

EDWARD VII RESTS AMONG ANCESTORS

Pomp Greater Than Is Ever Seen Before Marks His Funeral Ceremony.

THROUGHS SILENTLY MOURN

London Crowded With Vast Assemblage Watching Cortege Move Through Streets—Nine Rulers of Nations Attend Services.

LONDON, May 20.—Sovereigns and representatives of the powers of all the world paid their last tribute today to England's great monarch, Edward VII, whose body now rests in St. George's chapel, at Windsor Castle, where the bones of Edward IV, the sixth and eighth Henrys, Charles the third and fourth Georges and William IV are entombed.

Bright sunshine followed a night of thunder storms that swept the city, and soaked the funeral decorations that hung along the line of march. They had no deterrent effect on the thousands who from midnight until dawn sought points of vantage from which to watch the passing cortege, however.

Crowds Greatest Ever Known.

London's millions filled the streets and open places as they have never before been filled at either funeral or festival.

The pageantry that marked the burial of Victoria was as naught compared with the magnificence of today's ceremony, which was splendid in its accompaniments of gilded coaches, brilliant uniforms and decorations, far surpassing the ceremony attending the removal of the King's body from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall.

Nine Sovereigns in Line.

The procession today included nine sovereigns: an ex-President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, who alone was not in uniform; the heirs to several thrones; the members of the royal families; the officers of the household; the officials of the government; field marshals, generals and admirals; detachments of troops, of all the British arms, representatives of foreign armies and navies; and a regimented uniform—a solid phalanx of glittering colors.

The lines of red-coated soldiers were drawn up as on that other great occasion of England's mourning, nine years ago, with arms reversed and regimental flags dipped to the ground.

Throgs Mourn Silently.

The vast throngs along the streets were massed so tightly that they found it impossible to move. The great stands, covered with mourning emblems, were crowded, the roof tops black with the multitude, from whom not a whisper arose, as the gun carriage that bore the King's body moved to the strains of funeral marches, the tolling of bells and the booming of great guns.

From Westminster House the widowed Queen, going to spend a last few minutes beside the body of the King, was assisted from her carriage by the Duke of Edinburgh, upon whom the loss of his royal uncle has rested heavily.

Dog and Horse Move Queen.

The Emperor kissed the hand and cheek of Alexandra and passed her to her son, King George. Here the Queen Mother, glancing up, caught sight of the King's charger, waiting to follow his master to the bier, and near at hand the King's favorite dog, led by a girl, and she faltered, gripping the arm of the King and pathetically gazing upon the animals Edward had loved so well.

Then she entered the hall with King George, Emperor William and the Duke of Connaught, there to offer a silent prayer and to watch the removal of the coffin to the gun carriage.

The order of precedence of sovereigns in the procession was governed by kinship. The special envoys of the United States and France occupied the eighth carriage, and although ex-President Roosevelt was inconspicuous in the procession, King George gave him marked attention at the lunch at Windsor castle after the funeral, seating him with eight other guests at his own table. The German Emperor sat with the Queen Mother and Queen Mary.

Solemn Dignity Impresses.

What seemed to impress Mr. Roosevelt most was the demeanor of the monarch in the solemn dignity of the ceremony. From Paddington station the royal train carried the coffin and the Duke of Windsor, while special trains were filled with officials and foreign representatives.

Bluejackets Dragged the Gun Carriage through a line of purple to St. George's chapel and there simple services were conducted by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, assisted by other prelates. King George, with Alexandra, on his arm, walked up the nave behind the coffin, with the German Emperor and Queen Mary following.

During the service the widowed Queen moved to the foot of the catafalque and knelt and just before the coffin was lowered to the crypt, King George placed on the coffin a royal standard.

Several of the royal mourners, including Archbishops Francis Ferdinand, Augustus and Prince Charles of Sweden, left London tonight, but all the reigning monarchs remain, and the King and Queen had another notable dinner at Buckingham Palace this evening. The departure of the sovereigns will begin tomorrow, but the German Emperor is expected to stay until Monday night.

WINDSOR DRAPED IN PURPLE

Green of English Spring Is Covered With Symbols of Mourning.

WINDSOR, May 20.—When the castle gates at Windsor opened today to receive the casket of the seventh Edward, the green of an English Spring was on the trees and the grass within the massive walls. The gray towers and battlements, over which the Union Jack was flying at half mast, never appeared more impressive.

