BRIEF, HAPPPY RULE OF EDWARD ENDED

Death From Bronchitis Takes Monarch After Illness of but Few Days.

END WAS NOT UNEXPECTED

Ever Since First Bulletin Was Sent Ont, Hinting at Grave Sickness, Crowds Had Thronged Space Before Palace, Waiting.

BRITAIN'S RULER IS NOW KING GEORGE V.

d Member of House of Saxe-

King George V, the 57th menarch from King Bebert the Saxon, and the second King from the bouse of Saxe-Coburg, succeeded to the throne last night on the death of his father, King

The next were of the Court Circular, the official organ of the British court, will announce the ascent of the King to the throne and will give his title

"His Most Excellent Majesty Geo the Fifth, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Paith, Emperor of India; second son of His late Majesty King Edward VII and of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, eldest daughter of His late Majesty, King Christian IX of Denmark, born June 3, 1865, married July 6, 1896, to Princess Victoria Mary of Teck (born May 26, 1867).

Their Majesties have issue

Edward, born June 23, 1894. Albert, born December 14, 1895. Mary, born April 25, 1897, Henry, born March 31, 1900, George, born December 20, 1902, John, born July 12, 1905. Prince Edward will be known now as the Prince of Wales. He has, however, no right to that title until the patent of the rank is conferred upon him by his father, King George V.

(Continued From First Page.) received it without excitement but sadly, for the King with his own people was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world.

News Received Quietly. They regarded him as one of the strongest forces making for the stability of the peace of the empire.

The fashionable restaurants were just emptying and a few groups of late theatergoers were making their way homeward through the rain, while a small crowd still hung about the palace, when the streets were filled suddenly with newsboys shrilly cry-"Death of the King." The pawere quickly seized and the paople discussed the momentous event quietly and soon dispersed. streets were deserted by 1 o'clock.

Within a few minutes after the death of the King, the Home Office was tele-graphing the intelligence to the heads of nts and the diplomats and dal officials throughout the world.

Sudden Death Expected.

All who knew the King expected his death would be sudden and it would not have occasioned great surprise if thad occurred without warning at some social function as a result of heart trouble. Almost to the end he refused to take to his bed and was sitting up yesterday in a large chair, so the palace stories go, corroborating the description of him as an unruly patient, which Dr. Ott gave to a Vienna interviewer lass one of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over. but I think I have done my duty."

He seemed then to have reached a full realization that death was approach-

The Queen and others of the Royal amily and four daughters have been onstantly in the sick room throughout he day. Several hours before his death the King was in a comatose condition, but rallied slightly between 9 and 10

The body lies in the King's chamber in the northwest wing of Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great, gloomy building, with the exception of Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened. It was nearly half an hour after the King breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters:

Death Formally Announced.

"Gentlemen: His Majesty is dead." The people outside the palace only learned the news when boys appeared with papers.

with papers.

In the meantime the Prince and Frincess of Wales had taken leave of the other members of the Royal Family at the main entrance soon after midnight. They drove direct to Marlborough House. Princess Victoria, who is her mether's constant companionion, remained with the Queen. The other members of the family followed the Prince and Princess of Wales.

BILLIONS FOR INSURANCE

Policies Issued on Lives Estimated - at $1,688,020,489 Last Year.

Louisville Courier Journal.

Everybody knows that ublquitous individual, the life insurance agent. He may be imported or indigenous, but he is everywhers, and the sun never sets on his activities. He was particularly busy in the United States during the year 1909. Representing 180 companies, he wrote $1,688,020,489 in policies, some "Where was it I saw you instituted united the old man, suspiciously. "In jug." was the detective's cautious reply. "Oh, sure." I remember. It was in the You're right," said Shevlin, "Are you doing anything lately?"

