Link, Democrat, Tells How He Was Led to Lorimer's Room by Friends.

$1900 IN ALL IS SECURED

Conscience Did Not Forbid That He Vote for Republican, and After "Goods" Delivered, Money Paid in St. Louis.

CHICAGO, May 11.—(Special.)—Some inside history of Representative Link's confession before the grand jury of how he was bribed to vote for William Lorimer for United States Senator came out today. Link confessed that he was paid $1000 by Minority Leader Lee O'Neill Brown in St. Louis for voting for Mr. Lorimer, and that he was given $900 by Representative Robert E. Wilson in the Southern Hotel St. Louis, July 19, 1909, as his share in the "jackpot" or general corruption fund.

Link says that one day in May, 1909, two weeks before Lorimer was elected by the Republican-Democratic combination, two prominent men, one a merchant the other a lumberman, invited him to take a drive. On the trip they discussed everything from the weather to Link's scores and finally Link was asked if he could be induced to vote for a Republican for Senator. He replied he could, under certain circumstances.

Lorimer Is Met in His Room.

Immediately the horses were turned back and a quick drive made to the St. Nicholas Hotel, Springfield, where Mr. Lorimer asked him if he could find it in his heart to vote for a Republican for Senator. Mr. Link assured Mr. Lorimer he could—that there were two men, Speaker Shurtleff and Lorimer, for whom he could vote. Mr. Lorimer thanked him profusely. One week later Link says he was approached by Minority Leader Brown, who asked him the same question about voting for a Republican, whereupon Link displayed great mirth, and said:

"I beat you to it; I fixed that a week ago."

Brown appeared greatly surprised, but was pleased, extended his felicitations and went on his way. On May 26 Lorimer was elected, Link being among the Democrats who voted for him. A few weeks later, in July, 1909, Link says, he met Minority Leader Brown in St. Louis and handed him $1000.

Detectives Hurry South.

There was a lull in the legislative probe today, all forces apparently working out some new lead. There was great activity about the Criminal Court, and several detectives were hurried down state, but their mission was guarded with extreme care.

PIN MONEY DENIED WIFE
Couple Wedded 38 Years Estranged
by Differences About Money.

ALBANY, Or., May 11.—(Special.)—That she had only one dollar to spend in two years, although her husband is worth between $5000 and $7000, was a statement of Mrs. Valeria Richardson, in her testimony today in her suit for divorce against James A. Richardson, a prominent pioneer resident of Solo. Richardson is 61 years old and his wife is 54. They have been married 38 years.

Mrs. Richardson swore that her husband had not provided her with sufficient clothing or for clothing for her and medical attention when she was ill. She said she was once forced to wear men's shoes, not mules.

Evidence was adduced to show that her total millinery bill for one year was $2.75 and that for the same year she had spent only $4.75 for clothing.

Mrs. Richardson avers that $1500 which she inherited was invested in their farm and she is suing for one-third of her husband's land and $750 of personal property. Richardson owns considerable land just south of Solo.

WOOD RIVER TO BE DYKED
Klamath Citizens Expect Wide Area
Will Be Reclaimed.

KLAMATH FALLS, May 11.—(Special.)—Repeated attempts have been made by the citizens of Wood River Valley, in the Fort Klamath country, 25 miles from here, to have the Government take up the matter of making Wood River navigable and dyking it so as to reclaim the adjacent land from the Spring overflow of water. Word has reached this city that the Government will probably take hold of this in the very near future.

Fort Klamath has always been handicapped in its efforts to get transportation facilities from Klamath Falls. At present the Upper Lake steamers cannot get nearer than 10 miles of the town, but if the river can be made navigable, it will give these people freight and passenger transportation. If this stream can be dyked, it also will reclaim many hundred acres of land along the river and make it tillable for any kind of crops. At present it is only fit for wild hay.

MURDERER GETS 7 YEARS
Larney Tom Found Guilty at Dallas.
Liquor Seller Sentenced.

DALLAS, Or., May 11.—(Special.)—Larney Tom, held since March last in the Polk County Jail for the murder of Jeff Washeno, has been found guilty by a jury and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary.

John Washeno, another Grand Ronde Indian held for the slaying of Kib, has been discharged by the grand jury.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against August Gross for violation of the liquor law. The chief offense charged against Gross is the selling of liquor to Grand Ronde Indians. He was found guilty and sentenced to five months imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500.

Japanese Consul Visits Salem.