In the streets below was a seething mass of people in black, kept open by two solid lines of soldiers for the cortege to pass through. When the royal train arrived at the station, the body of the monarch was again placed on a gun carriage and the procession was reformed with the addition of the Ambassadors, Ministers and other representatives of foreign states. Thus it passed through the purple-draped streets to the castle and into St. George's chapel.

There was a moment of profound silence when positions had been taken, and then the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Winchester advanced to the casket.

The choir chanted "Man That Is Born of Woman," and the congregation recited the Lord's Prayer, the low rumble of many voices being accompanied by Gounod's music. The service of the Church of England was followed throughout. Following the Lord's Prayer, the anthem "How Great Are They" was sung, after which the Garter-King-at-Arms advanced to the altar and spoke. The Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the solemn benediction, after which, with the Bishop of Winchester, he knelt before the altar in a moment of silent prayer. As the clergy rose to their feet the hush was broken and the procession withdrew from the chapel in the order of its entrance. The body of Edward VII remained before the altar, later to find a permanent resting place in the royal tomb house in Albert Memorial chapel.

BANK CLEARINGS GROW

PORTLAND LEADS ALL CITIES BUT TWO IN INCREASE.

Growth and Prosperity Are Shown in Gains Over Last Year and by Comparisons.

Portland's gains in bank clearings are clearly shown by Bradstreet's comparative figures of all leading American cities and by comparisons with clearings for the same time a year ago, which indicate a gain of 23.3 per cent for this city, a record equaled by but two other towns. As an indication of Portland's growth and prosperity, the comparisons are most significant.

The two cities which showed a greater gain than Portland's jump of 23.3 per cent over the week ending May 15, 1909, are Oakland, Cal., which shows an increase over last year of 70.4 per cent, and Sacramento, Cal., which boasts a gain of 78.1. To the movement of a gigantic orange crop is ascribed the tremendous bulge in the California cities.

Seattle Left Behind.

That Portland should thus rank third in the country is a factor that cannot be neglected by those pointing to the city's growth. Just how solid this growth is in comparison with other cities is shown by a comparison of the figures of Portland and Seattle. While Portland's week total is slightly below those of Seattle, the increase in the case of Portland is 23.3 per cent, while the city on Elliot Bay has to be content with an increase of 11.1 per cent.

In the city published by Bradstreet's but seven cities show signs of a decreased clearing and this small number is one of the surest signs of returning prosperity. A year ago a number of cities had to mourn decreases, which in part accounts for the unusual size of a number of the increases this year.

New York Responsible.

In the whole country, the decrease from the corresponding week of last year is $17,883,000. This would not appear an indication of returning prosperity were it not that New York alone is almost responsible for the whole amount, recording a decrease of 11 per cent. This decrease is said to have been due to the attacks on Wall street and the reduced amount of money available in "the street" for speculation.

NEW SPANS NEARLY READY

Raymond Will Celebrate Opening of Two Bridges.

RAYMOND, Wash., May 20.—(Special.)—The new steel bridge across the Willapa River, connecting Raymond and Riverdale Addition, is now open for foot passengers. The northern approach to the bridge will soon be completed, thus opening it to vehicles.

The bridge across the south fork of the Willapa is nearly completed and there is every indication that both these viaducts will be ready to swing on May 22, when a monster celebration will be held and in which the Raymond Commercial Club invites all people in the surrounding country.

The first meeting of the Southwestern Development Association will be held at that time. The Good Roads Association will also meet then. Special trains will be run from the Gray's Harbor country. Baseball games, a banquet and an excursion down the bay are among the things planned for the occasion.

STRIKE OF 75,000 ORDERED

State of Illinois Suffers—Miners' Joint Convention Breaks Up.

PEORIA, Ill., May 20.—The joint convention between the United Mine-workers and Illinois operators adjourned sine die today.

A strike was declared by the miners. This strike affects the entire State of Illinois and will involve between 72,000 and 75,000 men, and it is said that in the miners' strike fund there is now about $750,000, or $10 per man. The fund already has been suspended for 50 days without this fund being drawn on, but it appears insufficient for a prolonged strike.