"Well, I haven't been, but I am going Louisville Courier Journal.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF QUEEN ALEXANDRA, THE PRINCE OF WALES, WHO BECOMES KING OF ENGLA ND, AND MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

PRINCE EDWARD OF YORK, THE KING TO BE $200,000,000 in excess of the record for

PRINCE OF WALES, KING EDWARD, AND

The policy holders were somewhat busy at the same thing. It takes some hustling for the generality of them to meet their premiums, but they worked nobly, paying in $564,785,696, a gain of $19,000,000 over what they paid in 1908. Interest and other payments swelled the income of the companies to $747,294,985. During the year the companies disbursed to policy holders $350,663,053, and laid by "for the future protection of policy holders" $242,343,374. Statistics as to how much went to "yellow dog" funds are lacking, but probably will come out in the course of future legislative investigations.

The assets of the 180 companies at the close of 1909 amounted to $3,564,-The policy holders were somewhat

The assets of the 180 companies at the close of 1909 amounted to $3,564.

195,542, an increase of $254,900,000 during the year. The surplus on policy holders accounts increased nearly $59,-600,000, to $544,410,426. The figures, which are taken from a tabulation by one of the leading insurance papers of the United States, give some idea of the enormous growth of the life insurance business. Taking the ordinary and the industrial business together, the insurance in force in the companies operatance in force in the companies operating under the legal reserve laws amounts to $15,473,909,466.

amounts to $15,473,909,466.

The notable galus made all along the line reflect the improvement in financial affairs since the murky condition of 1907. The insurance agent made a good record for himself last year and is entering upon the work of 1910 with improved prospects. He is rolling up so much business that the figures already are so big as to stagger the ordinary man's comprehension. Small wonder that financial magnates are struggling for control of the great insurgling for control of the great insur-ance companies, while the busy agent is hustling and the policy holder is pay-

DOG HATES "LOHENGRIN"

Jersey Squire Stops St. Bernard's Howis With a Phonograph.

New York Press. Squire Hake Baldwin, of Cedar Grove Squire Hake Baldwin, of Cedar Grove.
N. J., has discovered a sure cure for a howling dog. He takes his phonograph, loads it with the "Lohengrin" wedding song, trains the blunderbuss muzzle of the machine out the open window, and pulls the trigger. As soon as the charge of "Lorengrin" notes strikes the eardrums of the howling animal it shuts its jaws, sneaks off to its bed, and tries to go to sleep and forget it. Baldwin says the trick will work every time.
The Squire is a light sleeper. Antontus Jacobus, a neighbor, has a St. Ber-the King was in a comatose condition, but rallied slightly between 9 and 10 clock and appeared to recognize his family. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness which ended in death.

Operation Feared Necessary.

When Dr. St. Clair Thompson, the great throat specialist, was calle dinyesterday morning, it was expected an operation on the throat would be necesyssary, but after a consultation it was deckied that the lungs were the seat of the most serious trouble. Experts were held in readiness to administer an anaesthetic but there was fear that the weakness of the King's heart might result in a fatal issue, and an operation was reserved as the last resort.

The body lies in the king's chamber in the northwest wing of Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great, gloomy building, with the exception of Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened. It was nearly half an hour after the King breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting resort. the dog stopped howling. Long before the finale was reached the animal had retreated to its kennel. Baldwin then lay down and slept undisturbed.

Next night the dog began howling sgain. Baldwin used more "Lohengrin" wedding music with the same result, and now the St. Bernard will not venture out of its kennel after nightfall.

GOOD DISGUISE WORKS Detective's Emergency Neckband Fools Suspect.

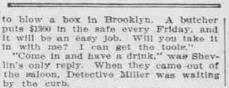

NEW YORK. May 5.—There was some-thing about the appearance of Detective Shevlin, of the Central office, when he appeared with a fiannel band about a sore throat that deceived a suspect into becoming confidential.

