DICKINSON ON WAY

War Secretary Reaches City En Route to Philippines.

TRIP NOT SIGNIFICANT

Negro Troops Will Not Be Ordered From Seattle Till Time Is Up. He Says—Visit to Islands Is Merely Incidental.

Secretary of War Dickinson passed through Portland yesterday afternoon on his way to San Francisco, from which city he will sail for the Philippines tomorrow. He was aboard the Shasta Limited. He and Mrs. Dickinson occupied a drawing-room and his son, his private secretary, J. M. Clark, and S. E. Long, personal secretary to General Clarence R. Edwards, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, were in an adjoining compartment. The party will be met in San Francisco by General Edwards and friends.

"There is no particular significance to my trip to the Philippines," said Secretary Dickinson at the Union Station. "I have never been to the islands and I want to visit them in order to be better acquainted with conditions, as they are under direct control of the War Department. I expect to be gone about four months. There is nothing out of the ordinary to call me to the islands and there are no immediate plans for fortifications other than those mapped out along ordinary lines of improvements. No changes are contemplated in affairs in the islands incidental to my visit. I am simply making the trip to be better prepared to fulfill my duties.

tors will be arrested and dealt with accordingly. I did not conduct an investigation because there was nothing to investigate, as the man is under arrest and will be given a trial. I see no reason why a whole battalion should be moved because one of its members commits a crime. The Twenty-Fifth Infantry will remain at Fort Lawton until its time there expires."

Secretary Dickinson is a Southerner and a Democrat. Although he had always been a Democrat, his wife, Martha Overton and made his home in Nashville. He served several times by special commission on the Supreme bench of Tennessee and from 1897 to 1898 was an Assistant United States Attorney General. With his retirement from public office he became general counsel of the Illinois Central Railroad and moved to Chicago, where he retained that position and maintained a temporary office in Chicago. He was appointed Secretary of War.

JURISDICTION AT ISSUE

Oregon Stockholders in Irrigation Enterprise Dispute Insolvency.

Raising the point of jurisdiction in the United States Court, Oregon stockholders of the Deschutes Irrigation Company will endeavor this morning to secure a reversal of the order declaring the Crook County reclamation concern to be insolvent and will ask for a dismissal of the receiver. Attorney L. G. Addison, representing the Columbus, Ohio, bondholders who initiated the suit, arrived in Portland yesterday and was in consultation with A. King Wilson during the afternoon. Attorneys Jesse Stearns and John H. Hays will contend that the interests of the Eastern bondholders of the Deschutes Irrigation Company are represented by the trustee named in the mortgage which secured the bond issue. The trustee is the Merchants Savings & Trust Company of Portland. The point is made that, the trustee being a resident of the same state in which the company is incorporated, any suit at law must be determined in the state courts.

BRIDGE TEST NEAR

Tomorrow Is Crucial Point in Broadway Affairs.

$172,000 BONDS TO SELL

Mayor Hopeful This Can Be Done, but Makes Urgent Appeal to Investors to Consider These Bonds as Safe Investment.

Tomorrow's developments, it is thought, will determine the fate of the Broadway bridge. Tuesday has been set apart by Mayor Simon as "Solicitation day," and business men and property owners of the city will be expected to dig down deep in their pockets and come to the rescue of the project.

Certain interests opposed to the construction of the bridge are said to have been active of late in keeping down subscription to the bonds. This causes those who want the bridge to make a stronger effort than ever to sell them locally and at par.

COURT RUNS BEHIND

Cases Will Accumulate in Summer Vacation Period.

MURDER TRIAL GOES OVER

Webb and Mrs. Kersh to Have More Time to Prepare Defense—Judge Gantenbein Urges Reforms in Criminal Practice.

When the Multnomah County Circuit Court adjourns July 2 for the Summer vacations of the judges, it will be about two weeks behind with its work. But with two months in which attorneys may bring in new suits, it is probable that much more business than this will wait the opening of court, September 5.

Murder Inquiry Expedited.

Judge Morrow urged District Attorney Cameron last week to hasten as much as possible the investigation of the John Finch murder case because Finch maintained that his case was crowded through the courts in such a way that he did not secure a fair trial.

Although the rules of the Circuit Court provide that the presiding judge shall set the cases to be tried during his term, which shall last for a year, and pass in rotation from judge to judge, Presiding Judge Morrow has during his term set about 12 cases for trial in September.
