Vanishing Tonnage and Loss of Wages Form Impressive Economic Lesson-Conditions Demand Keen Vigilance.

Realizing that with the burning of every thousand feet of Oregon standing timber there is a loss of labor amounting to $8, that stumpage values decrease $2, and the railroads see the vanishing of tonnage which cannot be replaced for many years, the necessity of adopting safety measures the necessity of adopting safety measures for the prevention of a repetition of the fires of 1902 has led to the organization of several co-operative associations.

Opegon and Washington in*1902 helplessly watched the gigantic conflagrations which wiped out a large amount of the visible assets of the states, and also resulted in the destruction of two towns, Springwater, Or., and Brush Prairie, Wash, more than 20 lives being lost.

That fire occurred in a dry season in the mountains, and was only one of the many which raged along the Cascades and adjacent ranges. It is said by timber cruissers and millmen from the upper waters of the rivers of the two states that the year 1910 is thus far duplicate of the conditions which made reachly the leave of is which made possible the losses of Many of the large railroads on the Coast have begun clearing their rights of way of all inflammable material for a distance of 160 feet on either side of the center of the track, equipping their engines with spark - arresters, and instructing train crews and employes in fire-flighting. Sparks from railroad engines have proved the greatest cause of fires, and are followed by donkey-engines, hunters' and campers' fires, mill smokestacks and lightning. One of the destructive fires of the Coos Bay region was caused by a settler knocking the ashes from his pipe among the dry leaves and twigs of a log on which he was resting.

An effort will be made to keep in touch with slash biarnings made by settlers and to warn all persons entering the forests Many of the large railroads on the Coast to warn all persons entering the forests of this state of the necessity of exercising care in handling fire. The forest lands are now plastered with warning signs.

Immense Values Involved.

In this manner it is hoped to save the tremendous values which are becoming available with the development of railroads. Timber sections which at one time sold in Oregon for $500 have recently changed hands for as much as $180,000. On that basis the prevention of forest fires becomes a matter of stern business. "Oregon is now occoming thickly populated, which condition will increase rapidly after this year," said District Forester C. S. Chapman, "and it is possible for a repetition of the fire of Miramichi, Wis., to occur here.

is., to occur here. That fire covered an area of 2000 square miles, 1500 lives were lost and property to the value of many millions of dollars was destroyed. The Hinkley fire of 1894 burned that place and six other towns, with a loss of life amounting to 500, and but for the aid of the locomotive engineers and other trainmen, it would have been much greater

"The identity of interests has brought the railroads, the timber-owners, the states and the many people who are dependent upon the lumber industry for em ployment into close union. Oregon has a Forestry Board, but as yet no authority has been conferred upon it to employ patrolmen. The Government has built several hundred miles of roads and trails. erai numered mises of roads and traits, and is maintaining as large a force of guards as it can afford. The public never hears of the losses which are prevented, just as it seldom hears of the railroad wreck which is averted. Fires retard development for years to come, the community loses the wages which would have been road out for produce in the resident been paid out for produce in the region affected, the state loses taxes, and sooner or later the result reaches every citizen."

When arrested by Constable Catlin and officer Daughty, near Holley, yesterday, Robinson drew a revolver and leveled it at Daughty while Catlin was searching him, but Daughty knocked it out of his hand before he could fire. This action will result in charges of carrying concealed weapons and resisting an officer. Besides the revolver, the officers relieved him of two knives. Robinson is accused of brutal mistreatment of his wife and his father, who is $5 years old. They allege that he ruled the house with a high hand, beating them frequently and drawing a gun and threatening to kill them if they did not instantly do his bidding. He boasted that officers would never arrest him and he evidently intended to make his boast good but the officers surprised him and he had no chance to draw the revolver until they started to search him.

(Concluded on Page 3.) rules committee, and whether or not the Reed rules shall be continued in force. Naturally any Democrat elected Speaker will be anxlous to enjoy all the power entrusted to ex-Speakers; will not be content with less and will want not only to name committees, to be in a position to actually lead his party and have a big say in shaping its legislative programme.

"Dems". May Be Embarrassed. When it comes to adopting rules for the guidance of the House, the Demo-crats, if in power, will be embarassed. They have no definite Idea as to the present rules should be modified; they have never presented any com prehensive set of rules as a substitute for those now in force. Previous Democratic Houses, after denouncing Reed and the Reed rules, adopted them as their own, and the presumption be that the next House would do the same

If it should, it would lay itself open to censure and to ridicule, for the Democrats have maintained the present rules are abominable and should be abolished, and to readopt them after such criticism would be to confess the clamor had been senseless and without justification, or to confess to inability to improve upon them. In either event, the Demecratic party would be injured rather than helped, and the same would be true if a Democratic Speaker should be vested with all the powers enjoyed by Speaker Cannon, either now or be fore he was removed from the rules committee.