Shevlin was standing at the Bowery

Shevlin was standing at the Bowery and Canal street, when an old man sidled up to his and whispered;
"Bad neck, pard?"
"No: sore throat," answered Shevlin. "How's things with you?"
"Where was it I saw you last?" inquired the old man, suspiciously.
"In jug," was the detective's cautious reply.

doing anything lately?"
"Well, I haven't been, but I am going

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, May 6.—Alonso O. Sturn has been appointed rural mail carrier, and Homer McTimmons substitute for Route No. 2,

OUTEN ALEXANDRA IN HERE CORONATION COSTUME

soon as the man saw Miller he urned and whispered to Sheviln:
"Cheese it; there's a buil; he must be in to us. We had better separate."
"Don't be scared of him; he's got noth-"Oh, that's all right, but we had better

Then Miller stepped up and asked what the argument was.

Neither man answered him, and he said:

I think I know you fellows. Come to headquarters with me."

Shevlin, who presented quite as foriorn appearance as the old man, held his beace, and to all intents and purposes was a prisoner. At headquarters he gave a fictitious bedigree to the desk lieutenant, who, of pedigree to the desk neutenant, who, or course, knew him, and the old man said he was James McDonald, 68 years old, of No. 98 Bowery. In the lineup of prisoners later in the day, McDonald was enraged when he saw Shevlin among the other detectives and found that he had been trapped. As nothing was found on him, he was charged with vagrancy, for which he may get six months.

WIFE'S GRAVE DEATHBED St. Louis Man Takes Life on Spot Where Mate Was Buried.

CHICAGO, May 6.-Charles W. Bertram, of St. Louis, 59 years old, was found dead today on his wife's grave in Graceland Cometery. It was be-lieved by the police that he had com-mitted suicide with poison. A note found in one of his pockets read:

"My will is to die."
Employes of the cemetery saw the man kneeling at the grave as if in prayer. Suddenly he fell forward on the ground. The police of the Town that station, who were notified, discovered that he was dead. They asked the Coroner to investigate.

Bertram came to Chicago a week ago and lived at the home of William Jacobs, a son-in-law, 1816 St. Louis years.

According to employes in Graceland

According to employes in Graceland Cemetery, Bertram visited daily the grave of his wife, who had died a year ago. He knelt beside the tombstone and prayed for hours each time he visited the cemetery.

The body was identified by Jacobs, who said that Bertram lived at 1813 Elliott avenue, St. Louis.

Bertram was despondent and ill. He told his son, Julius, before leaving St. Louis, that he had lost all interest in life and that the only comfort he could get was at his wife's grave.

Rural Carrier Appointed.

LITE THE WEST WAR

PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES AND

FAMILY WITH THE PRINCE AND HIS SONS IN SCOTCH MILTS

QUEEN MAUD OF NORWAY, DAUGHTER OF KING AND

THE PRINCESS OF WALES, VICTORIA MAY OF TECK

Meeting With Danish Princess Is "Love at First Sight."

ROMANCE GROWS APACE

Prince of Wales While Traveling on Continent Wanders Into Cathedral at Worms and by Chance Meets His Future Wife.

LONDON, May 6 .- (Special.)-I was as a little child that Queen Alexanda first came to England. Her aunt, the Duchess of Cambridge (mother of the Duchess of Teck and the Duke of Cam-Duchess of Teck and the Duke of Cambridge) had invited her to some on a brief visit, and was very much pleased with the child. As she grew up, there was hardly time for the Danish people to conjecture who would wed their eldest Princess before it was whispered that Queen Victoria's son was smitten with her charms.

Actually the first occasion on which the Prince of Wales had seen Princess Alex-andra was in 1861 when he was traveling on the Continent, and "happened" to en-ter the beautiful cathedral at Worms as she and her father were being shown the famous frescoes. It seems to have been to be deceived, including one signed by Grand Pacific, A. G. Kennedy.

a case of love at first sight. The Prince went on to see his married sister (after-wards the Etapress Frederick) at Heidelwards the Empress Frederick) at Heidel-berg, and the Princess Alexandra was in-vited to meet him there.

In the Prince Consort's diary there oc-curs this temark concerning this second meeting: "The young people seem to have taken a warm liking for each other." But sithough matters had reached this promising stage there was no formal betrothal, and the Prince resumed his studies at Cambridge. studies at Cambridge.

