WILSON HIT BY MAHER'S CHARGE

Promoter of Boxing Says Municipal League Agent Tried to Blackmail.

WORDY MEETING OCCURS

Trial of Director of Oregon Athletic Club Drags Throughout Afternoon Without Reaching Stage for Final Disposition.

Charging John C. Wilson, of the Municipal League, with attempting to blackmail him in connection with his recent conducting boxing exhibitions, Patrick Maher, managing director of the Oregon Athletic Club, stopped Wilson in the hall outside of Justice Cook's in the Worcester building yesterday afternoon, and openly questioned his motives in causing the arrest.

MERE BAGATELLE IS $500. Mr. Adams, of New York, Loses Pocketbook; Doesn't Mind Much.

The loss of a trifling matter like $500 and an ancient pocketbook did not add any wrinkles to the brow of Charles L. Adams, of New York, when the matter was brought to his attention yesterday.

"Guess it's gone, all right," remarked Mr. Adams, as he strolled up to the desk of the cashier at the Hotel Portland. "There is more where that came from, and I'll just stroll over to the bank. By the way, some honest man may find it on the streets and return it here. If he does, give him $50. Sorry to trouble you. Thanks."

Upon returning to the hotel, where he is staying with his wife, after a walk around the city, Mr. Adams discovered that his pocketbook was gone, he could not tell how. It may have been lost or lifted by pickpockets, he said. But in any event it was a matter of small concern to the gentleman from Gotham.

HEAVY SENTENCE IMPOSED. Cigar Dealer Must Spend 90 Days Pounding Rocks.

One of the heaviest fines for disorderly conduct ever imposed in the Municipal Court was given Leo Weingarden, a Burnside-street cigar dealer, yesterday morning in Municipal Court.

Maher Discusses Case. "Wilson and I were talking in the hall before the trial," said Maher, "and the proposition came up that the Municipal League would permit boxing contests at the Oregon Athletic Club, the Police Athletic Club, the Rose City Athletic Club and the Pastime Club, providing a person to act as censor of the matches could be appointed and agreed upon mutually."

BEER BRINGS ODD HUNGER

Man, Insane From Beverage, Thinks He Is Horse and Eats Hay.

Crazed from an excessive indulgence in young beer, said to have been furnished him free at a local brewery, Frank Willis, a laborer, imagined himself a horse yesterday morning, and went into the brewery stables and took possession of a stall.

The police were notified and Sergeant Riley with Patrol Driver Gruber, went to the brewery stables and took possession of a stall. To carry out the delusion he lay down in the stall on a pile of timothy hay and ate of the dry grass to such an extent that, when discovered, he was almost dead.

SHOCKS CONTINUE ALL NIGHT

"After a time we were alone and sat down in the dust in the middle of the street. One Jannick, who had been the new bishop's last visitation, threw a blanket for Ridley and the Jamaican servant carried him. Various Jamaicans groans and interjections and prayers and preaching; they were terrifying the people. By and by a family came to seek us and asked us to come to their garden, and we sat out the night with them."

"The shocks went on from time to time all night. Only one made the house give a crack. It is not badly cracked, however. And all yesterday and night they have continued at intervals, very much lighter than they were. It seems that there is a new volcano forming not far off—about six miles, they say—between the mountains are in eruption beyond San Jose, Barba and Poas. The lady with whom I stayed in Agua Caliente tells me that there is hardly a house there on the southwest side that is not more or less badly cracked, and the spring of hot water is not running. Evidently the water has sunk by the canal having gone down farther into the earth. Many reports are current, none reliable. Only God knows; only He can help."

People are sleeping in the depot and parks, spending the days in the house with front doors fastened open. The governor of cartage is making a nation for none to remain inside last night or for the present. The streets are full of people sitting in their doorways or in carts.

"Do not be alarmed. All is well. All must be well. The Lord hath been mindful of us." Mrs. Berry visited Cartago about four years ago, staying several months. She describes it as being about 5000 feet above the sea, with a climate very much like that of Portland. Recent arrangements have been made by which the employes of the Canal Zone are allowed to spend their vacations at the hot springs which are mentioned by Mrs. Cooper as having stopped running.

RESPIRE IS GRANTED

UNITED RAILWAYS HAS TWO WEEKS TO TAKE ACTION.

Council for Hill Interests Promises Company Will Do Right Thing if Council Is Not Hasty.

"Give the Hill interests a chance and they will make everything right," was the burden of the speech of R. Webster, counsel for the United Railways, when the proposed ordinance by Councilman Dunning, revoking the Seventh-street franchise of the company, came up for action before the street committee of the Council yesterday afternoon.

Ralph E. Moody, representing property owners along Seventh street, declared that his clients will be satisfied with nothing less than the forfeiture of the franchise referred to, and that the Hill interests, which have just taken over the electric road, cannot "make everything right." He asked for immediate action, saying that there is no use in delaying it, as the property owners insist upon having no carline on Seventh street, and that the United Railways Company had had the grant four years, but has done nothing all that time.

General Manager Wickelsham, of the United Railways Company, declared that James J. Hill and associates have the interests of Portland at heart and that they will in no wise do anything that will impair the city's growth or offend its citizens.

"All Mr. Hill wants is time to pick up the details of this business, it being a new property," said Mr. Wickelsham, "and you will find that the carline will be handled in a manner highly satisfactory to the city." He and Mr. Stevens wish to consult over it before the Council acts, and that is the sole reason we ask you to give us a little time."

Councilman Wallace expressed the opinion that the company's carelessness had brought about the situation and that the Council should vote to revoke the franchise at once. Councilman Dunning, who introduced the revoking ordinance last session, is not a member of the committee and had no voice in the action taken yesterday. He came in after the vote was taken, and expressed surprise and disapproval of the committee's action, feeling that the franchise should be revoked.

Speaking for the Hill interests, Judge Webster said that if the committee would postpone action for two weeks, no further time would be asked for and that the company will do no work on the street in question pending the result.
