PRICE FIVE CENTS.

First Offer Refused.

"He asked me to urge him strongly," continued Mr. Piles, "because he said he really needed such a man in that office. Complying with the President's request I sent a telegram strongly urging Mr. Ballinger's acceptance. On the next day I received a message from Mr. Ballinger, ence today: When I declining the appointment. showed the telegram to the President, he said that Mr. Ballinger's refusal was very regrettable, because both he and Mr. Cardeld wanted him for the position. He added that he himself would wire Mr. Bailinger and I understood that both he and Secretary Garfield had sent telegrams pleading with him to accept the appointment although such act might entall a personal sacrifice.

Two or three days later, Mr. Piles said, he received a message from Mr. Ballinger announcing his acceptance because of the urgency of the President.

These are the facts, the absolute facts and they would be verified by Mr. Roose velt under bath," asserted the Senator.

Secretaryship Is Surprise.

In respect to the appointment of Mr. Ballinger as Secretary by Mr. Taft, Mr. Piles said it was through the newspapers that he had received his first i timation that such appointment might be made.

"I subsequently saw Judge Ballinger." he said, "and I asked him if he desired the appointment. He replied he did not explaining that he hoped his friend, Mr. Garfield, would be reappointed. Subsequently I sheard Mr. Ballinger was to be called into the Cabinet, but when I spoke to my coileague, Senator Jones, on the subject. I found he had not been consulted any more than I had been. We came to the conclusion that the selection of a Cabinet officer was a family matter with the President and no concern of ours. I was much gratified that one of whom I thought so highly was to receive high a position and I ain still gratified over his appointment." Mr. Piles concluded with the statement that the President himself would verify all he had said.

Delegation Sees Secretary Meyer About Building Submarine.

WASHINGTON, May 11 .-- A numerous delegation of Pacific Coast Senators and Representatives in Congress called at the Navy Department today and urged Secretary Meyer to build all the four submarine torpedo boats, for which bids were recently submitted, upon the Pacific Coast. Secretary Meyer did not make any promise in the matter and it is probable that the question will be determined by the naval experts.

Ballplayer.

SPOKANE, May 11.-Manager Bill Hun, of Medicine Hat, Alberta, and Bill Carney, of Calgary, have entered a pro-test against Outfielder Brocking, of the Regina Club, in the Twilight League, on the ground that the blood of African chieftains courses through his veins. The two declare a dusky player has no place in organized ball. Brooking is playing a strong game for Regina and his withdrawel would be a serious loss.

RYE HAY SEVEN FEET HIGH

Crop Sown Last October Runs 20

Tons to Acre at Chemawa.

CHEMAWA. Or., May 11.—(Special) Rye hay, measuring seven feet three nches, was cut from a piece of ground oday at the Chemawa Indian Schoel. The seven acres was sown late last betober and will average about 26 tons o the acre. A sample of the hay was taken to later in the debris, and some of these will survive. In most instances identifica-tion of the dead is impossible. Congress has practically declared mar-tial law in the province of Cartago to prevent robbery and disturbances. The American Consul has succeeded in finding all the Americans, some of whom were thought to have been killed. All the injured are now Feelving proper The seven acres was sown late last to the acre.

geometric forms all made from the lesser, and. he declares, the fundamental ones.

For two hours Mr. Thompson held the attention of the "jury of scientists" as he referred to them, and those who afterward were not outspoken in their appreciation of the discovery were interested enough to be in a state of wonderment.

Mr. Thompson says he is ready to prove that there is no form of crystal, snowflake or any geometric conception which he cannot reproduce by a combination of two or more of the four units described.

Development Marvelous.

His development of prims and crystal forms was marvelous. The infinite pains he went to was no less so. In one of the forms were 2880 bits of wood; in each of several there were more than 1000.

There is a fixed relation between tha size of the forms in successive series. In an increasing scale of sizes the lines of the second series are twice as long as in the first, in the third twice as long as in the second and so on. Seven is a magic number in working out geometric forms. There are seven sizes in each octave of music-the eight note being a repetition of the first. His prisms develop the seven primary colors, and, when carried to the final stage of complexity, split each color into seven shades.

These units, he declares, represent atomical forms, and through them the final interpretation of chemical activty may be demonstrated. He con-tructed wonderful spirals which he ald were prototypes of the spiral prins appearing in the vegetable king-on. The only geometric form which he did not construct was the sphere, but Mr. Thompson, along with distinguished mathemeticians, maintains that neither the sphere nor the circle is to be found in any of nature's fundamental manifestations