Princess Wins Queen's Heart,

September 9.-The Prince was betrothed formally to Princess Alexandra, a few days after the Queen had an opportunity of seeing her future daughter-in-law at Lacken. Her mother's heart went out at once to the fair Princess, and the reverent affection of the bride-elect was assured from the first moment. King Leopold of the Belgians, whose wise guidance was often of investigation. wise guidance was often of inestfurable advantage to the bereaved Sovercign, was the host at Lacken when Queen Victoria witnessed the formal betrothal of her son to Princess Alexandra. The secret was kept until the 21st birthday of the Prince of Wales, November 9, when his prospective marriage was announced in a special issue of the London Gazette, and ormed a universal subject of congratujourney of Princess Alexandra to England for her marriage to the Prince of Wales was a case of "roses, roses all the way." She left Copenhag-Frince of Wales was a case of "roses, roses all the way." She left Copenhagen on February 28, and on reaching Flushing found a squadron of British warships waiting to escort the Victoria and Albert, the royal yacht which was to convey her to England. On arrival it anchored off Gravesend, and at once the bridgerrous boarded the second the bridegroom boarded the vessel and greeted the lovely bride in full view of many delighted spectators. From Gravesend the Frince and Princess drove through crowded streets, and were presented on their way with numerous loyal addresses of welcome. After a brief rest the party set forth for Windsor, again being greeted en route with enthusiastic cheers.

At Windsor there were more adresse all the students at Eton. At last the all the students at Eton. At last the castle was reached and the long journey ended "with welcome to the weary" from Queen Victoria and her family. A great levee was held at St. James palace a few days before the wedding, and the young Prince received an enormous number of his subjects for the first time in this manner. Hereafter it was always stated that presentation to the Prince of Wales at such leves. the Prince of Wales at such levees was considered equal to a presentation to the sovereign, a further sign of the ad-vance in duties and responsibility which the Prince had made.

As no royal wedding had taken place in St. George's Chapel since the marriage of King Henry I, it may be imagined how much thought and preparation were expended in getting ready the fine edifice. On March 16, 1863, in bright weather and amid general festivity throughout the whole country, the Prince of Wales was married to Princess Alexandra.

In the royal closet, resembling a second in the royal closet, resembling and the second in the royal closet.

In the royal closet, resembling a private box at the opera, sat the widowed Queen Victoria, in deep mourning, only relieved by the blue ribbon of the Or-relieved by the blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter. Very punctually—has not punctuallty been called the virtue of Princes?—the bridegroom arrived in the church, accompanied by his uncle, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, and the Crown Prince of Prussia, whose stalwart figure attracted great attention. All three men wore the Order of the Garter, and the bridegroom was attired in the uniform of a British General. Amide that hush of expectation which always awaits the arrival of a bride the congregation turned toward the entrance through which presently the bride made her entry. Leaning on the arm of her father, the lovely Princess advanced slowly and with perfect grace up the aisie. The marriage service was not unduly lengthened, and the formal signature of the registry was reserved for a brief ceremony in the green room of the castle afterward.

CHICAGO, May 6 .- (Special.) -- Port-CHICAGO, May 5.—(Special.)—Port-land people registered today at Chicago hotels as follows: Congress, A. Welch, J. C. Bracher; Stratford, J. B. Small; Great Northern, Mrs. W. W. Alvey;

QUEEN WILL COME

Her Majesty of Roumania to Pay Visit to Oregon.

CARMEN SYLVA CONSENTS

Royal Writer Is Enthusiastic Esperantist and Will Be Prominent at International Meeting at Washington in August.

Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, of Roumania, will visit Washington, D. C., next August to attend the international congress of the Esperantists and efforts are now being made by local Esperantists, backed up by the Harriman railroads, to get the Queen to visit Oregon.

For fear of a disappointment no announcement has yet been made, but it has been ascertained that through the kind offices of President Taft the visit is practically assured.

is practically assured.

