

93 SENIORS GIVEN THEIR DIPLOMAS

Large Class Graduated With Impressive Ceremony at Oregon Varsity.

CARVER MAKES ADDRESS

College Women Revive Pretty Custom of Flower and Fern Procession — Exercises Over, Students Return Home.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, June 22.—(Special).—Ninety-three young men and women of the senior class formally severed their four years' connection with the University of Oregon at students today, and ended their part in the ceremonies of commencement, when they received their graduating diplomas from President Campbell. One of the most impressive and interesting features of the week was presented as the capped and gowned members of the class filed before the president for the last time.

With today's exercises came the final windup of commencement, and tonight students and visitors are returning to their homes in all parts of the state. The celebration just concluded has been by far the largest and most successful in the history of the university.

Address Begins Programme.

The day's programme began with the address to the class in the morning by Professor Thomas Nixon Carver, of the department of political science at Harvard, and ended with the alumni dinner in the afternoon and the annual alumni reception and ball in the evening. President Allen Eaton of the alumni welcomed the seniors and President Campbell, of Portland, gave the response for the graduating class.

One of the features of yesterday's exercises was the revival of the pretty old custom of a fern and flower procession by the university and alumni women. Forming by classes in line extending several blocks in length, and headed by Mrs. H. F. McCormack of the class of 1878, the first to be graduated from the University of Oregon, the women made a most impressive spectacle.

Dr. Carson Is Present.

The members of each class carried different kinds of flowers. They marched around the campus, formed the letters "U. O." in front of C. V. Hill, and then deposited their bouquets on the ground so as to leave the letters permanently.

Dr. Lucilla Clay Carson, ex-president of Women, who has just completed her first year as president of Mills College, was present and the ceremony, which she herself had introduced, deeply affected her.

Last night the seniors began a new custom by organizing a "college sing." Almost a hundred in number, they marched around the college buildings singing farewell songs, and then serenaded the various societies and fraternity houses. Following this, they enjoyed a banquet together at one of the exclusive houses.

Professor Thomas Nixon Carver, of Harvard University, delivered the commencement address this morning. His subject was "The Conservation of Human Energy."

Professor Nixon Speaks.

The address consisted essentially of a comparison of modern and Victorian civilization with ancient and Eastern civilization, in the course of which the lauded the commercialism, productive power, and energy of the modern age, and condemned the weakness of the people who are falling before us and sentimentalism of those who try to defend them.

"The ceremony and wastefulness of religion, the pride of the downtrodden, and the sentimentality of humanitarians were among the cardinal points that Dr. Carver took exception to as tending to divert energy from productive and useful pursuits. "Christianity, said he, "is only useful in so far as it makes men better farmers or workmen."

"The productive life consists in doing the thing which is most needed and, for which the individual has the greatest capacity," said Professor Carver in part.

"If corn is needed and one is better fitted for growing corn than anything else, one is to grow corn. If the sick need nursing and one is better fitted for nursing than for anything else, one is to nurse the sick."

Real Sin Waste of Energy.

The only real sin, according to Dr. Carver, is waste of human energy. Superstitions and formal religion are detriments to progress, as well as idleness and intemperance.

Dr. Carver's advice to Christians was in effect to quit preaching and go to work. Thus, by making themselves more fit to succeed, he said, they will supplant the non-Christians more effectively than by converting them.

Following the address came the presentation of diplomas by President Campbell.

STORY PROMISES THRILLS

Noted Fiction and Pugnistic Contest Author Will Begin Daily Graphic Word Pictures of Reno and Plan for Jeffries Battle.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 22.—(Special).—Jack London, the famous novelist, author of the "Sea Wolf," "Burning Daylight" and other tales of adventure on land and sea in the tropics and in the Arctic zones, today started for Reno, where he will report the fight for The Oregonian.

He is accompanied by a corps of other special writers for The Oregonian, who will telegraph the technical part of the fight and cover the news developments from day to day.

Mr. London will write a descriptive story of the fight and every day after he reaches Reno he will send a dispatch telling of the condition of the fighters and their likelihood of winning the championship of the world and the honor.

The Oregonian has spared nothing to give its readers the best from a writer who is not only a master in the world of fiction, but has also proved himself a master in describing fistie contests.

All will remember the report of the Burns-Johnson fight in Australia, which Mr. London reported in his masterful and forceful English and which was sent from the other side of the globe by cable.

Mr. London's telegraphic stories have been secured for The Oregonian and no other paper in Oregon will be able to publish them.

DECISION MADE SIMPLE

WEST FAVORS TAFT PLAN OF ADJUSTING LAND CASES.

Effort Made to Pass Bill in House Under Special Rule and to Hasten Senate Action.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 22.—If the Senate and House pass the bill introduced yesterday, as suggested in the special message of the President, so that appeals may be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from land decisions of the Interior Department, and authorizing the Secretary to appeal to this court for the interpretation of points of law involved in pending cases, final determination of the Cunningham coal cases will be comparatively simple.

The plan is to pass the bill in the House tomorrow, under a special rule, and an effort will be made to secure its passage by the Senate before adjournment. Western members greatly favor the bill, though it is charged by Democratic members of the house lands committee today that the bill might accomplish nothing more or less than the ultimate clear-listing of the famous Cunningham group of claims—the bone of contention in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

If these claims are held back because of doubt as to the true meaning of the laws involved, the Secretary can obtain a ruling from the court and act accordingly; or if the Department decides on its own initiative and interpretation of the law and the decision is questioned, it can be appealed, and the decision of the court will be final.

Soldiers Get Assignments.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 22.—First Lieutenant Leonard O. Hughes, of the Medical Reserve Corps, relieved from duty at Fort Worden, will proceed to Fort D. A. Russell for duty.

First-class Sergeant William O. Perry, of the Signal Corps, Fort Ward, will be sent to the Presidio of San Francisco for duty with Company E, Signal Corps.

Whitman Bill to Be Amended.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 22.—The bill selling the Walla Walla military reservation to Whitman College will not pass the House this session, but will be amended next winter to provide for the appraisal of the property and its title at not less than the appraised price, the preference right to buy at that figure being given to Whitman.
