Man Confesses to Placing Obstructions on Cazadero Line Track Desiring to Wreck Train.

Frank Rinaldo, the Italian laborer who attempted to wreck two trains on the Cazadero line of the O. W. P. last week, had his preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Olson yesterday, and was bound over to the grand jury under $30,000 bonds. Through John Cordano, who acted as interpreter, he admitted to the court that he placed boulders and ties on the track, and said he intended to purchase dynamite the next day to blow purchase dynamite the next day to blow up the track because his two attempts to ditch trains had been unsuccessful. Rinaldo's only grievance is that he was discharged while in the company's ems discharged while in the company's employ.

Special Agent Lillis and Deputy Sheriff Leonard testified at yesterday's hearing that they caught Rinaldo in the act of rolling a huge boulder upon the rails, and that he confessed to them he intended to ditch the cars. On the night of June 2, they said, he put a cordwood stick and two heavy timbers on trestle No. 6, on the curve between Kerrigan and Berkeley stations. Motorman Webber, in charge of a freight train, saw the obstruction and applied the emergency brakes, but not until he had run over a block. The timber was dragged about 19 feet.

The next night three big boulders were about 10 feet.

The next night three big boulders were placed on the trestle between Nickum and Berkeley. A Cazadero passenger car with 25 people dashed up to it, but the motorman saw the boulders in time. the motorman saw the bounders in time, in the headlight's glare, and came to a stop within six feet of them. Saturday night Rinaldo placed four hig boulders on the Southern Pacific track 50 feet south of the O. W. P. crossing, and four small rocks on the O. W. P. and four small rocks on the O. W. P. bridge over the Southern Pacific track. This was the night on which Deputy Sheriffs Leonard and Lillis caught him.

CELLARS ATTACKS CHIEF

Head of Police Accused of Winking at Liquor Law Violation.

"The Chief of Police interprets the law himself, arrests those he wants to and lets the rest go," declared Councilman Cellars before the liquor license committee of the Council yes-terday afternoon, during a discussion of applications for restaurant liquor licenses.

"If he would go to the City Attorney he would get the law right. Any proprietor of one of these so-called restaurants will admit that he violates the law every day many times."
Notwithstanding the statement of Mr. Cellars, the other members of the committee proceeded to grant the ap-plications for licenses to serve liquor with meals. Among them was one for the Oaks, and several others in various sections of the city.

greeting our visitors

Portland, which means every resident of the city, extends a cordial greeting to our visitors. We ask them to look around and note the number of buildings going up, not merely in the business district, but in the suburbs. Let those who have been here before compare the Portland of today with the Portland of a year ago; to those who have never before visited us, we will say that they will find no city in the country making a better or more substantial growth. Let the visitors particularly note the thousands of new homes on the East Side, and particularly notice that nine out of ten are occupied by the owners, and that not one in 200 is "for rent" or "for sale." This means not only a rapid, but a permanent growth, and an investment in such a neighborhood is sure to be profitable if you BUY RIGHT. If you will let us show you our IRVINGTON PARK lots and quote prices, you will assuredly say (if you have priced any others), that at $4.75 they are the best buy on the market. Very many beautiful homes are there now and many more are building. We would be pleased to take you out and show you, or you can take an "A" car on Third street, 5c fare, and get off at IRVINGTON PARK and see for yourself. Our agent, Mr. Schwan, is at our office there, and he can give you full particulars.
