Between the work of Umpire Finney and the lassitude displayed by the Portland players, the latter managed to "sluff off" another game of baseball yesterday, Vernon winning a 3-to-1 decision in a battle that went 10 innings.

Roy Hitt was on the hilltop for the visiting team and he was hit decidedly harder than was Eugene Krapp, who heaved for Portland, but the Beavers went to sleep on the bases, tried impossible stunts in the base-running line to such an extent that Hitt did not have to worry much when a Mc Credie hireling did negotiate first or second. Portland "sluffed off" at least three runs before the ninth inning, and the Vernon tallies regis, tered in the 10th can be attributed to a Mr. Finney

Finney Shows in Decision,

With Hitt stowed away in the deciding chapter, Carlisle hit a slow one between Rapps and Casey, and both tried to field it with the result that neither "glommed" the ball, and Carlisle was safe. He immediately stole second.

Krapp then took an aerial trip on his own account and filled the bases by walking Stovall and Coy. Burrell having popped out between times, making two on ice when Roy Brashear hit sharply to Olson, who tossed to first apparently ahead of the runner, but the "man with the register" called the runner out and then reversed it waving him safe, while Carlisle and Stovall raced home with two scores. It was a lovely ruling-"nit." Both teams scored runs in the sec-ond inning, and both runs were decid-edly on the order of the horseshoe variety. In the opening half, Vernen tal-lied when Roy Brashear doubled to center, was held at second when Fisher went out at first, but took third on Lindsay's out, and scored when Happy Hogan bounded one that took a bad hop to Rapps.

When Happy Hogan Drops Ball.

In Portland's half Martinke singled to center, and went to second when Hitt tossed badly trying to catch him off first. Helling's out sent him to third, and Casey fanned, making two out. Buddy Ryan bunted to Burrell, but Happy Hogan dropped the ball at the second game Boston made Four runs in the opening inning. Score—First game:

Batteries—Chicotte and Carrigan; Quinn and Sweeney. the plate and Martinke was safe.

With the score at one-all, the teams battled along to the extra session. In the minth, Hetling opened with a two-base smash, but pulled a bum one by trying to take three, but this probably was due to poor coaching, he being tossed out at third on a relay from Stovall, to Carlisle to Burrell. After this, both Casey and Byan singled sharply to center, and one run should have resulted had Hetling held second. but the less said about yesterday's fi-asco the better.

Seaton will pitch for Portland today and either Willett or Hensling for Vernon. The score: VERNON.

game, as provided by the changes in the rules made last year, it was deemed necessary to obtain a fast field. To this end a mixture of rock and clay Batteries—Chicotte and Carrigan; Quinn to the depth of nearly three feet has been spread on the old field, which was filled in last Summer. On top of this a coat of macadam will be used, and over all another half-foot of fine clay will be spread. The macadam, say the engineers at work, will drain the field and make it almost twice as fast as formerly.

Old Drainage Not Good.

Last year a network of tiling was while it did drain off part of the water it still failed to take off all, and as a consequence the field was wet and sogry during the rainy season. Then, too, the new field will enable the soccer team to use the field after the com-pletion of the intercollegiate season while heretofore it was necessary to play that new and popular game on the baseball field. PORTLAND FANS GIVE JEFF CREDIT FOR DOING HIS BEST.

That Negro's Pugilistic Ability Will Not Soon See Real Test Is Belief of Witnesses.

Fight fans commenced arriving in Portland from Reno yesterday and unant-mously assert that the so-called "biggest fight of the century" was a great dis-appointment. All declare that James J. Jeffries, the idol of the white race, was beaten from the jump. Some of them even assert that Johnson could have even assert that Johnson could have beaten him in one round, but that even the colored man did not know at the start just how weak Jeffries was.

W. L. Whitmore, one of the veteran commercial travelers of Portland gives the following as his version of the scrap:

"Jeffries looked grand from where I sat when he entered the ring, but he had not boxed one round when I felt that he had no chance. Not that he did not try in that opening round, but the intuition came to me, for some unknown reason, that he was about to be dereason, that he was about to be de-feated. After watching the fight through the 15 rounds I am thoroughly con-vinced that Johnson could have beaten Jeffries in one round had he plunged in for such a purpose. He was evidently doubtful as to Jeffries' real strength and expected the white man to show something before the fifth round.

"After withstanding Jeff's rushes in the second, Johnson's so-called 'golden smile' was in evidence and he lost no opportunity of sailing into his opponent. portunity of sailing into his opponent. Jeffries was a beaien man at the sixth round, and this was only made more and more apparent as the fight progressed. After the tenth round it was a pitiful exhibition, and when it was over there was not a single cheer or outburst of enthusiasm. It was the most remarkable ending of a fight that I have ever witnessed. The spectators seemed support nessed. The spectators seemed stunned and left the arena without a word, most of them shaking their heads." William Heyden—Johnson could have beaten Jeffries any time after the fifth round. The white man was but a shell of his former grand physique. He was absolutely helpless against the great fighting ability displayed by Johnson, and I do not believe that this fight even tested the real strength of the negro. Jeffries made no fight, either offensive or defensive. He disappointed every one, and 1 am thoroughly satisfied that he was beaten before he ever entered the ring. I believe he knew that he could not "come back." and merely went into the fight to save his forfeit. I sympathize with him as much as if I were his broth-Hurstbourne stakes, for 2-year-mas, dis-tance five furlongs, straight, 20 sovereigns, on each, with 300 sovereigns added, was run here today and won by Charles Car-er, for I honestly believe he did the best he could. It is a shame that he there is a fighter living who has a solllost, but he fought once too often. Fred Cooper—It was a slaughter from the start, and James J. Jeffries was the lamb offered. Johnson did not have to extend himself at all, and after the first

did. Johnson always beat him to it, and frequently cautioned Jeffries not to rush too hard or he would annihilate him, and I believe that the negro could have knocked Jeffries out at any time after the fifth round. It was the most unequal battle I have ever seen, for Jeffries was outclassed all through. He fought like a man in a trance, and for that reason I believe he despaired of being able to stand the gaff before he entered the ring and considered himself beaten before he commenced to battle with Johnson. Take ary chance with him. In the lobby of the Imperial Hotel the fight was dramatized by Tom Gardner, of Massachusetts, who juggled his itinerary so as to be in Reno when the big mill was pulled off. As he told the story of the contest, round by round, Gardner pictured both Jeffries and Johnson in striking blows delivating and receiving three or four rounds, during which he tried Jeffries out, he simply toyed with the big fellow and "kidded" Jim Corbett. It was pitiful in the extreme, for Jeffries certainly tried hard enough, but his punches lacked steam and his rushes were ineffective. No matter what he did, Johnson always beat him to it, and frequently exputed a leffries not to rush the latter went through his shadow pertured the life of the lot of the contest, round by round, Gardner pictured both Jeffries and Johnson in striking blows, delivering and receiving punches, ducking and sidestepping.