SALEM, Or., May 11.—(Special.)—The Japanese Consul at Portland, K. Wakasugi, and his secretary, Y. Ninano, called at the State Capitol today to pay their respects to Governor Benson and other state officials. The visitors were shown about the Statehouse by C. N. McArthur, secretary to the Governor.

on the left side, saying that as Hadberg sat on the seat with Klingenberg pushing on an arm as Klingenberg facing him pulled, Hadberg naturally had his left side toward Klingenberg.

Gohl's Movements Traced.

By referring to various witnesses he showed how it had, in the mind of the state, been proven conclusively that Gohl had personally gone down the bay the night of December 21, as alleged, adding, "Gohl was there because he told James Marshall that the launch had broken down. He said to another man on the same day that he was going down to fix the launch and he went straight to the point on the beach where it had been tied up, as Klingenberg testified it had."

He further contended that Gohl did not tell John Hoffman and Klingenberg that he (Gohl) intended to kill Hadberg on that particular night, but that instead he had informed the two men that their mission down the bay that night would be to get a sloop and pull her off the shore if possible, but if not, then to take the sloop off her. This story, said the prosecutor, was repeated to Hadberg the next morning and explains why Hadberg brought down the big anchor to the launch, Hadberg naturally thinking that if a sloop was to be floated it would of course be necessary to have an anchor along.

HEINZE NOT CALLED
Question of Good Faith Turns on Real Value of United Copper
Stock—Morse Partly Responsible for Loans.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The case of F. Augustus Heinz, ex-president of the Mercantile National Bank, accused of misappropriation of the bank's funds and over-issuance of checks of the Otto Heinz & Co., his brother's firm, will go to the jury tomorrow evening.

The taking of testimony came to a close late today and the summation and the court's charge will close the trial tomorrow.

Surprise was occasioned by the defense today when it rested its case without calling Heinz to the stand. Prosecutor Wise in turn rested his case in security, the secret of the bank of Otto Heinz & Co., his brother's firm, will go to the jury tomorrow evening.

The taking of testimony came to a close late today and the summation and the court's charge will close the trial tomorrow.

Secret Resources Told.

The only testimony offered was as to the value of the collateral offered by Heinz to secure this loan. To prove the stability of the United Copper Company, whose stock was pledged in security, the secret of the bank of Otto Heinz & Co., his brother's firm, will go to the jury tomorrow evening.

Emil Klein, cashier of the Mercantile Bank, was questioned with a view to relieving Heinz of a part of the responsibility for the $500,000 loan. It had been testified that Charles W. Morse had promised to take half of this loan.

Morse Partly Responsible.

Klein testified to receiving checks of $125,000 and $100,000 from Morse on October 15, 1907, in part payment of the loan. At the time, he said, there was a deficit against Heinz in the bank of $76,000, making the amount of the loan after these payments only $140,000.

Albert Frank, a former Heinz employee, was cross-examined at length by District Attorney Wise, who tried in every possible way to break down his testimony.

Mr. Wise was prompted by a mining expert and his questions came so fast that the witness grew confused and apparently welcomed a respite when counsel for the defense interrupted with objections. Frank said that he wanted to correct some of the testimony that he gave yesterday, saying that ore he testified to having sold for 20 cents had never sold for more than 14 cents and a fraction. This reduced considerably the estimation had given of the value of certain ore-bearing lands.

Chester Glass, a director of the United Copper Company in 1907, now president of the New York and Pittsburgh Coal

Argument Is Deductive.

"Cannot you picture that scene, when, after Klingenberg had fired only two or three shots, he stood facing Gohl, who also held a revolver in his hand? Can you not understand the feeling within those two men when Gohl said, 'We have no more use for these guns, and standing with hands raised over the water, holding the weapons, they gave the signal and dropped them at the same time?'"

The prosecutor also brought out another line of deduction when he pointed out to the jury that, strange to say, the launch had been tied to the piling after it had broken down by a stern line instead of at the bow. This the attorney declared was for the purpose of swamping the craft, as the "launch then made a splendid washup to obliterate the blood."

"I will give the defendant credit," exclaimed Attorney Campbell, "for being one of the finest schemers in Chehalis County."

Gohl's Stories Punctured.

Campbell also spoke of the several stories, all at variance, which Gohl told in Aberdeen regarding the absence of Hadberg and Hoffman, referring particularly to Gohl's statement to Chief of Police George Dean, of Aberdeen, that "Hadberg and Hoffman had gone out over the bar to Alaska." The State's Attorney derided the fact that any man would thus leave for Alaska, particularly in mid-winter. Thus, point by point, he wound up the case for the state, closing by stating that he expected each man to do his duty and that he asked for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Within three minutes after he had closed the jury had been sent out and the wait commenced. Mrs. Gohl approached her husband, who stood with a Deputy Sheriff and Sheriff Ed Payette, awaiting return to his cell, and as she came up Gohl turned to her with a smile and exclaimed: "Don't worry, no matter what the verdict is. Be cool and calm."

