Portland to Do Repair Work on Light Vessel.

SEATTLE LOSES CONTRACT

Importance of This Port as Point for Overhauling Emphasized by Victory of Willamette Iron & Steel Works.

Portland's importance as a shipbuilding and repairing port was emphasized yesterday when the lighthouse-tender Manzanita left Astoria for Seattle to bring lightship No. 47 to this place for repairs, notwithstanding that two bids for the work had been submitted by Seattle firms.

The lightship will be repaired and overhauled at the Willamette Iron & Steel Works. The work on the vessel formerly in service of Tillamook Reef, but was relieved about a month ago, as she needed repairs. She was sent directly to Seattle to await orders for her overhauling.

At the local office of the United States engineers it was explained yesterday that the work done in Portland is rapidly improving, and for that reason contracts are being sent here. It will require about two months to complete the repairs on the lightship, which will be returned to her former station on the Oregon coast with the lightship No. 47.

Another lighthouse-tender to be ordered away yesterday was the Columbia, which sailed from Seattle for Alaska to install an acetylene light at Hog Rock Beacon.

Before returning the Columbia will cruise along the southeastern coast of Alaska and will find suitable locations for 11 other acetylene lights, besides the one to be installed at Hog Rock Beacon.

After the Columbia has determined the location of the proposed lights she will return to Seattle and the lights will be installed at later dates. The Columbia is expected to return in three weeks.

RAPIDS MAY HINDER BOATS

High Water on Columbia Threatens to Suspend Traffic.

High water on the Columbia River threatens to make the Cascade Rapids impassable in a short time to river steamers, according to the report given yesterday by the officers of the Dalles City, which is taking the place of the Bayley Gate while the latter is in the drydock undergoing repairs.

Nearly every year the Columbia River rises so high, for a few days, that river traffic is forced to suspend, but at the office of the Regulator Lino yesterday it was said that although the river is gaining in height rapidly it is not believed that the boats will be forced to stop running for some time.

It is understood that while the Columbia River is rising steadily, Snake River is variable. The outlook is that the Columbia will reach a much higher mark by Saturday.

On the last trip of the Dalles City the steamer experienced much difficulty in forcing her way up over the rapids, but she will continue on her run to the Dalles until further notice. The Columbia her run to points this side of the rapids.

ENLARGING OF HARBOR BEGUN

Dredge Columbia Put on Work by Port of Portland.

Work of extending the lower harbor between a half mile and a mile has been begun by the Port of Portland, which has at the dredge Columbia at work. This will enlarge materially the harbor accommodations of the port, which have proved at times too limited to meet demands.

The Columbia will work in the lower harbor until August, when she will be put at work dredging the Columbia River channel. While the Columbia is withdrawn to work in the Columbia River, she also probably will be sent to the Columbia River.

Before the dredges can go to work in the Columbia River channel the season of high water must have passed, and thus it will be necessary to wait until August before the work is begun.

CRANK SHAFT BADLY TWISTED

Steam Schooner Bowdoin Is Forced to Go on Drydock.

In a letter received yesterday by Charles G. Stimpson, the local agent for the California & Oregon Coast Steamship Company, it is said that the steam schooner Bowdoin has been on the drydock in San Francisco as a result of her crank shaft being twisted. It was believed that the vessel would have returned to Astoria and depart from San Francisco yesterday for this port with cement from San Pedro and a large consignment of general freight from San Francisco.

According to the letter the Bowdoin was on her way from San Pedro to San Francisco when she had her crank shaft twisted. The necessary repairs, however, did not delay the vessel long at the Hay City.

OLD DREDGE BECOMES BARGE

W. S. Ladd, With Machinery Removed, Will Carry Rock.

With all her machinery removed and having been repaired for her new work, the old dredge W. S. Ladd, formerly owned by the Government, will be ready for use as a barge before the close of the week.

No Rules and No Limit Will Govern "Clean-Up Day."

Woman's Club Gives Assurance That Citizens of All Ages Will Be Permitted to Join in Making Portland a Spotless Town.

There are no rules against any resident of Portland getting up next Saturday morning to see the comet, and, after watching the tail fade away in the rays of the rising sun, start cleaning up yards and corners. There are positively no restrictions on the hours that may be put in "cleaning-up day," and neither male nor female, old nor young, is barred from taking part in the festival of sanitation and lightness.

So many citizens have been pouring into the headquarters of the Woman's Club, under whose auspices the annihilation of rubbish is to be conducted, so many feared they might work over a prescribed length of time, and so many were apprehensive lest they should not be within the age limit or not belong to the proper sex, that Mrs. M. G. Spence, president of the club, decided to issue the foregoing information. Police protection inasmuch as the man who chooses to salute the sun with a rake or throw a shovel of trash into the waterway day. He may go just as far as he likes, and the Woman's Club promises to stand between him and the minions of the law.

Game Is Free for All.

No regulations govern the game Saturday. It is a free-for-all in which every citizen of Portland may take part. A man may work with his cuts on or take his shirt off, whichever suits his fancy, so long as he accomplishes something. Anything except a curdycorn or hairbrush may be used on the lawn. Women will not be required to wear big hats, and they make take the rats out of their hair if they feel like it, and no body dress comment. She may also tie a gingham apron over her head, but must not, under any circumstances, talk over the back fence with neighbor, too long at one time, unless her husband keeps busy while the conversation lasts.

In short, the work has been so simplified by the Woman's Club that a child can understand it. The motto operandi is a continuous forward and backward movement of the rake, so as to accumulate the largest pile of rubbish in the shortest possible time. This may easily be accomplished with two ordinary hands. If perspiration appears on the forehead, wipe it off in the usual way. Trash and rubbish may be piled up in corners, arranged in windows, to suit the artistic taste, out in the street, and if the street-cleaning department is notified, they will be removed.

Lessons Offered Grats.

It is all just as easy as eating fudge. Members of the Woman's Club wonder how those who do not quite understand the nature of the process and how to clean up, the club has obligingly reserved a corps of instructors, who guarantee to teach the art in one lesson, refund the money, or give a rain check.
