flagsinff 14 feet tail was erected. firmly buttressed by rocks. The work done by the Fairbanks men can be easily verified, they report.

Height 20,500 Feet.

Their measurement places the height of the mountain at 20,500 feet. Ten men were in the party that left Fairbanks with dog teams in December. It was the theory of the leaders that the ascent would be less dangerous

It was the theory of the leaders that the ascent would be less dangerous in the early Spring than later, when the snow begins to melt.

The expedition, on reaching the base of the mountain, went into camp, waited for better weather and planned the ascent. All were familiar with the great mountain and its habits. None of the men has scientific education and they took no special apparatus except cameras and a barometer. They were equipped as for prospecting, and traveled as light as possible, and with the food supply of the Alaska miner. When the ascent was begun, they recount, the first camp was made at the line of the willows, the second at 2900 feet, the third at 10,000 feet, the fourth at 18,000 feet, and from this camp, they say, the dash to the top was made. Four dogs went to the third camp and one to the fourth. Snowshoes were used most of the way and much time was consumed in carrying supplies to the fourth camp, travel over the steep lice compelling light loads and several trips. In some places crevasses were crossed on bridges of poles brought from the timbered slopes below.

Cook's Pictures Not Natural.

The party did not set out to disprove Dr. Cook's story, but to climb the mountain. They assert that they found the summits utterly unlike those pictured in the doctor's book. On the rock peak they recount leaving an American flag flying 6 by 12 feet, attached to a 14-foot staff with a four-linch butt. The pole was held firmly in place by rocks piled about the base and by guy ropes. The flag was visible for a long distance on the north side of the mountain. The building of the monument about the flag was difficult because of the rarified atmosphere. The view from the summit was obscured by clouds at the lower levels. The party did not set out to diserevasses filled with snow and easy to cross except in a few lustances. Later in the reason avalanches and treach-erous crevasses must be guarded

Unnamed Peak Seen.

The explorers say they discovered a magnifluent unnamed peak 16,000 feet tall, and also a new pass through the mountain range which shortens the distance to the coast 75 miles. The pass is flanked by majestic perpendic-

Daniel Patterson, W. P. Taylor and Charles McGonnigle remained at Katlshna and only bloyd came in. The Ploneers committee took steps to verify bloyd's story before stamping it as genuine, and even now are disincilined to surrender his notes, though satisfied that they prove the story amply. The return of bloyd from the mountain in nine days was due to the excellence of the trail made by the excellence of the trall made by the Houdin's life-size figure of "Diana" has been sold for $15,000 at a continuation of the art sale. A New York dealer was the purchaser. An agent representing an American collector, whose name was withheld, paid $5002 for MacMonnies' "Bacchante." These were the highest prices paid of the day. Other treasures were bid in at bargain prices. Total sales for the day were $118,129, making the receipts of the auction to date $2,182,220.

Many small losses, however, are balanced by the profit netted on three small pictures which brought $217,400 at auction. They were purchased by the collector for $47,000, according to a statement today by a French expert. The Franz Hals "Portrait of a Woman," which brought $127,000 at auction, is declared to have cost Mr. Yerkes $12,000; the Rembrandt "Portrait of a Rabbi" was secured for $10,000, and sold this week for $51,400, while Turner's "Rockets and Blue Lights" which fetched $125,000 at the present sale, was bought in 1896 for slightly less than $25,006.

DENVER, April 13.—Disappointment amounting to criticism is expressed in Denver at the clause in the will of the late Thomas F. Walsh, naming Washington, D. C., as his home. The Denver Times says:

ington, D. C., as his nome. The Denver Times says:

"Until the will of Mr. Walsh was filed for probate nobody here or eisewhere doubted that Mr. Walsh's real residence was in Colorado. It was clearly understood that he would be a candidate for the United States Senate, representing Colorado. But the probation of the will discloses that on January 10, only 90 days ago, he in the most formal manner, declared Washington to be his residence and Colorado but a place of convenience in which to spend a part of the year.

"This question is important only in the amount of inheritance tax the estate of Thomas F. Walsh will yield to Colorado."

Advice Concerning Stomach Troubles and How to Remedy Them

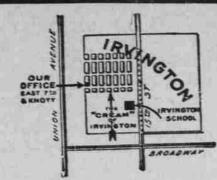

Do not neglect indigestion which leads to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent doctor once said that ninety-five per cent of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.

A physician who made a specialty of stomach troubles, particularly dyspepsia, after years of study perfected the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made.

Tablets are made.

Tablets are made.
Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be the greatest remedy known for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed meming and healing to the intained membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time brings about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexail Dyspepsia Tablets will insure healthy appetite, aid digestion and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexail Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00.
