Van Buren Lands Homer.

In the meantime Steen had ambled along easily, for he shut the Senators out without a hit for six innings, but in the seventh "Deacon" Van Buren connected for a wallop high against the right garden wall for a home run, as the ball settled between the fences. Two more hits followed this, but no more runs were collected. In the eighth the Senators went after Bill something fierce, for two singles and Briggs' double netted two runs, tying the score, which had read 2 to 1 in Portland's favor up to that time.

BILL STEEN OUTPITCHES BAUM Each Throws Same Number of Balls

in Sunday Game. A remarkable feature of the pitching of Steen and Baum in yesterday's game is the fact that each threw the same number of balls in the nine innings played. J. H. Anthony, a veteran fan, kept tally on each thrown ball by each pitcher, and when he totalled his count at the end of the game he found that each twirler had thrown to the batter exactly 136 times in the game.

The tables show that Baum threw more called "balls" than did Steen, while Steen allowed more "foul strikes." Baum also beat Steen in the number of strikes called or struck at and missed during the game though it was by a second or struck at any missed during the game, though it was by a narrow margin.

The table of thrown balls by the two pitchers is as follows:

McCredie and Hogan of Vernon Determined to Land Former Beaver Pitcher.

PORTLAND IS REAL OWNER

With President of Coast League Ruling in Favor of North and Hogan Refusing to Abide by Decision Case Goes to Commission.

Pitcher Al Carson, formerly of the Beavers, later of the Chicago Nationals, and now ostensibly of Vernon, is become the storm center of a hot contest. President Graham, of the Pacific Coast League, has ruled that Carson must play with Portland. Notwithstanding this ruling, Manager Hogan, of Vernon, declares he will keep Carson. McCredie Sees "Frame-Up."

"In my opinion the sending of Carson to Vernon was a framed-up proposition when Carson was drafted," said Walter McCredie yesterday, "I think Frank Chance simply stuck in the draft to get Chance simply stuck in the draft to get Carson for Hogan, for the Vernon and Chicago managers are great friends. It will not do them any good, however, for we have clear title to the player, and he will eventually have to come here any-how. The National Commission will see how. The National Commission will see to that."

"The Vernon club will retain the services of Pitcher Carson if it costs us $1,000." declared "Happy" Hogan at Los Angeles yesterday. "We are entitled to him, and refuse to be jobbed by any Coast League manager or official or combination of them. Portland had an opportunity to get Carson back but falled to grasp the opportunity. Now, when it is too late, with the evident intention of trying to embarrass Vernon, McCredie has put in a claim for the player."

"Hogan cannot possibly gain anything by such talk as that," said McCredie, when shown Hogan's interview. "Not only does the rule governing the dratting of players provide for the return of any drafted player to the club from whence

Hogan Playing "Waiting Game."

"Hogan is cutting up nasty in this matter, for Judge Graham, in accordance with the league ruling, has ordered Carson to my club, and the only thing Hogan will accomplish will be to deprive me of Carson's services until the National Commission eventually awards him to Portland, for it cannot do otherwise. Carson was drafted from my club, and I am, and always have been, ready to return the $1000 draft price received for this In a telegram sent to Hogan, Walter McCredie made formal claim to Carson, "Carson belongs to Portland and we

"Carson belongs to Portland and we want him. Judge Graham, president of the league, has ruled that Carson is the property of the Portland club."

"Can't see it that way," Hogan is reported as having commented on McCredie's message. "Carson was a drafted player, and rule No. 42 of the National Commission provides that should a major league club decide to dispose of a drafted player, the club from which he was drafted must be given five days' notice regarding the contemplated action, and that if