During the winter of the year 1909 French epicures consumed over 800 tons of snails in Paris alone. The consumption has diminished since then, but it still touches the estimated figure of 80,000,000 snails per annum for Paris.

DEAD KING HONORED

New Yorkers Join Britons in Memorial Services.

TRINITY CHURCH THROGGED

Pew in Famous Old House of Worship, Once Occupied by Late Ruler When He Was Prince of Wales, Draped in Mourning.

NEW YORK, May 20.—"We commend to thy mercy thy servant, King Edward, whom thou hast called from his labors in this world to stand before the judgment seat."

There were those in old Trinity Church this afternoon, to hear these words, who had sat in the same church when the late King, then the Prince of Wales, and on a visit to America, had occupied the first pew on the left at the head of the center aisle. Heavily draped in black and purple, the same pew was the only vacant one in the church today.

Admission to the memorial services was by card only, but the sympathetic general public blackened the streets outside and the overflow was accommodated at St. Paul's Chapel, nearby.

In Trinity Church proper the consular representatives of all foreign nations delegations from all British ships in the harbor, officers and chaplains of St. George's, St. Andrew's and St. David's Societies, of the Canadian Society and the British schools and university clubs sprinkled the audience of distinguished Americans.

Many firms with British affiliations closed for the week last night, and all the exchanges, with the exception of the cotton exchange, suspended for the forenoon.

No baseball games were played today throughout the Eastern League.

SERVICES HELD AT TRINITY

Americans and Britons Do Honor to Departed King.

Most impressive were the memorial services in honor of the late King Edward VII yesterday morning in Trinity Church.

Foreign governments, represented by officials of the Consular Service, joined with representatives of the Nation, state and municipality to participate in the last honors paid to the departed sovereign.

Every nation having an official representative in Portland participated in the solemn ceremonies. The Federal Government was there in the persons of Brigadier-General M. P. Maus, Colonel G. S. Bingham, Major H. C. Cabell, Captain J. J. Bradley, Colonel McCunneghe, Captain H. S. Knight and other staff officers.

The City of Portland was represented by Mayor Simon and members of the City Council, and American citizens and British subjects joined in paying tribute to the memory of the dead sovereign.

Arrangements for the memorial were made by the British Consul, James Laidlaw, and Dr. A. A. Morrison, rector of Trinity, conducted the services. High above the altar and flanking the royal standard, the American and British flags were appropriately draped; a simple but effective badge of mourning.

Before an assemblage which filled the great auditorium the Right Rev. Charles Scadding, D. D., bishop of Oregon, delivered the memorial address.

Taking for his text the following from Second Samuel: "Know ye not that there is a prince and great man fallen this day?" he delivered a powerful address on the life, character and influence, past and future, of the dead King, which made a profound impression upon the people who heard him.

The musical numbers, processional, burial hymns and recessional were given by the vested choir.

FOOTS ACCUSES PROSECUTOR

Attorney Will File Affidavit in Circuit Court Today.

An affidavit charging that T. W. McGovern boasted that he "had things fixed with the District Attorney's office," and that, when an attempt was made to secure an information against McGovern, the District Attorney refused to give it, will be filed by Attorney Sweeney in Circuit Court today as a preliminary step toward undertaking a private prosecution, if the public prosecutor refuses to act in the matter.

H. G. Kemp charges T. W. McGovern with having sold his and P. A. McPherson shares of stock in the Lincoln Trust Company which were secured by McGovern by turning in to the company office furniture which he did not own. The furniture, they aver, was removed by the merchants from whom it had been secured, it appearing that McGovern had paid but $40 on it.

They say that when they tried to effect a settlement and threatened prosecution, McGovern told them that he had it fixed with the District Attorney, and they say that, though they made numerous applications to the District Attorney, they were unable to secure action.

Possibly a Difference.

PORTLAND, Or., May 19.—(To the Editor.)—Donation of a miscellaneous account of the State Grand meeting in Oregon City May 11 as having advocated special taxation on timber land to provide a fund for fire prevention by the state, for forest wealth is community wealth, and its loss is borne chiefly by the people at large, but not through taxing standing timber. My only recommendation concerning "taxation" that owners of cut and burned-over lands, capable of producing no early revenue, should be induced to protect and restore them by imposing little tax until a second crop affords means of paying it.
