

PIONEERS GATHER

More Than 700 Names Are Registered at City Hall Headquarters.

SOME COME FROM AFAR

Old Fiddlers' on Hand to Play Old Tunes—Auto Ride and Banquet Will Be Features and Every Attention Shown.

Registration at the headquarters of the Oregon Pioneer Association, in the rooms of the Historical Society in the City Hall, was satisfactory yesterday. For more than 700 names were recorded when the books closed at 6 o'clock.

All day long the rooms and corridors were crowded with men and women who came in Oregon in rousting prairie schooners or by ship around the Horn. Many met for the first time in years and exchanged reminiscences of former days and inquired about old friends, some of whom are now gone and others are unable to attend the reunion.

Among those who have come a long distance to attend the reunion are A. G. Lloyd, 1845, Wallingburg, Wash.; Mrs. Mary Helen Cartwright, 1845, Pacific Grove, Cal.; James B. Partlow, 1850, of Oregon City, returned from Southern California sooner than he planned in order to be present; Oscar P. Canfield, 1847, a survivor of the Whitman massacre, of Clarkston, Wash.; J. N. Skidmore, 1853, South Bend, Wash.; Andrew J. Laws, 1852, Orting, Wash.; W. T. Wright, 1852, Roseburg.

The "old fiddlers," as they have reported for duty to play such old-time tunes as "Money Musk," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "The Arkansas," "The Arkansas Traveler," "Pop Goes the Weasel," etc., are Mrs. S. J. Anderson (1847), of Vancouver; George C. Rider (1852), D. C. Bowers (1853), of Henry, Mo.; Jackson (1853), of Portland; Mr. Hardin (1853), a rider of large experience, will play old tunes with variations.

Exercises at the Masonic Temple from 4 to 4 P. M. tomorrow will be for pioneers only. The committee of arrangements in charge of the pioneer reunion desires the necessity for making a restriction, but is compelled to do so because there is no auditorium in the city large enough to seat all who desire to attend the exercises.

The annual "campfire" meeting (Chi-yu-wa-wa, hiyu he-he) which will begin at 8 o'clock, immediately after the annual business meeting, will be open to everybody, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Pioneers Must Have Badges.

Secretary Himes again requests resident pioneers in any part of the city to call at early hours to provide themselves with the proper badge, so that those who come from the interior may be greeted without delay at the reunion. The proposition for Portland pioneers to be ready, at least one year, to give the "glad hand" of welcome to visiting pioneers, he says, as it is for the Portland business man of today to give a word of welcome to the stranger who may be a prospective customer.

Many persons have expressed a desire to see the pioneers at their banquet. All wishing to do so can secure special tickets of admission to the gallery between the hours of 3 to 5 o'clock tomorrow by calling upon the secretary, at the City Hall today.

Grand Marshal Requests

all who have consented to act as his aides to report at the Masonic Temple at 1 o'clock sharp tomorrow.

Auto Ride Is Planned.

A half hour's automobile ride about the city will be given the pioneers at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Upon the solicitation of Mayor Simon, E. Henry Wempe has undertaken the supervision of the automobile feature. He wants 100 automobiles, and requests owners to bring or send them to Tenth and Yamhill streets at 2:15 tomorrow in order to be ready for the ride. The ride will be taken to the principal points of interest and landed at the Army in time for the big banquet.

Every possible attention will be shown the visiting pioneers by the city police. An order has been issued by Chief of Police Cox instructing all officers to be watchful of the visitors, rendering them assistance on crossings and busy streets and directing them as requested. In addition, details of officers will attend the meetings of the association, the automobile feature, Cartwright and Mrs. John W. Minto at the Army at 1 o'clock, and to Joseph Buchtel, grand marshal, at the Masonic Temple, at the same hour.

BLAZIER LOSES LICENSE

COUNCIL COMMITTEE REVOKES VALLEY GRILL'S PERMIT.

Constant Jangling of Bad Pianola Too Much for Hotelman, Who Complained.

Loud singing, louder talking by both men and women, continual jangling of a squeaky pianola on threadbare sofas, throngs of both sexes hanging around the sidewalks and making themselves obnoxious at all hours of the day and night, and similar offenses, were charged against C. Blazier, proprietor of the Valley Cafe Grill, 23 Main street, by J. L. Dernbach before the Council liquor license committee yesterday afternoon. The members voted to revoke the grill license, to take effect July 1. The music is to be "cut out" at once.