"Oh, I'm not worrying any, and I will be all right. I am prepared for a verdict of guilty, and if the verdict is not guilty I will have a pleasant surprise."

Interest Shown for Jensen.

"Get a lawyer for Lauritz Jensen (the Weasel)," Gohl then continued. "And keep him from— Sheriff Payette took Gohl's arm and pulled him away, confident that Gohl was about to say 'I don't keep him from saying anything about me,' as these instructions had been given by Gohl yesterday to Harry Lundberg, acting agent of the sailors' union, when Lundberg was in the County Jail for assaulting Captain E. Smith, a state's witness. Jensen is in jail at Elma on charge of poisoning a dog of A. W. Jakobsen, this city.

Gohl went to Father Gribben, the Catholic priest here, and the father met the accused man this morning. After the case had been sent to the jury Father Gribben went into Gohl's cell.

"Oh," said Gohl, "I shook hands with you this morning. That's all I want of you. You can't get any confession out of me."

After the jury had retired, Mrs. Gohl stepped outside the Courthouse and kept up a continual pacing back and forth. The entire city tonight is discussing nothing but what the verdict will be.

STAR'S WORK OFF COLOR

JOHNSON MAY BE AFTER RELEASE FROM WASHINGTON.

If Great Twirler Is Not Trying Ruse,
His Arm Has Gone Completely
Back on Him.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(Special.)—There are many fans in Washington willing to testify under oath that Walter Johnson, star pitcher of last season, is trying hard to get his release from the Washington ball team. The work of Johnson this year has been so bad that it is believed by some of the wisest fans of this city that he hopes the management will become disgusted with him and trade him for some other player.

There is another coterie of fans in Washington who believe that the great twirler is all through and that his arm has actually gone back on him. There is good ground for the fans to think that Johnson's arm is going bad. He has been working himself too hard during off seasons and his arm has not had the proper rest. He kept pitching during last winter, and this Spring when the training trip started he was still at it, pitching for some Western team, and refused to report for practice with the Senators until late in the trip.

FRENCH CRUISERS COMING
Portland May See Trio Though Consul Awaits Notice.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 11.—Three cruisers of the French Navy will visit British Columbia and Puget Sound ports in July. They are the armored cruiser Montcalm, of the Far Eastern squadron, under Captain C. V. Cherron; the armored cruiser Gloire, under Captain Joachaux du Fleck; and the protected cruiser Admiral Aube. It is expected a Rear-Admiral will command the fleet.

The French Consul agent at Vancouver has received instructions to prepare for the visit of the fleet and the Consul agent at Seattle has unofficially advised,

C. Henri Labbe, French Consul in Portland, has received no notification to the effect that a squadron of three French cruisers will call at North Pacific ports during the coming Summer. Whether or not he would take any action towards having them call at Portland he could not say last night.

E. C. Giltner, secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, said that inquiry would have to be made as to the draught, size, etc., of the cruisers before issuing an invitation for them to visit Portland. "We are desirous of securing a visit

NOW ON SALE

It is the development of the resources of the territory adjacent to a distributive point that makes a city out of that point and profits on a really investment. If the resources are extensive, the city is bound to be large.

RESOURCES—Klamath Falls, Oregon

Twenty million feet of timber, great stock and dairy country, grain, fruit, a vegetable, water power, railroad center and wonderful resort country. There is also at Klamath Falls a hot spring that will be famous, as the analysis of the water is the same as that at Carlsbad. The Government is now reclaiming 300,000 acres of the richest land known at cost of $4,000,000.

Until recently Klamath Falls has been 60 miles from transportation, with a population of 3000. Today the new main line of the Southern Pacific is running into Klamath Falls. It has been announced that the Oregon Trunk will be built to Klamath Falls. Further prospects of transportation are the Harriman line from up the Deschutes, the Harriman line from across Central Oregon, and the Hill line from across Central Oregon.

You can see from this that Klamath Falls is destined to become a greater railroad center than Spokane is today, and this will come about in the near future.

You who read this advertisement can put it down as a fact that Klamath Falls is going to grow so fast that it will break all records and astonish the people of this entire country.

There is one resource that Klamath Falls is not favored with that is to the credit of Spokane Falls, Wash.—the mining resources; but this resource will be more than offset by the resort and outing resources in favor of Klamath Falls. The beauty of big Klamath Lake and surrounding country, with the exceptionally agreeable climate at all times of the year, the abundance of all kinds of fish and game and the mysteries of Crater Lake are going to attract thousands and thousands of people to Klamath Falls every year.
