Sheriff of King County and was elected by an overwhelming majority. In 1890 he refused to be a candidate for re-election, and accepted the presidency of the First National Bank of Seattle. Still interested in politics, he was a member of the National Republican con-vention in 1892. He was elected Governor of Washington that year and served the four-year term beginning January, 1893, and ending in 1897. McGraw has always been known as a fighter in politics. When nominated for Governor in 1892, he was kulfed in Pierce County, but King County railied to his support with the slogan of the Lake Washington Canat. SEATTLE, Wash., June 23 .- (Spe SEATTLE, Wash., June 22.—(Spe-cial.)—John H. McGraw, ex-Governor of Washington, died at his residence here at 6:45 o'clock this morning. He had been lil for nearly four months, suf-fering from typhoid fever, with compli-cations, and for a month his life had been despaired of. For the past week nearly every hope of recovery had been abandoned, and last night, beaten at every turn, the doctors ceased to ad-abandoned, and last night, beaten at every turn, the doctors ceased to ad-minister the oxygen and strychnine that had prolonged the losing fight, and waited for the end. Ex-Governor McGraw was a man of strong constitution and iron will, and he kept up the fight long after it was seen that he had little chance for life. He was unconscious to the end. With him at the Fedside were his physician, Dr. E. R. Kelley, who is a nephew of Dr. E. R. Kelley, who is a nephew of Mr. McGraw; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hudson Baxter, daughter and son-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. McGraw, son and daughter. Funeral arrangements have not yet been amounced. It was the wish of the ex-Governor that no public funeral service be held, and this will doubtless be followed. The Chamber of Com-merce, however, from the presidency of which Mr. McGraw only recently re-tired, is planning to hold a public me-morial service in the Armory within a morial service in the Armory within a few days. Mr. McGraw's last public service was at Washington, D. C., where he ap-peared before the Congressional com-mittee in behalf of the appropriation which was passed by Congress for the construction of the Lake Washington canal. Perhaps the most important feature of the picturesque career of ex-Governor McGraw was his 20-year fight for the construction of this canal, and he lived to see work begun on his fa-vorite project.

At 14 He Was Driven From Home.

When McGraw was 8 years old his mother married a second time. When he was 14 years' old he left home because of a disagreement with his stepfather, and thereafter he was compelled to rely upon his own exertions. His scant edu-cation was acquired at a few terms' at-tendance at a country school, but in spite of all disadvantages he succeeded in maintaining himself, and at 17 he secured employment as a clerk in a general merchandise store.

There he remained for three years, There he remained for three years, although it does not appear to have engrossed him entirely, for he was mar-ried October 12, 1374. During the Winter of the following year the firm of McGraw Bros. suc-combed to the business depression that followed the panic of '73, and John H. McGraw was once more thrown upon his own resources. After this reverse he determined to set out for the Pacific Coast.

San Francisco was his objective point when he left the Pine Tree state. There he arrived July 10, 1876, and for the next few months he worked as a horse-car driver in that city

It was a casual acquaintance he met, who induced and assisted him to come north to Seattle, and he arrived in this city December 28, 1876. For the ensu-ing several months he was employed as J. D. J. D. clerk at the Occidental Hotel.

a clerk at the occidental Hotel. During the next year, however, he be-came one of the lessess of the American House, a small hotel located near Yesler's wharf, and he conducted the business of that hotel until the building was destroyed by fire 1878. After this last reverse a more favor-able current set in. He solicited and obtained a position on the police force of Seattle, which then consisted of four men. He served one year and in July, 1879, he was elected City Marshal by the people, and chosen by the City Council as Chief of Police.

Upholding Law Brings Defeat.

He continued to fill these offices by annual re-election until February, 1882, when he was elected Sheriff of King County to fill the unexpired term of L. V. Wyckoff. He was re-elected to this position in November, 1882, and again two years later. During his third term as Sheriff occurred the anti-Chinese agitation, with its accompanying disturbances of the peace. He promptly made known his intention to uphold the laws and maintain the peace of the county at any cost, and for this stand he incurred the hos-tility of those who sympathized with agi-tation in its lawless phase, and when he was nominated for re-election in November, 1886, he was defeated, together with all the other candidates who had been nominated for county offices by his party. During his occupancy of the office of Sheriff he had devoted much of his time to the study of the law and was admitted to the study of the law and was admitted to the bar. Shortly after his retirement to private life he formed a partnership, in March, 1887, with Roger S. Greene, who had formerly been Chief Justice of Wash-ington Territory, and C. H. Hanford, at present United States District Judge for the district of Washington, and began the practice of law. Later Joseph F. McNaught entered the firm, and the firm name of Greene, Han-ford & McGraw became Greene, Hanford.
