

ROOSEVELT TALKS OF GENERAL PEACE

Remarkable Address Is Made Before Royalty, Who Join in Loud Cheers.

REVERENCE PAID BJORNSON

Whole Audience Stands as Speaker Pays Tribute to Dead Author. League of Peace Among All Nations Is Advocated.

CHRISTIANIA, May 6.—Notwithstanding an occasional weakness of the voice, Theodore Roosevelt made a deep impression on the audience which gathered today in the National Assembly to hear his address on "International Peace" before the Nobel Prize Committee. It was described by the members of the committee as the most notable assembly since the Nobel prize was founded.

King Haakon and Queen Maud were present, as were members of the Norwegian Government, who occupied seats on the stage, and the entire Parliamentary body, including Miss Rogstad, the first woman to be elected to the Norwegian Storting.

The ovation at the opening of the session was especially composed by the Royal handmaster, Johann Halvorsen, who dedicated it to Mr. Roosevelt. The theme embodied the "Star Spangled Banner," Norse folk songs and melodies. The stage was covered with flowers and only the Stars and Stripes were visible.

Before taking up the subject of his official address Mr. Roosevelt spoke of the late Bjornstjerne Bjornson. "I wish to pronounce a tribute," he said, "to the great Norwegian who has just died."

The whole house arose and stood with bowed heads for a moment and Mr. Roosevelt continued, "whose death leaves a gap in the literature of the whole world."

He alluded to Bjornson as a man who had always stood for the right as he conceived it to be. As Mr. Roosevelt proceeded with his address the Norwegians commented upon the similarity between the style of public speaking of ex-President Roosevelt and Bjornson, remarking on the same favorite gesture with the clenched hand.

The Colonel proposed three cheers for Norway and led the cheering, but the house broke away and gave nine, following the Norwegian custom.

The audience then sang the Norwegian anthem and dispersed. The ex-President today gave Sculptor Vigland a 45-minute sitting for a statue to be erected in North Dakota. Colonel Roosevelt wrote to Representative Louis B. Hanna, in charge of the matter, he did not believe in statues to living men, but added that his friends were going to have a statue he thought it ought to be typical of his early days in North Dakota, either as a frontier farmer or as a soldier.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the explorer, paid a visit to Mr. Roosevelt today and recalled that he had told Mr. Roosevelt 10 or 12 years ago that if any American discovered the Pole he would pick Nansen.
