'Davies' Confession Will Probably Free O. R. Blystone From Penitentiary.

CASE IS PUZZLING ONE Eminent Professor to Address Ore-

District Attorney Thinks Convict Got Sentence for Another's Crime. Third Man as Real Penman for Both, Theory,

O. R. Blystone, who pleaded guilty to a charge of passing a forged check over ago, will be released from the Oregon Penitentiary within a few days upon recommendation of the District Atbecause another man has confessed that he was guilty of the act for which Blystone pleaded guilty and received an indeterminate sentence of from one to five years. All the authorities are puzzled by the strange tangle and are at a loss to know who committed the act, but District Attorney Cameron has decided to give Blystone the benefit of the confession to John T. Davies and will recommended his release on parole.

Blystone was arrested in March, 1909, charged with passing three checks, one upon Abe Schiffer, a grocer, for $35, on March 1, 1909; one on McAllen & McDonnell, for $32,50, in November, 1908, and a third upon the Cosy Corner saloon for $10, in November, 1908. He was first tried $10, in November, 1908. He was first tried on the Schiffer check and the jury dis-agreed. Then he was arraigned for passing the check at the Cosy Corner saloon and pleaded guilty, receiving a sentence to the penitentiary. The victims in both cases picked Blystone from among five men in the County Jall and declared that he was the man to whom they had paid money for the worthless paper.

Davies Freely Confesses.

Two weeks ago, John T. Davies, known as the "back-hand" forger, was captured through the efforts of Detectives Day, Hyde, Tichenor and Howell and freely confessed that he had worked a large number of persons in Portland and other cities with the "back-hand" checks. Among others, he admitted that he has passed the checks at the Cosy Corner passed the checks at the Cosy Corner and at Schiffer's grocery.

The exhibits which had been used against Blystone were then submitted to a handwriting expert, along with some known to have been passed by Davies, and the expert declared that they were all the work of one hand.

The checks upon which Blystone was convicted, resemble strikingly those of Davies, not only in their writing, but in the fact that they purport to have been drawn by the Pacific Bridge & Grading Company and the Northern Bridge & Dredging Company, names used by Davies in a large proportion of the checks issued by him.

Prisoner Is Interviewed.

District Attorney Cameron, accompan-ied by Detective Hellyer, who worked up the case against Blystone, went to Salem Tuesday and held an interview with the prisoner. He denied that he had passed the check upon which he was convicted. He said that at the time of his trial he had no witnesses to offer in his defense, was discouraged by the fact that the former jury had failed to acquit him, and, fearing a worse deal in Washington, where he was wanted for similar offenses, had accepted the offer of the prosecution to allow him to plead guilty to a reduced charge of getting money by false pretenses and take a one-to-fiveyear sentence.

His reason for so doing was that he was a known forger, had been convicted in Washington for the offense and had served 18 months at Walla Walla for it. He was again wanted in Spokane, and he knew that if he went back there, with the record against him, he would severely dealt with.

Blystone Readily Identified.

Among the puzzling features of the case is the fact that Blystone was so readily identified by his alleged victims, but an examination of the photographs of the two men shows that there is enough resemblance that, one of them being pre and the other absent, the mistake in identity might easily be made

It is a theory expressed by some offi-cers connected with the case, that neither Davies or Blystone, but a third person was the writer of the checks, which the two men passed upon merchants. The fact that this paper, with its distinctive characteristics, was circulated in numerous Pacific Coast cities almost simultaneously, seems to support the theory. Davies persists in declaring that he never had a partner, but he is a cocaine user and his statements on all subjects are

The officials have other data bearing upon the puzzling case, which they are keeping to themselves for the present, and which may bring wide development

"When my little daughter was about five years old, she was taken with the measles. A few weeks after the measles were gone, she began to have a severe scalp humor. It itched so that she would scratch the whole day, until the blood came. We had a doctor and tried a good many other remedies, but nothing helped. Her hair all fell out and the scalp itself had an unpleasant odor.

"After we had tried all the other remedies, my wife told me to try the Cuticura Remedies. We bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. We used the Cuticura Remedies according to directions and in about three or four weeks her scalp was perfectly clear of the terrible humor. Her hair began to grow again and now she has beautiful, long hair. Since that time I have recommended the Cuticura Remedies to other people and they also had success. Chas.
