GERMAN ROYALTY HEARS ROOSEVELT

Lecture on World Movement Makes Profound Impression in Berlin.

CHARACTER THING NEEDED

Complexity of Civilization, He Says, Increases With Its Growth, and Dangers Lurk - Assemblage Hearing Him Is Notable.

BERLIN. May 12.-Before the Emseror of Germany and an essemblage of grave and wise men, ex-President Boosevelt today delivered his lecture of "The World Movement," and re-ceived the honorary degree of doctor of philosophy.

Especially significant was the presence of the Kaiser, for it is the first time he has graced a conference with his attendance, and the German court is in mourning for King Edward.

The ceremony of conferring the degree was staged and conducted with impressive simplicity. There were no flags or sive simplicity. There were no flags or emblems of royalty and the government, and the walls of the aula were bare save for the rows of busts of German's famens scholars and scientists.

The only touch of color was furnished by the Senators of the University with their robes of scariet and blue and the rive heads of the student corps, who wore blue lickets, while breeches, jack boots and parti-colored sashes.

Royalty Hears Lecture.

Four hundred guests who held cards f admission were sented when Em-eror William, accompanied by Mr. topsevelt, entered from a side door. As hey appeared the University choir they appeared the University choir chanted "Heit dir im Siegerkranz," (Hail to Thee in the Conqueror's Wreath). The two were followed by Empress Augusta Victoria, Princess Victoria Louise, Prince and Princess Eitel Frederick, Prince and Princess August Wilhelm, Prince Adelbert, Mrs. Boosevelt, Miss Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt. This party took seats which had been reserved for them on the platform.

the platform.
Surrounding them were seated Ambassador Hill and Mrs. Hill, the other Ambassadors and their wives; Henry White, formerly American Ambassador to France, and Mrs. White. Seth Low and Mrs. Low, T. St. John Gafaney, American Consul-General at Dresden; Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg; Foreign Minister Ven Schoen and the members of the Cabinet. On either side of this block of chairs were the seniors of the University. the seniors of the University.

Guard of Honor Stands.

Mr. Roosevelt occupied the sent at the reading desk and at his side stood the heads of the student corps with drawn swords. This striking guard of honor remained standing and almost immovable for the three hours of the ecture and ceremony.

other and ceremony.

The auditorium was filled to its caacity of 1200 persons by the faculty f the University, students and guests.

Rector Friedrich Schmidt opened the programme by giving an outline of the life of Mr. Roosevelt from the time when he was a delicate child until the time he became an African nimrod. When he had finished this sketch he introduced the former President, who was received most sympathetically.

Mr. Roosevelt appeared rugged and in the pink of physical condition. His voice, husky at first, gained steadily in clearness as he proceeded and he was able to deliver his complete written thesis of 2006 words, to which he added extenuoranceanly from time to time atemporaneously from time to time by way of emphasis and explanation. "Today I am in Berlin University." began the speaker. "Yesterday I was in the open air university of the German army and gut at the feet of the great master of that University."

Mr. Boosevelt said the German Emperor had often been held up before him as a statesman who was doing things which he, the speaker, should do he, the speaker, should do.

"I remember," he added, "that my friend. Dr. Pritchard, then president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston, told ms of the Emperor's interest in and knowledge of technical education. While in Africa I used to think there was something wrong with the mail if it did not bring a letter from Benjamin Ide Wheeler telling me of his admiration for some feature of comments. for some feature of German life and of the Emperor's extraordinary qualities and

New Forces Are at Work.

"The play of new forces is as evident in the moral and spfritual world as in the world of the mind and the body. Forces for good and forces for evil are everywhere evident, each acting with a hundred or a thousand-fold the intensity with which it acted in former agos.

In this movement there are signs of much that bodes III. The machinery is so highly geared, the tension and strain are so great, the effort and the strain are so great, the effort and the output have allke so increased, that there is cause to dread the ruin that would some from any great accident, from any breakdown, and also the ruin that may come from the mere wearing out of the machine itself. The only previous civilization, with which our modern civilization, with which our modern civilization can be in any way compared, is that period of Graeco-Roman civilization extending, say, from the Athens of Themistocies to the Rome of Marcus Aurelius. Many of the forces and tendencies which were then at work are at work how. Knowledge, luxury and refinement, wide material conquests, territorial administration on a vast scale, an increase in the mastery conquests, territorial administration on a vast scale at increase in the mastery of mechanical appliances and in applied science—all these mark our civilization as they marked the wonderful civilization that flourished in the Medicerranean lands 26 centuries ago; and they preceded the downfall of the older civilization. Yet the differences are many, and some of them are quite as striking as the similarities. The single fact that the old civilization was based upon slavery shows the chasm that separates the two. Let me point out one further and very significant difference in the development of the two civilizations, a difference so obvious that it is astonishing that it has not been dwelt upon by men of letters.