That the Valley Cafe is only one of a number of such places, and that every one of them should have their licenses revoked, was the declaration of Councilman Devlin, concurred in by Councilman Wallace, chairman of the committee. It was said that it is becoming well understood that the chief reason for having a grill license is to make it possible to harbor women who have their licenses against women being in saloons proper, and the grillrooms afford means of catering to them that could not otherwise be provided.

The ordinance permitting the licensing of grillrooms to dispense liquor with meals is being roundly abused and violated every day in every one of the grillrooms in Portland, according to Councilman Cellars. He has repeatedly declared these places drink shops with sandwiches or crackers and cheese, whereas the ordinance demands that a full meal, in the usual meaning of the term, be served with drinks.

Mr. Dernbach, who is proprietor of the Valley Hotel, filed with the committee yesterday a letter complaining against rowdiness in the grillroom of the Valley Cafe, which is under his establishment. He told the committee yesterday that his business is being ruined by the jangling of the pianola, the cries, shrieks, curses and yells of men and women from dusk to dawn, and the constant ringing of his own nightbell by drunken men and women, seeking lodgment for the night. His appeals to the police, he said, had proved futile. He made a personal call upon the Chief, he said, and a telephone call to a sergeant one night resulted in advice to see the City Attorney about issuing a warrant for the proprietor's arrest. Police men on the beat were helpless, said Dernbach. Finally, in desperation, he appealed to the license committee for aid.

Councilman Blazier moved to instruct Blazier to "cut out" the music at once, but did not want to revoke the license on trivialities like those recited by Dernbach. Councilmen Devlin, Wallace and Aleneff wanted to revoke not only this license, but others of like character. Councilman Grant told the members of the committee that his office had filed two other complaints against Blazier in the morning, the vote to revoke was cast.

Thomas Ryan and Gene Blazier, proprietors of the resort where a girl was arrested, were taken into custody yesterday.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER IS RE-ELECTED BY EMPHATIC MAJORITY.

At the instance of the Daily Campaign Association, an organization of union labor men, and yesterday another booth was located in Rose City Park at their instance, which returned 64 votes for Fleischer and six for Daly.

Heaviest Vote on First Street.

The heaviest voting was at 41 First street, where 83 votes were polled. All the afternoon a long line of voters, most of whom were men, stood before the booth waiting to vote. When the polls were closed about 50 were still waiting to vote. This precinct returned 573 votes for Fleischer, 233 for Daly and 7 for Mace.

All morning yesterday workers for Fleischer and Daly were out. At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon 50 automobiles, owned privately and lent to the Fleischer Campaign Association, an organization of business men having his fight in hand, were gathered at First and Ash streets where is located the Fleischer, Mayer & Company wholesale dry goods store. Under the direction of Henry E. Reed, who, as secretary of the Fleischer association, had charge of the campaign yesterday, they were sent out all over the city. At one time, when it seemed some of the Fleischer voters at 41 First street would not be able to vote before the time for closing the polls, 75 were loaded into automobiles and scattered around at other precincts.

Few Challenges Made.

There were few challenges at the polls on either side and no attempts, so far as is known, to intimidate voters in any way. A total of 48 applications to vote was denied and two were not counted on account of being imperfectly made out.

The Fleischer voting commenced with the opening of the polls and continued heavily throughout the afternoon. The labor vote was largely cast between 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock, after working hours.

The most remarkable feature of the election was the heavy vote cast. It is the largest since 1886, when about 8000 persons voted. At that time there was intense interest of a character rarely seen in any election. The candidates were R. K. Warren and J. P. Finley. Last year shows an interesting parallel to that of yesterday. Only 679 votes in all were cast then.

The immense personal popularity of Mr. Fleischer, coupled with the local interest in industrial labor matters, is the reason assigned for the marked interest and heavy voting. For some months industrial troubles have been apparently impending in Portland, the storm centering around the rejection of "closed shop" ideas. Two or three strikes have occurred, and those having interests directly affected by such affairs were aroused.

Result Is Known Early.

The official returns commenced coming into the Board of Education offices in the City Hall at 7:30 o'clock last night. Before that time, however, 15 precincts had been heard from unofficially, which gave Mr. Fleischer a decided majority, virtually insuring his re-election. There

CRACKSMEN WRECK SAFE

CARD SAYING STRONG BOX CONTAINS NO MONEY IGNORED.

Fuel Company's Office Nearly Blown to Pieces in Burglars' Bootless Quest.