Queen Elizabeth is an ardent Esperantist. From the very first her interest was excited in the new international language, and it was not very long before she was able to write and speak it fluently. Her Majesty is a novellst, whose books are much read, but her stories many of which have but her stories, many of which have appeared under the name of Carmen Sylva in American magazines, are gems in their own line. Of late a number of stories have appeared in the various Esperanto publications, of which there are now nearly 100, un-Her Majesty's showing the intense interest she has

Pacific Coast Attracts.

In view of this circumstance and the fact, as shown by numbers of her let-ters, that she ardently desires to visit the Pacific Coast, local and Oregon Esperantists believe there will be no aftch in the arrangements now being made to induce the Queen to pay a social call at Portland. The International Esperanto Con-gress will convene in Washington Augress will convene in Washington August 14, and will continue in session until August 20. Delegates are expected from every section of the world, for there is hardly a town of any size that does not boast its Experanto circle, while in Europe it numbers adherents by the hundred thousand. thousand.

Last year the annual conference was held in Belgium, and it was unani-mously agreed that the congress this year be held in the United States, where it is hoped to enroll many en-thusiasts. At that time the Queen's consent was obtained to being a dele-gate to the Washington congress.

Cooper Took Initiative.

In the matter of the visit to Oregon In the matter of the visit to Oregon the initiative was first taken by J. C. Cooper, manager of the Medford Commercial Club, who is an ardent student of the new language. Mr. Cooper has taken the matter up with prominent Esperantists and is much encouraged thereby. It has been decided that the Union Pacific will now issue a formal invitation.

"Queen Carmen Sylva will visit Ore-formal invitation.

"Queen Carmen Sylva will visit Oregon," said W. McMurray, general passenger agent of the Harriman lines, last night. "We are going to have her here next September and then will let her see just how beautiful Oregon can be in the Fall.

can be in the Fall.

"Queen Carmen Sylva's works are read all over the world, and it would be ridiculous to think she could visit Oregon without writing of the event. In that case we should receive adver-tising that would outweigh anything our publicity department could do in short order."

A BREAD-LINE GRADUATE Fall River, Mass., Man Plans to Help the Unemployed. New York Times.

A man up in Fall River, Mass., who once stood helplessly night after night in the bread line in lower Broadway. has very nearly scored a triumph in his efforts to help those as nearly "down and out" now as he was once.

He is Robert W. Crawford, superintendent of the Rescue Mission in Fall River, who has been called a "graduate" of the bread line. When he was in that hard school he learned that all who went there were not "bums" who who went there were not "bums" who would not work if work were given them on a silver platter. He learned that there often comes to an honest man, seeking work in a strange city, a time when his last penny is gone, when the last stitch of clothing in keeping with decency has been pawned, when hunger gnaws at the vitals, and the heart sinks with something like despair. He learned also in his hard school of experience that two or three school of experience that two or three days of work, with good food and a small wage—however small—were like the light of heaven to such a man. When Crawford got out of this school by dint of more pluck and per-secerance than some men have, the went to Fall River and opened a little buildof this ing, calling it a mission, and got together enough money to buy horses and a wagon. Then he went out, and he knew where to go, and found some men who, looking for work among the mills there had struck rock bottom just as he had in New York, and put them to work hauling, giving them food and clothing and $1 a week. Almost without knowing it, this bread line "graduate" had made a great step forward in constructive philanthropy. He helped men without pauperizing or humiliating them and left them better off than when he found them. His work has now outgrown his little building, he is trying to get a larger one, and the people of Fall River, from the Mayor down, are behind him. who, looking for work among the mills the Mayor down, are behind him. The United States Army, including the military academy, cost $103,727,000, and the Navy $135,000,000.

Not any Milk Trust The Original and Genuine HORLICK'S MALTED MILK

The Food-drink for All Ages. More healthful than Tea or Coffee. Agrees with the weakest digestion. Delicious, invigorating and nutritious. Rich milk, malted grain, powder form. A quick lunch prepared in a minute. Take no substitute. Ask for HORLICK'S.

Others are imitations,