Comfort Endangers Civilization.

Comfort Emdangers Civilization.

"One of the prime dangers of civilization has always been its tendency to cause the loss of the virile fighting virtues of the fighting edge. When men get too comfortable and lead teo invarious lives there is always danger lest the softness eat like an acid into their manifiness of fiber. The barbarian, because of the very conditions of his life, is forced to keep and develop certain hardy qualities which the man of civilization tends to loss, whether he be clerk, factory hand, merchant, or even a certain type of farmer. Now, I will not assert that in modern civilized society these tendencies have been wholly overcome; but there has been a much more successful effort to overcome them than was the case in the early civilizations.

"What is the lesson to us today? Are we to go the way of the older civilizations? The immense increase in the area of civilized activity today, so that it is nearly coterminous with the world's surface; the immense increase in the multitudinous variety of its activities; the immense increase in the velocity of the world movement—are all these to mean merely that the crash will be all the immense increase in the velocity of the world movement—are all these to mean merely that the crash will be all the more complete and terrible when it comes? We cannot be certain that the answer will be in the negative; but of this we can be certain, that we shell not go down in ruin unless we deserve and earn our end. There is no necessity for us to fall; we can hew out our destiny for ourselves, if only we have the wit and the courage and the honesty.

"Personally, I do not believe that our civilization will fall. I think that on the whole we have grown better and not worse. I think that on the future holds more for us than even the great past has held. But, assuredly, the dreams of golden glory in the future will not come true unless, high of heart and strong of hand, by our own mighty deeds we make them come true. We cannot afford to develop any one set of qualideeds we make them come true. We can-not afford to develop any one set of quali-ties, any one set of activities, at the cost of seeing others, equally necessary, atrophied. Neither the military efficiency of the Mongol, the extraordinary business ability of the Phoenician, nor the subtle and polished intellect of the Greek availed to avert destruction.

Homely Virtues Are Needed.

ture, need many qualities if we are to do our work well. We need, first of all and most important of all, the qualities which stand at the base of individual, of family life, the fundamental and essential family life, the fundamental and essential qualities—the homely, every-day, all-important virtues. Moreover, the things of the spirit are even more important than the things of the body. We can well do without the bard intolerance and arid intellectual barrenness of what was worst in the theological systems of the past, but there has never been greater need of a high and fine religious spirit than at the present time. "So, while we can laugh good-humoredly at some of the pretendens of modern philosophy in its various branches, it would be worse than folly be nour part to ignore our need of intellectual leadership. Your own great Frederick once said to ignore our need of intellectual leadership. Your own great Frederick once said that if he wished to punish a province he would loave it to be governed by philosophers; the smeer had in it an element of justice; and yet no one better than the great Frederick knew the value of philosophers, the value of men of science, men of letters, men of art. It would be a bad thing indeed to accept Tolstol as a guide in social and moral matters; but it would also be a bad thing not to have Tolstol, not to profit by the lofty side of his teachings. Never has philanthropy, humanitarianism, seen such development as now; and though we must all beware of the folly, and the victousness no worse than folly, which marks the believer in the perfectibility of man when his heart runs away with his head, or when vanity usurps the place of conwhen his heart runs away with his head, or when vanity usurps the place of conscience, yet we must remember also that it is only by working along the lines laid down by the philanthropists, by the lovers of mankind, that we can be sure of lifting our civilization to a higher and more permanent plane of well-being than was ever attained by any preceding civilization. Unjust war is to be abhorred; but we to the vation that does not make but woe to the nation that does not make ready to hold its own in time of need sgminst all who would harm it; and wor thrice over to the nation in which the average man loses the fighting edge, oses the power to serve as a soldier if the day of need should arise.

Character Vital Possession.