Ignoring a sign hung on the front of Jack O'Brien's safe, telling them that it was not locked and contained no money, safe crackers blew it up with a stick of dynamite at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The explosion was destructive, but on account of the various noises of the near-by railroad yards and the river, seems not to have been noticed by many persons. None of the patrolmen in the vicinity heard any unusual noise.

The office of the fuel company, in which the safe was kept, is at 46 Alameda avenue, close to the Albina ferry. On account of its isolated situation out of working hours no money is kept at the office and only the yard books and papers were kept in the safe. A large card announcing this fact was placed on the front of the safe, but it is supposed that the burglars turned the combination before trying to open the door and, finding it then locked and believing that the card was intended to mislead, hung a stick of dynamite to the safe and blew it open.

The explosion created havoc in the office, wrecking everything in sight, breaking the windows, scattering papers and destroying some records. Detectives Coleman and Sweeney were assigned to the case yesterday and all officers were instructed to be on the lookout for the criminals.

Luckily for William Williams and John Bereford, known yeggmen, arrested the day before by Detectives Carpenter and Price, they were in the City Jail at the time of the burglary, and thus escaped a natural suspicion. They pleaded guilty to vagrancy yesterday and, not having accomplished any work in Portland, were allowed to leave town.

O'Brien, said to be a "stick-up man," was arrested yesterday by Coleman and Snow, but it is not thought probable that he had any hand in the safe job. He was recently released from Walla Walla penitentiary, after serving about two years of an indeterminate sentence, but whether he was paroled or pardoned is not known. Inquiries on that point were sent to Walla Walla last night.

O'Brien was caught at Second and Morrison streets yesterday afternoon. He carried a long-barreled revolver, such as is affected by hold-up men. He is said to gravitate between Camas, Wash., and Troutdale, doing odd jobs, coming to the city occasionally.

O'Brien was sent to Walla Walla after a burglary job at Camas, Wash., about two years ago. In making his escape he fought a pistol battle with his pursuers and finally jumped from a window, breaking both arms.

BUILDINGS BILL IS PASSED

House Gives $19,288,500 for Public Structures by Viva Voce.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The public buildings bill, carrying $19,288,500 in authorizations for increasing cost of public buildings, etc., besides $3,095,000 for continuing contracts, was passed by the House at 12:50 o'clock this morning by a viva voce vote.

A Kansas City company is reported to have perfected plans for establishing a factory for making cement building blocks in Mexico.

FLEISCHNER WINS

Unusual Activity in School Election Is Surprise.

DALY HINTS UNFAIRNESS

Defeated Union Labor Candidate for School Director, Through Association Working for Him, Says Opponent's Methods Unjust.

(Continued From First Page.)

at the instance of the Daily Campaign Association, an organization of union la-

WOODARD, CLARKE & Co.

CORNER WASHINGTON and FOURTH

AGENTS CROSS GLOVES

insures effective surgical work towards curing the malignant disease now undermining the morals and effectiveness of one of our greatest public institutions.

$750,000 PLANT IS DEAL

New Yorkers Secure Option on Handford Power Company Holdings.

WASHINGTON G. A. R. MEETS

Annual Encampment Will Begin Today at Hoquiam.

HOQUIAM, Wash., June 20.—(Special.)—More than 800 members of the G. A. R., forming the Department of Washington and Alaska, assembled here today for their annual encampment, which begins tomorrow. Accompanying the veterans are the Women's Relief Corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. The total number of visitors is about 2000 and tonight's trains are expected to bring in the remaining delegates to the encampment.

It is estimated that the coal mines already developed contain enough coal to supply the world for 1000 years.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WOODARD, CLARKE & Co.

CORNER WASHINGTON and FOURTH

AGENTS CROSS GLOVES

insures effective surgical work towards curing the malignant disease now undermining the morals and effectiveness of one of our greatest public institutions.

$750,000 PLANT IS DEAL

New Yorkers Secure Option on Handford Power Company Holdings.

WASHINGTON G. A. R. MEETS

Annual Encampment Will Begin Today at Hoquiam.

HOQUIAM, Wash., June 20.—(Special.)—More than 800 members of the G. A. R., forming the Department of Washington and Alaska, assembled here today for their annual encampment, which begins tomorrow. Accompanying the veterans are the Women's Relief Corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. The total number of visitors is about 2000 and tonight's trains are expected to bring in the remaining delegates to the encampment.

It is estimated that the coal mines already developed contain enough coal to supply the world for 1000 years.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation projects to assign their entries at will. No restriction is placed upon the assignments, the House having dropped its committee amendment, which provided assignments could only be made by qualified homestead entrymen. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill authorizing the settlers on Government irrigation