But granting the Democrats organize the House, adopt new rules, elect their Speaker and define his powers in accord with the doctrine laid down by Demo-cratic orators in the present House; the next step would be legislation. As stated, no partisan Democratic legislation could be written on the statute books, because of the Republican Senate and President. Yet it would not do to remain dormant

Naturally the first thing to demand consideration would be the tariff, for much stress has been laid on the socalled iniquities of the Payne-Aldrich law, and the tariff is to be a big issue if not the leading issue in the campaign

Could a Democratic House agree upon a tariff bill that would be free from the criticisms heaped upon the Payne-Aldrich law? It is doubtful. Indeed, it is doubtful if a Democratic ways and means committee could draft a tariff bill that would meet the criticisms the Democrats themselves have made on the exist-ing law. The debate and the votes in the special session showed plainly that the democracy is no more solid on the tariff than is the Republican party, and a very considerable number of the Demo-crats are today rank protectionists. vote for a tariff on the products of their states, just as they did last session, and they would do so as readily in a Demo cratic House as in one dominated by the

Nothing to Be Gained.

If they frame and put through the House a tariff bill that proves to be a protection measure they gain nothing in the way of permanent party advantage.

NAMPA, Idaho, June 5.—(Special.)—Walter Richardson, 24 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. 8. D. Richardson, a mile east of this city, yesterday afternoon. No reason is known for the young man's rash Yet no other kind of a tariff bill could be reported by a Democratic ways and means committee, for the bulk of its membership would be made of protectionists, bound to retain the duty on cotton, on sugar, on lumber, on coal and on the other leading products of Southern Democratic states. And such a bill would hardly prove much improvement over the Payne-Aldrich law. Its passage through the House would only emphasize the hollowness of the Democratic denunciation of the new tariff law passed by a Republican Congress and signed by a Republican President, and would ultimately injure rather than aid the Democratic

What 'else could a Democratic House do that would strengthen the party in the ensuing campaign? Nothing, unless it should conduct a series of investigations into the conduct of the Government by the Republicans, in the hope of unearthing scandals, mismanagement, etc., tending to discredit the Administration in power and some of its Republican predecessors. That seems to be the only opportunity offered the Democrats, if they control the next House.

Great Confusion Prevails.

All in all, the Democratic leaders are very much in doubt if this single opportunity to make political capital is ample to offset the many things that would be bound to occur to handlesp the cause of Democracy in the event of the election of a Democratic House. And the more they pender, the greater their confu-

There are today Democrats of foresight who are hoping the next House will not be Democratic. For while the opportunities for Democratic success are particularly encouraging, the consequences are bound to be such as to make a victory undestrable from many points of view.

On the other hand, there are shrewd
Republicans who, foreseeing the embarrassment that will certainly confront a Democratic House, would welcome a Democratic House, would welcome a Democratic victory in November, not alone because it would "smoke out" the Democratic legislation upon the country, but because they believe a Democratic victory this year would tend to curb the insurgent movement, and in the end eliminate from Congress some of the most violent disturbers elected as Republicans, but acting since their election as full-fleedged Democrats, or worse.

No Republican is willing to seve for full-fledged Democrats, or worse, No Republican is willing to say for publication that he would welcome the election of a Democratic House in Noember, but there are as many such as here are Democrats who, at heart, hope he House will remain Republican for mother two years.

"Dems" See Little to Gain.

As a matter of fact, it is beginning to dawn on the Democratic brethren that they have little to gain and much to lose through the control of the next House, whereas far-eighted regular Republicans feel that their own party would ultimately gain much if the next House should be Democratic.

A Democratic House would eliminate Cannon forever; it would show up the lack of justification for the clamor against the House rules, and demonstrate to the country the ridiculousness of most of this outcry; it would eliminate some of the most obnoxious insurgent members now in office, and would force the Democratic to a show-down on the tariff.

All these things would be helpful to the Republicans in the campaign of 1912, and this Democrats know it as well as the Republicans. Hence a marked lack of enthusiasm over the approaching Congressional campaign. Short-Story Writer Fails to Recover From Operation.

Surprising What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect Indigestion the more you will suffer.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all. There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach. Use due to a disordered stomach. Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia. Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.