"It is no impossible dream to build up a civilization in which morality, ethical development, and a true feel-ing of brotherhood shall all alike be ing of brotherhood shall all alike be divorced from false sentimentality and from the rancorous and evil passions which, curiously enough, so often accompany professions of sentimental attachment to the rights of man; in which a high material development in the things of the body shall be achieved without subordination of the things of the soul; in which there shall be a genuine desire for peace and justice without loss of those virile qualities without loss of those virile qualities without which no love of peace or justice shall avail any race; in which the fullest development of scientific research, the great distinguishing feature of our present civilguishing feature of our present civilination, shall yet not imply a belief that intellect can ever take the place of character—for, from the standpoint of the nation as of the individual, it is character that is the one vital pos-"Finally, this world movement of rivilization, this movement of civilization, this movement which is now felt throbbing in every corner of the globe, should bind the nations of the world together while yet leaving unimpaired that love of country in the world together while yet leaving unimpaired that love of country in the individual citizen which in the present stage of the world's progress is essential to the world's well-being. You, my hearers, and I who speak to you, belong to differer antions. Under modern conditions the books we read, the news sent by telegraph to our newspapers, the strangers we meet, half of the things we hear and do each day, all tend to bring us into touch with other peoples. Each people can do justice to itself only if it does justice to others; but each people can do its part in the world movement for all only if it first does its duty within its own household. The good citizen must be a good citizen of his own country first before he can with advantage he a citizen of the world at large."

James Porter, Showman, Charged With Murder.

DENIES STRIKING VICTIM

John Countryman Falls to Regain Consciousness After Being Taken to Hospital - Asailant to Be Arraigned Today.

John Countryman, who received a beating Tuesday night at the hands of James Porter, proprietor of a freak animal show at 94 Sixth street, North, died at St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday at 4 o'clock. Porter is in jail and will be arraigned before Judge Bennett this morning on a charge of murder in the Countryman did not regain con-sciousness after being removed to the hospital. At 11 o'clock yesterday Drs. legler and Tucker found it necessary to perform an operation, as the patient was suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain. He railied somewhat from the operation, but in the afternoon grew decidedly worse and every effort to revive him proved futile. H was unable to make any statement after being removed to the hospital.

Porter Held Without Bonds. Dr. legler notified the authorities survive, and Porter, who had been released on $250 bail, was rearrested or s bench warrant and held without At the time of his death the left side At the time of his death the left side of Countryman's head was swollen to twice its normal size, his left eye being blackened and completely closed, while his lips were swollen and bruised. The attending physicians say that the injury could not possibly have been made by blows from the fist, and, from the nature of the injury, they believe the victim was struck with some heavy, smooth substance.

Porter on the night of the fight said that he struck Countryman with his fist and admitted kicking at him while he was on he ground, but now denies that he even struck his victim, and says Country-man must have been injured by striking his head on the pavement.

That Countryman was drunk at the time of the affair is absolutely denied by Dr. S. J. Carney, by whom he has been approximately 100 business men and citi-employed the past four years. The dead zens of this city will attend a booster man, he says, was sober and industrious and was never known to be quarreisome. Countryman was 4 years old and a native of Michigan. A brother, who resides at Mulino, Or., arrived last night and took charge of the body. The only other known living relative is a sister, who resides near Salem, Or.

The dead man was a member of the Olympic lodge of the Woodmen of the World.

Porter has a daughter living at Oak-land, Cal., who is the wife of John Smith, a prominent attorney of that place. He has engaged Attorney John F. Logan act as special prosecutor with Smith.

TIME TO TRY POSLAM

New Healing Agent Promptly Disposes of Every Skin Affection.

of Every Skin Affection.

The time to try posiam for eczema or any skin trouble is before experimenting with anything else. Then, too, it is the least expensive way, because posiam will do the work, making treatment by other means unnecessary. But no matter how many different things have failed, posiam should yet be used, for its healing properties are assured even in the most aggravated cases. All doubt as to its action is removed in the promptness with which it begins its work, stopping the itching with very first application. Eczema, acne, tetter, sait rheum, psoriasis, barber's and every form of itch yield to it readily and are permanently eradicated.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, inflamed skin, etc., results show over night, only a small quantity being required. For minor troubles a special 50-cent puckage is prepared, and this, as well as the regular $2 jar, may be obtained at the Skidmore Drug Co., and Woodard, Clarke & Co., also other good drug stores.

Samples for trial purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, No. 22 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.
